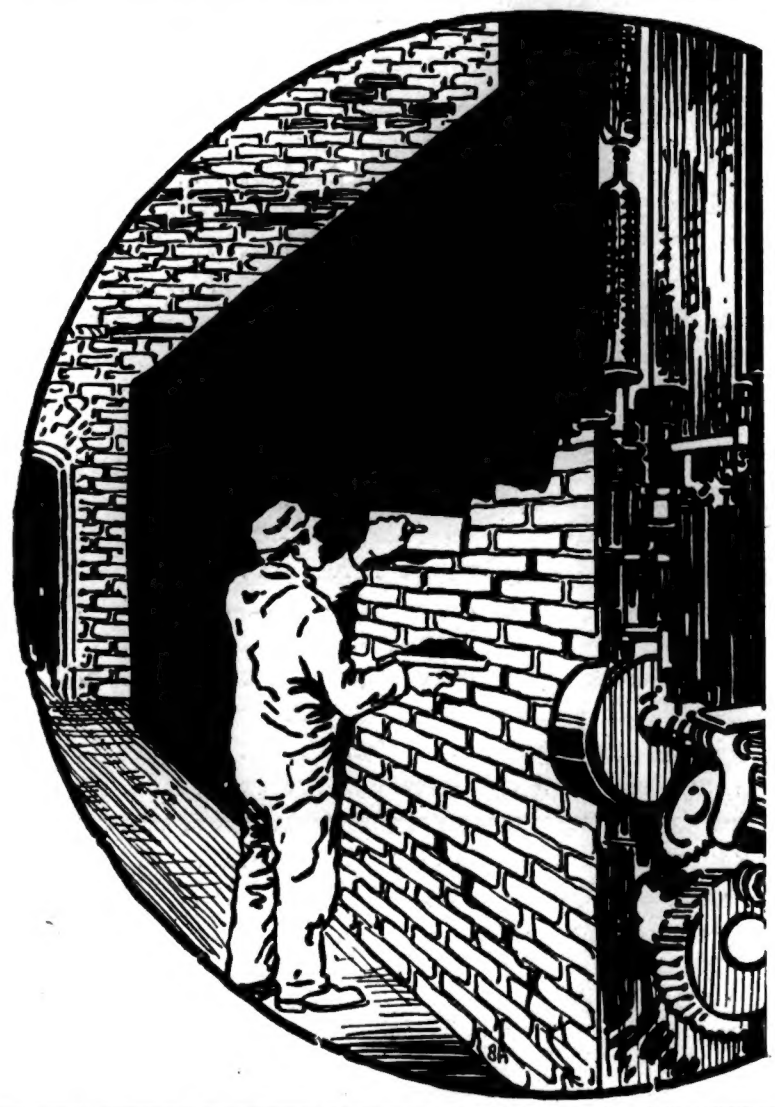
Mr. Greenhouse Man—

Have you covered your brick boiler settings with Vitaplastic SEALER and started SAVING COAL?

Get Busy—the infiltration of cold air through cracks and poroused bricks means that you must burn more coal to get the required amount of steam.



Your boiler is drawing in all the cold air possible, in the same manner that a vacuum cleaner draws in dirt.

Stop this infiltration of cold air once and for all.

"Seal the air leaks in your brick settings," says the National Fuel Administrator. Cold air will never make steam. This is considered the source of the greatest loss of fuel that is known to science, and the easiest one to remedy.

Vitaplastic

SEALER is a heavy, plastic, heat resisting, asbestos cement, composed of 50% pure asbestos, intermixed with asphaltum gums. The asbestos is so thoroughly intermixed that after setting up, it forms an indestructible blanket over your boiler setting, expanding and contracting with the brick work, stopping all further cracking and disintegration of the mortar. Any one can apply VITAPLASTIC SEALER. It spreads easily and rapidly with an ordinary mason's trowel.

VITAPLASTIC SEALER can be applied while your boiler is in operation; in fact, when you have steam up, and the bricks are warm, the sealer spreads easier.

We recommend five to six gallons to the hundred square feet, or one square. When measuring your boiler surface, include the top as well as side walls, and make the entire setting AIR-TIGHT.

We, The Quality Brands Company, do hereby guarantee that our VITAPLASTIC BOILER SEALER, when applied to your boiler settings in conformity with our instructions, will form an airtight covering over the settings, sealing all cracks and crevices and eliminating entirely the infiltration of cold air, for a period of five (5) years.

Should it fail to do this, we agree to furnish free of charge enough VITAPLASTIC BOILER SEALER to accomplish the above results.

The Florists' Review, 508 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

BARS ON OUR USE OF COAL NEARLY DOWN

Because of an oversupply in bituminous and the steam size of anthracite coal, the United States Fuel Administration has decreed that florists may burn all the coal they want where there is a surplus. The decision rests with the State Administrators, who should be consulted.

BECAUSE of an unexpected surplus of certain kinds of coal, the United States Fuel Administration last week let the bars to florists nearly down; we may burn all we need of bituminous coal, all sizes; all the steam anthracite, or buckwheat, and coke breeze. Through an order issued October 26 to the State Fuel Administrators by H. A. Garfield, U. S. Fuel Administrator, florists are to be allowed to buy and burn any of the classes of fuel mentioned, provided, of course, there is a local supply in excess of the needs of the industries on the priority list of the U. S. War Industries Board.

That there is such an excess in all the states wherein bituminous coal mines are located is the statement of the State Fuel Administrators. In its campaign to speed up production so that there would not be another coal famine in the United States this winter, the Fuel Administration, through the coöperation of the mine operators and miners, appears to have overshot the mark.

"We are millions of tons of bituminous coal ahead of consumption," was stated November 1 at the office of the State Fuel Administrator for Illinois.

Consequently there is no doubt that florists in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and the other middle western states can have all the coal they want.

Comes Rather Late.

In many cases undoubtedly this change in the order of the Fuel Administration will not be of much benefit to the owners of greenhouse ranges. Many of them have so made their plans that the permission to use a 100 per cent supply of coal comes too late; houses are empty, or even torn down. There are many others, however, who have gone on the assumption that a way would be found to operate their establishments at capacity, and they are winners. No small number of the latter optimists have in the bins their full season's supply.

To these the latest order means that they can use the coal they bought on speculation, without the danger of being branded as disloyal through having to make an involuntary contribution to the Red Cross.

While the order, which is given in full on this page, was not issued at Washington until October 26, it was not unexpected, as during the last several weeks, as reported in The Review, the larger greenhouse owners in Chicago have been besieged by coal salesmen to place orders for prepared sizes of bituminous, or the mine-run coal of prewar days.

Plenty of Coal Now.

Some were doubtful about permission to burn this coal after they had purchased it, while others have been buying steadily on the theory that if coal was going begging they might just as well have it.

Apparently the latest order of the Fuel Administration will bring most relief to the trade east of Indiana, all in Indiana, Illinois and west of the Mississippi having previously been granted the right to use screenings. Because of their geographical location and the fact that the coal mines of the country had been placed in zones, which did not allow shipments of coal from one section to another, the greenhouse owners along the Atlantic seaboard have had some difficulty in securing even the fifty per cent of their normal coal consumption allowed by the order of the Fuel Administration issued last April.

The inclusion in this latest order of "steam anthracite," which is the buckwheat the eastern growers have been using for years, as was stated in The Review's Philadelphia letter last week, undoubtedly means that this class of coal, too, is plentiful and that this method has been taken to relieve the market of the surplus.

If it were not a matter of transportation, the surplus of bituminous coal in the middle western states would be grabbed by the eastern florists, many of whom have not been able up to a few weeks ago to get deliveries on the coal they had ordered. The situation is saved for growers in Ohio if they are planted up or have means of planting the houses now being vacated by mums.

In The Review for October 31 there was printed a statement from Dr. Garfield assuring the people of the country that the situation is so well in hand that there will be no fuel famine this winter. The order allowing florists to burn 100 per cent of their fuel requirements, wherever there is a surplus, followed close on the heels of this announcement.

Helps Optimists.

That the order has come too late to help most of the large growers of plants and cut flowers seems probable. Recent reports from various parts of the country have been telling of this concern which has sold its valuable collection of plants and has prepared to close half its range in order to comply with the Fuel Administration's order, or of that one which will close the houses now filled with mums as soon as the crop is cut.

About the only ones who will profit by the order are those optimistic persons who were confident that something would turn up to relieve the situation and who planted their places as though there had been no restriction order. These are

THE OFFICIAL ORDER

Washington, D. C.
October 26, 1918.

TO ALL STATE FUEL ADMINISTRATORS:

Until further notice State Fuel Administrators may permit florists to receive and burn bituminous coal, steam anthracite, or coke breeze without having such fuel apply on their fifty per cent quota, as defined by the Fuel Administration curtailment order of April 24, 1918, whenever there is a surplus of such fuel which, in the opinion of the State Administrator, can be spared for such purpose.

(Signed) H. A. GARFIELD,
U. S. Fuel Administrator.

winners in the uncertain times.

While the American florists are having trouble with the fuel question, they may be consoled with their lot by the contemplation of the trials of their brethren in England. After several attempts, the Horticultural Advertiser, London, announces that it has been able to secure an official pronouncement on the fuel question. It is:

"Commercial greenhouses primarily devoted to food production may use seventy-five per cent of their normal fuel supplies.

"Greenhouses devoted to plants and flowers may use only twenty-five per cent of their normal supplies."

And the government over there says: "The use of anthracite for the purpose of heating greenhouses should be encouraged."

Coal for Private Places.

What will interest the gardeners on the private estates in New York state will be the recent order of Delos W. Cooke, State Fuel Administrator for New York. The order reads:

"All private greenhouses are privileged to receive bituminous coal in an amount equal to one-half of their normal requirements, but under no conditions are they to receive or be allowed to burn anthracite coal."

THE LONDON MARKET.

Business With Our Allies.

The consensus being that the future of the war-time flower business in the United States will be much like the experience in England, several readers of The Review have asked as to the present conditions at Covent Garden, the big trade center in London. The following is an extract from a market report in the Horticultural Advertiser, and deals with conditions in mid-October:

"Supplies have been low, and retailers who needed a fair quantity of flowers, or blooms of special quality, have had to come early to market and be prepared to pay a high price. Outdoor flowers are practically over, although a few early chrysanthemums, solidagos, Michaelmas daisies and asters remain. Early risers occasionally see a few orchids, but these disappear so mysteriously that it is evident the demand is always ahead of the market. Semi-early chrysanthemums sell well, especially yellow, white and bronze sorts, but supplies that come through Covent Garden are low. Indeed, there is a sort of "Hush! don't tell" air overhanging the flower market and its immediate surroundings. No doubt the recent dull and cold weather has retarded chrysanthemums and probably a week of fine weather will improve matters, but, of course, the production of food has reduced flower production to a side issue.

"It is pretty much the same with plants just now. The popular palms and ferns are in moderate supply and do not go begging. Hydrangeas wear an autocratic aspect and heaths scarcely have time to breathe the air of Wellington or Tavistock streets ere they are whisked off.

"The supplies of foliage are interesting. Bunches of plumy retinisporas and golden cupressus, sheaves of yellow and purple beech, green and ruddy oak, tinted prunus and spiræa, green and variegated box, laurel, veronica, golden privet and even laurestinus are provided and a good business is done in them. For moss and gray lichen there is a modest demand and there is no difficulty in disposing of statice in variety.

"No one seems to worry much as to whether a luxury tax will be placed on flowers, as there is a general belief that, tax or no tax, carnations and roses are sure to sell, and as there are not enough of these to go around, there will be room for anything else that can be sent. Melody, Sunburst, Mme. Abel Chatenay and Richmond roses are good for the season and they do not remain long to adorn the market. They have business otherwhere, chiefly in our hospitals and cemeteries."

DAISIES.

Will you please write an article on daisies, giving the blooming time of Shasta daisies? Is Mrs. Sander good for growing outdoors? Mine do not come true. C. M. G.—Ill.

The Shasta daisies are hardy perennials, forms of Chrysanthemum maximum, and flower outdoors from June until August, according to latitude. They can be lifted also in late fall, planted in deep flats or benches and gently forced under glass. By sowing seeds in winter in the greenhouse, a few seedlings will flower the first year, if set out in nursery rows in the spring. The culture of Shasta daisies is easy. They need well drained ground and must not have too much winter mulch applied, or they are liable to rot.

Daisy or Marguerite Mrs. Sander is a splendid outdoor bloomer and the majority of the flowers come double. It also makes a most satisfactory bedding plant. Under glass it is not a satisfactory winter bloomer like the old Chrysanthemum frutescens, white, and Etoile d'Or, yellow, but is splendid from March onward. The bulk of the flowers under glass will come single or semi-double. If they are grown in pots or shallow benches you will get more and earlier flowers from this white marguerite than by giving it a more extended root run. C. W.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

CREDIT ASSOCIATIONS.

Something over a year ago the wholesale florists of Cleveland joined a credit association having country-wide ramifications and time has served to vindicate the wisdom of the move. Nobody has been put out of business and credit, as usual, is extended to the worthy. The careless buyer has been taught to purchase more conservatively and hence, benefited; the fellow who will not pay his bills promptly has been forced into other markets; competition is cleaner because the unscrupulous sells his goods with the knowledge that they have been paid for; delinquent lists that formerly covered two or three typewritten pages have now ceased to exist; and last, but not least, business in general has been placed upon a more salutary basis.

Addressing the public instead of a limited number, as does the wholesaler, the problem of credit for the retailer is necessarily a more complicated one. But protection against substantial losses and the material reduction of long-drawn-out book accounts might be at least partially secured through concerted action. Nine times out of ten the smaller florist points to his book business as a reason for his inability to take care of bills when due, the accounts extending from one to three months and even longer and in the end a goodly percentage lost. This is a bad state of affairs and should be obviated as early as possible.

It would seem that much could be accomplished in this direction by a uniform extension of credit by retailers. Regular meetings at which credit matters were discussed and records mutually shown could not fail to be productive of ultimate good. Advertising campaigns designed to educate the flower-buying public to the importance of thirty-day settlements might be initiated at such meetings with appreciable results. The grower must be paid semimonthly; the wholesale account must be settled monthly; and that this may be done the retailer must get his money in with reasonable promptitude. Mac.

OUR RETIRED FLORISTS.

At times the nation is confronted with the problem, what to do with its ex-presidents; on the same theory, the peculiar conditions brought about by the war have caused the voluntary retirement of so many florists in the prime of life as to make pertinent in the councils of commercial floriculture the question, how best to utilize the talents of its prematurely retired members. The facetious might suggest that they be Oslerized; but as the doctor had only the unsuccessful in mind when he prescribed his famous treatment, it would scarcely apply.

In Cleveland there are a half-score of florists who have retired from active business after having amassed a competency, a fact which should serve as an inspiration to the beginner. They are still comparatively young men, with many useful years of life ahead of them, men with practical knowledge and specific business acumen extracted from constant and intelligent application for a quarter-century. They also enjoy health, which is the heritage of men who work with flowers. What a valuable asset to a profession!

In every community there are men so circumstanced and, having the time, it would seem that they are the ideal persons to supply leadership in our florists' clubs and other trade organizations. The columns of the trade papers also are open to them and, as they necessarily possess much information valuable to their fellow-craftsmen, therein lies a vast sphere of usefulness. By all means, the retired florist, where qualified, should be kept in harness and his great influence for good capitalized by the profession. Mac.

TRADE'S WORKERS NEED NOT WORRY

OVERZEALOUS PATRIOTS.

Scare Florists' Employees.

While every florist has paid proper heed to the government's need of utilizing the man-power of the country in war work, there crops up nearly every day some incident where the government labor agents are going directly against General Crowder's "work or fight" order. Every man from any of the less essential industries who is unskilled and can be spared from his present employment should offer himself to the government, but the country will not be the gainer by taking a skilled man from the florists' business and putting him to work as a laborer in a munitions or other war work factory at day laborer's wages.

An attempt to do the latter in Denver was called to the attention of William F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., October 26. Mr. Gude already had secured a statement from Provost Marshal General Crowder regarding his work or fight order. It was published in The Review for September 12. Notwithstanding General Crowder's statement, Mr. Gude has again been called on to refute the statement that florists must leave their present employment and seek work in war industries.

Describing what has occurred, Mr. Gude says:

Mr. Gude's Explanation.

"October 26 I received a special delivery letter enclosing a half page from a daily newspaper, with the statement that all persons in the florists' business from 18 to 56 years of age should either quit their jobs at once or be drafted into military service.

"On receipt of this I immediately arranged an audience with the War Industries Board, Priority Division, Washington, D. C., because if there was anything that I could do to help florists east, west, north or south, I would do it. The audience was Monday, October 28, at 2 p. m., at which I presented the letter from Denver, with the clipping from the paper.

"After a pleasant conference, I presented our case, stating that my mission was not to obstruct war industry, but to conserve the florists' industry, as well as every other industry, as much as possible while the war was going on. They told me that I should have a written communication the next day.

"Therefore, I am enclosing you the official communication of the War Industries Board, which I trust you will print in full and which should reassure all florists."

The Government's Policy.

The following is the letter Mr. Gude received from A. W. Clapp, Chief of the Labor Section, of the Priorities Division, of the U. S. War Industries Board:

"You have called our attention to a letter, dated October 24, addressed to you from Davis & Whitney, attorneys at law, Denver.

"This letter states, among other things, in substance that a United States Employment Service agent in Denver has stated to men who are working as florists that unless they absolutely quit their jobs before November 1 they will be inducted into the military service immediately; further, that this covers every man between the ages of 18 and 56.

"If an employment agent made such a statement we think it was unauthorized. The fact that a man is employed in a florist's establishment would not, in all probability, entitle him to consideration for deferred classification on industrial grounds, but such a man, provided he is not a clerk in a florist's store, is not engaged in a non-productive occupation within the meaning of General Crowder's present work or fight order and would not lose his right to deferred classification on dependency grounds, or his order number, and be inducted into service because he chose to remain in his employment. This is in accordance with the present law and regulations.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

As experience is the best teacher, so do we learn fastest by an exchange of experiences. Many valuable points are brought out by discussion.

Good penmanship, spelling and grammar, though desirable, are not necessary. Write as you would talk when doing your best.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

Does Not Apply to Clerks.

"You will understand that this does not apply to a clerk in a florist's store who comes within the work or fight order.

"You will agree with us that the florists' business is among the less essential businesses. The need for most effectively utilizing the man-power of the country in the present emergency demands that so far as possible able-bodied men should be either in the service or in some war industry, and it is perfectly proper that such men should be encouraged by the Employment Service or by anyone else to get into a war industry. It is not, however, as we have said, proper to use as a means of compulsion a statement which is not justified."

A Shift Is Impracticable.

In a great majority of cases the shifting of labor from florists' establishments to more essential work has proved impracticable for the following reason: Most men still employed by florists are skilled in the business; they command good wages. They are not skilled in other work and they become unskilled workers, laborers, when they go into other industries; they are asked to take less pay than they now earn, to lower the scale of living for their families. The big wages of the war industries one reads about in the newspapers have been found not obtainable by the average florist who seeks a job in another business; they seem to go only to expert workers or those capable of extraordinarily severe tasks, not to novices such as the florists become when they change.

WOMEN IN MEN'S JOBS.

The Federal Community Labor Boards in the larger cities of the country have issued what they term "white lists" of jobs ordinarily filled by men, but which can be taken satisfactorily by women so as to release the men for war work. Listed among the "clerks" are those employees of flower stores who are unskilled in any labor except that of waiting on customers.

An appeal has been made to the employers of this class of labor to release the men and fill their places with women. At the same time, the labor boards have called upon the women of the cities to offer themselves for such employment during the emergency.

While an analysis of the labor that is employed in florists' establishments reveals that there are few, extremely few, men who are employed in occupations that come under those listed in General Crowder's work or fight order, there are undoubtedly some who should be working in the war industries. The government needs such men and patriotism demands that they be released and their places filled with women. But, on the other hand, the government does not desire to cripple the less essential industries by taking their skilled employees.

The test undoubtedly is that any work that can be done satisfactorily by an unskilled woman is not essential to the maintenance of that florist's business and the man should be urged to seek other employment.

CURE FOR ASTER BLIGHT.

We would like to know what spray to use for aster blight. We have tried lime, but it did no good.

M. A. T.—N. Y.

You will find Bordeaux mixture the best fungicide for all blights or other such diseases. Stone lime and sulphate of copper are used to make Bordeaux mixture. C. W.

Wichita, Kan.—Charles P. Mueller sent six messages to eastern florists for stock recently and received answers to four of them saying that the firms addressed would have no flowers to spare during the epidemic of influenza.

TIMING THE BUDS.

Please tell us how to get the buds on such varieties of chrysanthemums as Unaka and Marigold at the right date. Could they not be stopped at a certain time to bring the bud right?

D. & H.—Mich.

The question of stopping mums at a certain time has been frequently discussed, and sometimes the idea has been carried into effect by growers in Europe who needed varieties at special times. Years ago we tried this stopping or timing process, but did not have much success with it, due, we felt, to the fact that climatic conditions here are so different from those in Europe. The two varieties mentioned, Marigold and Unaka, are useless unless they happen to be caught on a crown bud. We have had excellent success with both kinds, propagating in April and retaining the first bud that showed, provided it did not show before August 1. A large percentage of the buds will come at the right time when so treated, and with fully as much satisfaction, I think, as if the timing process had been carried out.

MUMS UNDER CLOTH.

I am growing a good many chrysanthemums under cloth and should like to have a good formula for the treatment of the cloth, so as to make it warmer and also make it waterproof. Of course, I wish to use some solution that will not rot the canvas.

W. T. B.—N. C.

I never have heard of any formula for treating cloth used for covering chrysanthemums. Growers use the best white cotton cloth, stretching it tightly over a light framework. The sides and ends are treated in the same way. When the season is over, the cloth is carefully removed and laundered. Handled in this way, it will last at least three seasons. This covering is only meant to improve the texture of the flowers and protect them from the effects of dew, hot sunshine and light frosts. Any cloth treated with oil, or heavy enough to protect from a heavy frost, would make the space entirely too dark and shady for the chrysanthemums.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOWS.

There are two chrysanthemum shows in New York this week. The annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America is being held in conjunction with the fall show of the American Institute, at the Engineering building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street, while the Horticultural Society of New York is having its annual exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History. The former exhibition opened November 6 and extends through November 8, while the latter opens November 7 and continues through November 10.

At the American Institute exhibition the special prizes of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be awarded, besides the prizes offered by the Institute. The Horticultural Society of New York has its usual large premium list, offering cash prizes ranging from $50 down to $2.50 in the various classes.

The annual business meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society was held at the Engineering building November 6 at 8 p. m. The present officers of the society are: President, William W. Vert, Greenwich, Conn.; vice-president, Ernest Guter, Pittsburgh, Pa.; secretary, Chas. W. Johnson, Chicago, Ill.; treasurer, John N. May, Summit, N. J.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

Framingham, Mass.—J. T. Butterworth has fine success with Boston ferns grown in refuse peat roots up to 3-inch pot size, when the plants are shifted into 6-inch pots, with a mixture of peat and loan. Primula malacoides is allowed to bloom and drop seed upon a bed of soft coal ashes. In this manner enough seedlings are obtained to furnish several hundred plants. Flowering begonias are produced in a similar way. George Butterworth opines that the embargo placed upon orchids will stimulate the growing of seedlings and propagation of hybrids. Some beautiful varieties already are to be found here.

RUST ON CARNATIONS.

I have two benches of fine carnations that are attacked with rust and, as I am inexperienced in the business, I do not know what to do. There are just a few plants affected. They are of a strong growth, rather dense, and are beginning to crop. The soil is rich. They also have some red spider on them. What is best for them? Will you give me the latest on cyanide, or hydrocyanic gas? We grow carnations, mums, primroses, cyclamens, ferns, plumosus, Sprengeri, calla lilies, geraniums, vincas, ageratums, sweet peas, snapdragons, etc. Will the gas be injurious to any of them?

C. A. R.—O.

During the extreme heat of last July and August many carnations were attacked by rust. To combat this disease, you should produce just the opposite conditions and this is a good time to do it. Keep the water off the foliage as much as possible, syringing infrequently and only in the morning of bright days. Paint a steam pipe in each house with a mixture of lime, sulphur and water, using equal portions of the lime and the sulphur. Keep a crack of air on as long as you are able to maintain the proper temperature with one steam pipe in each house. Unless your plants are seriously affected with the rust, they should grow out of it under these conditions. We have used Bordeaux mixture for rust with good success.

To exterminate the red spider, use salt water. Order one of John Evans' salt sprayers and use it regularly once each week. This method of fighting red spider is especially adapted to cases like your own, where frequent syringing is inadvisable.

The only pest we use hydrocyanic acid gas on is white fly. This gas, in the hands of the inexperienced, is extremely dangerous to both the operator and the stock in the houses. Unless you have some pest which cannot be controlled with the ordinary methods, I would suggest that you leave the gas alone. The Agricultural Department at Washington, D. C., will send you a bulletin, giving accurate instructions for producing this gas, for the asking.

DUTCH BULBS

PLANTING BULBS OUTDOORS.

Autumn Activities.

While there have been long and vexatious delays in the arrival of Dutch and French bulbs this season, these are but minor matters when we consider the magnitude of the task our government and its allies have had in furnishing ship bottoms in sufficient numbers to send across a ceaseless stream of men, munitions and food supplies to the war zone. While bulbs are later than usual, they are, on the whole, in good condition. Of course the forcing stock needs our first attention, but with this out of the way, outdoor planting can be taken in hand at once. I have found November to be a splendid month for this work, as in November we have the time needed to clear the beds and benches of tender bedding plants, to cut down hardy perennials and prepare planting places for the hardy bulbs.

Preparing the Beds.

Avoid using any fresh stable or cow manure in preparing bulb beds. It will cause trouble every time. Let all manure be well decomposed and mixed thoroughly with the soil. Break up all hard lumps and get the soil in as mellow and well pulverized a condition as possible. This preparation pays in the long run. Bulbs in such a rooting medium always come more evenly and steadily than those in soil prepared in a haphazard way. Labor is scarce and I think customers would be willing to accept the most simple and at the same time the most pleasing arrangements, which means that beds of one color and variety, or clumps of one shade, should be planted, unless, perchance, a mixed bed of tulips is preferred, and such mixtures are really satisfactory.

Tulips for Bedding.

Tulips are the finest bulbs for bedding. Among the early whites, Joost Van Vondel, White Swan and White Perfection are all fine. The first named is the best of all. White Swan blooms just ahead of the cottage and Darwin varieties. Chrysolora and Mon Tresor are splendid golden yellows. Prince of Austria is a grand bedder. It is orange-red and sweetly scented. Keizerskroon but for its name would be more popular. It is the best of the red and yellow varieties and is always reliable. Cottage Maid does nicely for the pink beds, but Pink Beauty, while higher priced, is far ahead of all other pinks. In fact, it is in many respects the finest bedding tulip we have. Vermilion Brilliant is well described by its name. Sir Thomas Lipton is a superb, deep scarlet tulip. The foregoing are single varieties. None of the doubles are of much value for bedding.

Late Tulips.

Do not overlook the value of the late tulips for bedding. They grow taller than the early ones and are much more lasting. Beds of mixed varieties look well, but solid beds and clumps of one color are more satisfying. Clumps dotted in herbaceous borders are effective. They will flower far better the second and third season than the first. Try any of these Darwins: Clara Butt, Mme. Krelage, Gretchen, Rev. H. Ewbank, Farncombe Sanders, Glow, King Harold and Pride of Haarlem. Many of these Darwins have come in for Memorial day in former years and in this connection plantings of these May-flowering tulips, all of moderate price, will be found to be a good investment: Bouton d'Or, vitellina retroflexa, Gesneriana major, Gesneriana lutea, Picotee, Golden Crown and Inglescombe Pink.

Hyacinths and Narcissi.

Hyacinths and narcissi are of minor value for bedding as compared with tulips. Hyacinths have the advantage of flowering earlier, but their lasting qualities are not so good and they have a most unpleasant odor as they fade. The singles are much better than the doubles for bedding and one color to a bed is the best arrangement. If in early spring blue forget-me-nots or pansies are planted below white hyacinths, white pansies below blue hyacinths and yellow pansies below pink or red hyacinths, the effect is enhanced and when the hyacinth spikes are gone, there is a good ground cover to bloom until more tender plants are ready to take its place.

If, instead of planting narcissi in beds, they are arranged in clumps or long, narrow bands along herbaceous borders, they look much more attractive. Do not depend on the large trumpet sorts only, for the medium and short trumpet sorts are more graceful and in nearly all cases more winter-hardy and persistent. The most reliable of the large trumpet sorts are Victoria, Princeps, Emperor and Glory of Leiden.

Points to Be Noted.

Do not cover over bulb beds until the ground is frozen hard. We want to keep the frost in the soil and not to exclude it. A thick covering of leaves or other mulch given while the ground is soft means that growths will continue to push and when spring comes many breakages will occur in removing the mulch. Another point to consider is that field mice will raise havoc with bulbs, especially tulips, if the soil is open below the winter covering. These rodents are difficult to fight in the winter, even when their presence has been detected.

PANSIES MAKE POOR GROWTH.

I am having trouble with my pansies, which are making poor growth. I have no trouble with such things as radishes, onions, lettuce, cabbage and tomato plants, but the growth is short. I have used stable manure and bone meal freely, also lime. The soil is heavy clay. We have used nitrate of soda, but it makes the plants soft and light green in color. The beds were covered last winter and did not get much snow on them. Can you suggest a remedy for this trouble? C. W. H.—Mo.

Pansies should grow well in stiff soil, but will winter best if they are planted in beds a yard wide, which are slightly elevated. They would do better if your clay soil was ameliorated by the use of rotted horse manure, leaf-mold and sand, the latter quite coarse. This would make the soil more porous. The use of bone meal I cannot recommend, and nitrate of soda will do your plants more harm than good. It is all right for plants outdoors or indoors suffering from a lack of plant food, but not for small seedlings.

The use of lime in the fall, also plowing up the land and leaving it rough over winter for frost to pulverize and sweeten it, is recommended. Do not put any winter covering over your plants until the ground is hard frozen. Then apply a light coating of straw, hay, littery manure or leaves, which can be held in position by brush or by throwing a light coating of rotted manure over them, sufficient to prevent them from blowing away. C. W.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

HANDLING F. T. D. ORDERS.

Recently when we have been handling an immense amount of out-of-town orders, we have received several telegrams from retail florists, in the smaller towns especially, that they could not fill the orders, as they were sold out of flowers.

As the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association stands for service, and the best service that possibly can be given its patrons, the retail florists must look on these orders in a more businesslike way. The average retail florist merely sends a telegram to the florist from whom he received the order, saying that he is "out of flowers." This does not seem to be the right spirit, neither does it convey the message the customer wished to send.

This same proposition holds good when a telegram ordering flowers for a funeral arrives too late, or, as it happens sometimes, the day after the funeral. In many of these cases it is not a question of how much of a sale we can make, or anything of that kind. The main thing that must always be before the florist receiving such an order is to convey to the bereaved the message the friend sought to send with flowers—that is, let them know that the friend in a distant city had thought of them in their bereavement and fully intended to send flowers to the funeral, but through delay of the message or a shortage of flowers, the order was not carried out.

In such cases we always send to the home and let the circumstances be known. Then we suggest to them that, inasmuch as the order for flowers came too late, it would be a nice idea for them to accept a bouquet of flowers to make the house look more cheerful or to take to the cemetery the following Sunday. In most cases the people will take these suggestions in the spirit they are meant and there will be no disappointments. Albert Pochelon.

ONE FOR THE GROWERS.

It was with much interest that I read a letter in The Review for October 17, wherein a well-known retailer said he could not execute an F. T. D. order for less than $5 under the then prevailing market conditions, and I think his letter savors a little of complaint when he says that he has never experienced such a high market! This seems to be the general feeling among the retail stores.

Now, Mr. Retailer, don't you think it about time that the grower was getting some sort of a price? I own a range of approximately 35,000 square feet of glass; my wife, boy and myself work daily from 6 a. m. until 5:30 p. m., and, during mum, winter and bedding seasons, often until 9 p. m. What I draw out amounts to only $1 per day for each member of my family and the wife and son draw nothing. Beyond that, during the last two years, we have not made a cent; in fact, if a grower counts depreciation of greenhouses, buildings, etc., he will find he has been a sorry loser. We can't get a man for less than $4 per day, nine hours' work; $10 a ton for coal if we can get it; wood, $16 per cord; fertilizer, sky high; twine, 63 cents per pound instead of 23 cents last year; taxes higher; living higher—and yet the retailer kicks when the cut flower market is higher. Does he always want the finest grade of roses for 4 cents and excellent carnations for 3 cents and 2 cents? Does he think a grower can live and make money on extra fine mums at 10 cents each at the wages and coal prices of today?

Every industry, so far, has adjusted itself to war prices, so why must the grower be expected to get less than his share?

If any flower lover wants flowers, let him pay for them.

I think the best way the problem can be solved is for all the wholesalers to get together to protect both the retailers and the growers.

As a general rule, you will find the grower and his family a most hard-working lot, content to get three square meals a day and meet his bills—they are no squanderers. If I go out to buy myself an overcoat I am prepared to pay about $30, instead of $18. If I go to a show I am prepared to pay a war tax and pay also $1 for a first row gallery seat instead of the usual 75 cents, and when I forget myself and bring home a box of candy for some little occasion I know I must pay $1.35 per pound instead of the usual 80 cents or 85 cents. Why shouldn't the public, therefore, be prepared to pay in proportion for flowers?

In all fairness to the growers, there should be a minimum price set on every flower, adjusted by a board of growers, and then a scale of increase for quality. This would be a protection for the stores when there is a glut, so that the street venders cannot undersell them, and at the same time would give the growers a living wage. S. Kahn.

St. Joseph, Mo.—T. H. Best, manager of the Stuppy Floral Co., reports that this concern has been unable, during the rush of business due to the influenza epidemic, to supply half the demand from out-of-town patrons and from retailers in nearby towns, having all it could do to take care of local custom. The Haefeli Floral Co. has experienced a similar condition. Prices, meanwhile, have been soaring upward, to keep pace with the increasing cost of necessaries.

CUTTINGS DAMPING OFF.

I am sending herewith a few samples of geranium cuttings taken from my own outdoor stock, and also a little of the sand in which I attempted to root them. As you will see, the cuttings have rotted. After they were put in the bed of sand, they were thoroughly watered and the sand was firmed down. They were given no more water. No bottom heat was supplied, of course, as they were put in the sand in September. After being in the propagating bed three weeks, practically all of them have turned out like the specimens forwarded. Will you kindly tell me what is the matter? J. N. W.—Mass.

Your sand would be better if it were a little coarser. You can improve it by screening some coal ashes or charcoal through a ¼-inch sieve and incorporating this with your sand. I presume you used fresh sand, or sterilized that which had been used before. Bottom heat is not necessary to root geranium cuttings successfully. A good many growers put them in sandy loam in flats outdoors and get excellent results. A point to remember is that while nearly all cuttings need shade until rooted, geraniums should have full sun all the time. After the first soaking they should not be left entirely dry. Moderate waterings are needed to keep the cuttings plump. Once they are rooted, it is best to keep them moderately dry until potted. C. W.

TO ROOT GERANIUMS.

Will you kindly inform me through The Review as to the best method of propagating geraniums? I have been starting them in sand for years, but find this method unsatisfactory. Is it still considered proper to put the cuttings in pots immediately? W. B.—Mich.

Sand is the best rooting medium for geraniums. Perhaps yours may be too fine, in which case I would suggest adding some finely screened coal ashes or charcoal to the sand to make it more porous. Geraniums can be rooted in small pots of sandy loam singly, but at this season we can economize much on space if cuttings are in the propagating bench or in flats until mums and other fall crops are out of the way. Try this plan: Take ordinary flats four inches deep, place a layer of cinders an inch thick over the bottom, over this lay moss or leaves, then fill the balance with coarse sand: Soak well. Cut lines with a mason's trowel for cuttings. Place the flats in full sun on a shelf and water sparingly until they are rooted. You will have only a small percentage of damped off cuttings if you adopt this plan. Geranium cuttings should never have any shade. C. W.

KEEP ON FIGHTING.

Florists in France.

While the heads of the opposing governments are discussing the way by which an armistice can be brought about as a forerunner of peace, General Pershing's armies in France are continuing to hammer the Hun. So much territory has been regained by the allied forces recently that nothing less than an unconditional surrender of the Central Powers will satisfy many persons. In this fighting are many florists, who are doing valiant work. In the meantime the United States is not letting up in its preparations. More men are being called to the training camps. Whatever the news that concerns a member of the florists' trade, be he over there or over here, send it to The Review for its weekly war page.

Percy Hall.

Harry T. Hall, foreman at the State Nursery Co., Inc., Helena, Mont., is in receipt of official information from the War Department at Washington that his son, Percy Hall, of the American Expeditionary Forces, died recently of wounds in a hospital in France.

Percy Hall was well known and much liked in Helena, where he grew to manhood. Shortly after the entrance of the United States into the war he enlisted in Company F, First Army Engineers. He reached France in November, 1917, and participated in a number of drives, during one of which he lost his left arm.

W. T. Usinger Wounded.

Through a letter received by Theodore P. Langhans from William T. Usinger, well known to the readers of The Review as the writer of "Usinger's Utterances," his many friends will learn of the serious wound sustained by the former correspondent. However, he is convalescent and writes most optimistically of hospital conditions, entertainments, etc. Mr. Usinger is associated with the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and prior to going into the service was on the road most of the time. His letter, dated July 18, follows:

"Your letter of May 20 received today, having been forwarded from camp. It was read and reread with pleasure; for letters are the one thing which makes things worth while over here.

"I believe I wrote you before that I was in the hospital, an operation being necessary. This was in Paris, but now I am convalescing in another part of the country, the trip having been made in one of Uncle Sam's hospital trains, which, by the way, is a marvel on wheels. My stay in three hospitals has given me an insight into a phase of the war experienced by so many of the boys who have successfully gone 'over the top.' Believe me, it is not always a thing to look forward to with much courage. They have accomplished a great work to their own glory and for their country.

"Paris is a wonderful city. I was able to see a good bit of it, both on my arrival and departure. The latter was exciting to a degree as I lay in the ambulance, being sufficiently convalescent to move about and look out of the windows upon the streets. Incidentally the truck driver got lost and drove us around the city for two hours.

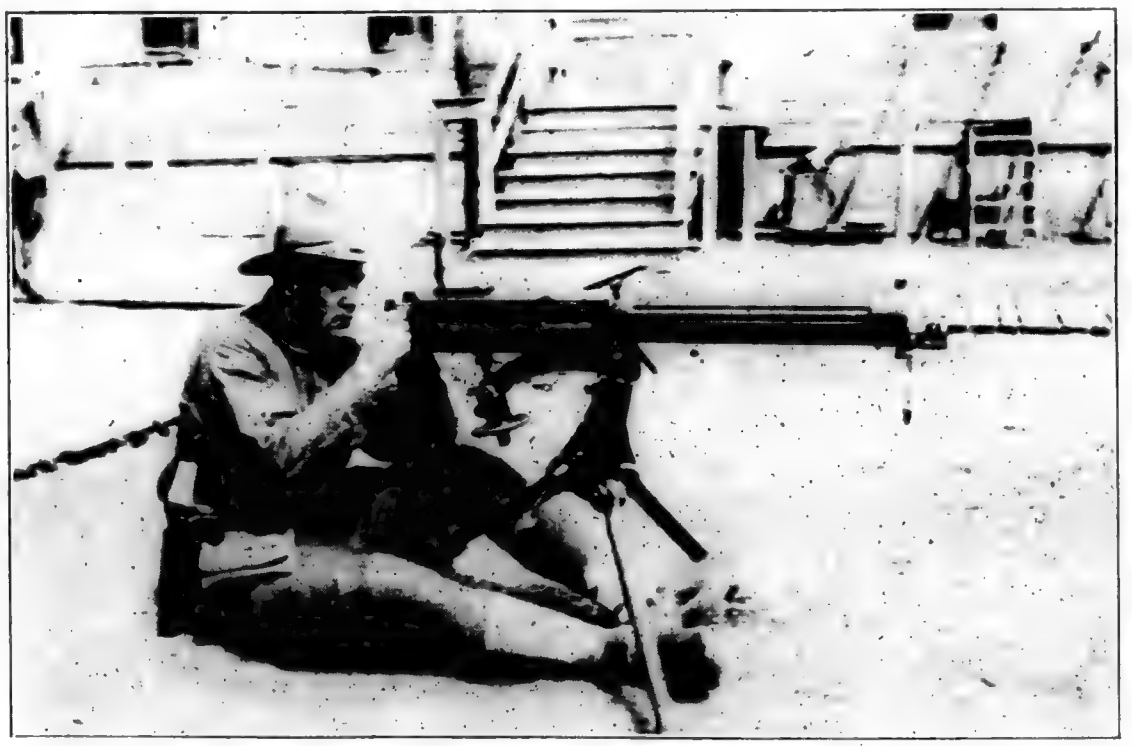
"This is the third day that I have been able to walk, and it is surely fine to be out again. How long it will be before I am able to get to work is uncertain, inasmuch as my operation was a double one and will require some time yet before I shall be really strong. However, if appetite has anything to do with the case, it should not be so long; for we surely do eat here, although I am not so heavy as when you saw me last.

"There is a good deal of entertainment here for us, but as yet I have not been able to enjoy any of it. Elsie Janis, Ella Wheeler Wilcox and many others are over here, as well as many good bands and entertainments of all kinds, including movies. Then there are plenty of good books and magazines, all supplied by the Red Cross, which is doing a great work over here."

GRAVE COVER FOR KANSAS.

I am trying to find a plant, myrtle or cemetery rose, suitable for a grave cover, which will thrive and grow with ordinary care in Kansas, something which might be sheared to a height of eight to twelve inches and used also in figure planting. C. S.—Kans.

There is some ambiguity about this question. It makes a difference whether the plant wanted is a hardy one or not. When one thinks of a hardy plant that will stand shearing, the mind turns naturally to the buxus, or boxwood, and ligustrum, or privet. Buxus suffruticosa, the form generally used for edging, would be best for the purpose, as it is a dwarf grower and will stand a shearing. Ligustrum amurense will stand shearing, but probably would be too rank in growth to suit. The Japanese juniper, with its dwarf compact growth, might also be suitable. Some of the retinisporas are good also, but their growth is rank. I could not say from personal experience whether all or any of these would stand the Kansas climate.



In plants that are not hardy, there is a greater selection, such as coleus, alternanthera, acalypha, achyranthes, all of which would prove satisfactory. The flowering plants par excellence for standing the heat and for growth are Vinca rosea and alba. These grow little over a foot high and continue in bloom all summer regardless of weather.

In addition to the recommendation of C. W. of Evonymus radicans as a cover for a grave, I would say that the common ivy is used most largely in the south for this purpose, and would doubtless give good results in Kansas. Pachysandra terminalis, from Japan, is a low growing, hardy plant that might be tried. L.

SCALE ON VINCAS.

Please advise treatment for scale on variegated vincas in the greenhouse. The plants are infested with aphis also. The latter, no doubt, can be exterminated with a nicotine spray, but this seems to have no effect on the scale. Lime-sulphur, such as is used on fruit trees, probably would damage the plants. H. C. B.—Id.

Spraying with a nicotine solution or fumigation with one of the tobacco papers will easily take care of the aphis on your vincas. The best plan is to give a moderate fumigation once in eight or ten days to insure cleanliness. Spraying with kerosene emulsion, Aphine or Black Leaf 40, with some soap added, will kill most of the scale. The scale will not fall off, but careful inspection will show that its grip is loosened. FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

INDOOR VEGETABLE CROPS.

[Seasonable notes on tomatoes and cucumbers appeared in this department of The Review for October 24 and on lettuces, water cress, mint and parsley in the issue of October 31.]

There have been many complaints of the quality of cauliflowers produced outdoors this year. This is no doubt due to the fact that we are now mainly dependent on home-grown seeds, as imports from Denmark have almost ceased. Under glass, where plants are not subjected to climatic vagaries, we have had no trouble so far. This may be due to the fact that we have grown but one variety inside, namely, Kronk's Forcing Erfurt, which is by long odds the best greenhouse variety. Several firms list various forcing cauliflowers, but they all prove to be good strains of Kronk's Erfurt. Cauliflowers require a similar temperature to lettuce and also need a generous soil. Last winter I grew Kronk's Erfurt 15x15 inches apart with the best results; 12x12 inches apart gave smaller heads and proved less profitable.

The seed is sown in flats and later transplanted into other flats and from there transferred to the beds. Some growers pot off the plants, but this is not necessary. Good heads can be produced in 6-inch or 7-inch pots by feeding the plants well, but this would not pay commercially.

Witloof Chicory.

The roots of Witloof chicory, the favorite salad plant, should be dug before the weather becomes too cold and packed in sand in a cool cellar. The tops make most delicious salads and are much appreciated. To force it successfully, the roots should be covered with moist sand or loam and then boxed in and kept perfectly dark. A warm house or cellar will force it successfully. The ideal place is a mushroom house, or cave, such as mushrooms are often successfully grown in. In order that there should be no damping where the roots are being forced, it is well to admit a little air from time to time, also to see that there is no drip which can start trouble. I have seen good Witloof chicory grown when a thick layer of sawdust has been applied over the crowns. This prevents any damping. Any other light covering would answer equally well.

A CLEAN SWEEP.

In these days of swift and sweeping changes, when political conditions affect the smallest details of domestic and industrial economy, the wise man or woman will be prepared to make the best of every situation that develops out of war-time exigencies. The cutting off of importations of bulbs doubtless will reduce the crops of Easter lilies and spring bulbous flowers generally and the resourceful florist will be alert to find substitutes for these items. In the effort to keep up the volume of stock requisite for the maintenance of trade, it is likely that there may be a shifting of standards and many flowers not heretofore kept in the limelight will be pushed forward to take the places of those which are found wanting or in insufficient supply. The substitution of callas for Easter lilies, for instance, may bring the former into the position of prominence which their beauty merits. At any rate, it is evident that callas can be moved now in quantities larger than most of the growers are likely to have on hand, by means of a little timely publicity. This is the experience of a Wisconsin grower, who had to call off his advertising because his callas were all taken so quickly.

Please discontinue my ad of Godfrey callas. I am all sold out. Your paper does wonders.—John Maves, Eau Claire, Wis., October 29, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

SPRENGERI AND PLUMOSUS.

Will you please tell me if there is a way to keep a bed of Asparagus Sprengeri or plumosus green, if the house is closed for the winter? The asparagus is in a solid cement bench, one and one-half feet high. Will it come up in the spring if buried under leaves and manure now? C. H. J.—Mass.

It is a doubtful experiment to try to winter a bed of Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus in a greenhouse without heat and especially so in the state of Massachusetts. Roots of smilax have been known to stand the winter as far north as Washington, D. C., but your winter is usually more severe. The experiment may be worth a trial, if you have the litter and the leaves for the purpose, but it would be best to ripen the plants gradually by using less water and more ventilation for a time before covering them. W. H. T.

FORCING HYDRANGEAS.

Please tell me how to treat hydrangeas during the forcing period. Ours always give us trouble because of light-colored and yellow leaves. D. & H.—Mich.

Assuming that your plants have well matured wood, they can be started any time after the middle of December. Keep them in a temperature of 45 degrees at night until they start to grow. Then give them 10 degrees more heat. Water them only moderately until they start into active growth, but spray freely. Once they are growing freely, an abundant water supply is needed. As the flower heads appear, feed once in four or five days with liquid cow or sheep manure, or a top-dressing of fine bone. If the foliage comes at all pale, give them some soot water or a weak application of nitrate of soda. If you will give your plants a light, sunny house, prevent aphis from troubling them, water them freely and feed as suggested, you should have healthy plants with fine flower heads. Other cultural points, such as the date to start plants for Easter and Memorial day, will be mentioned in the cultural columns of The Review from time to time. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

LATE-BLOOMING PERENNIALS.

Early November is late in the season for outdoor flowers, but this season frost has held off unusually late and a few annuals and perennials are still blooming freely. Among the perennials Aconitum Wilsonii, with its handsome spikes of violet-blue flowers, and A. autumnale, dark blue, are still in fine condition. Helianthus Maximilianii still carries quantities of its large golden yellow single flowers. It is an excellent subject for cutting. Anemone japonica alba, where well sheltered, is still (November 4) covered with its beautiful, pure white flowers. On delphiniums there are still some excellent spikes, where the plants were cut down as soon as the early crop had passed. Stokesia cyanea is still producing its large, beautiful sky-blue flowers and some of the asters are still presentable. There are also some spikes still appearing on the kniphofias. Among low-growing plants, Viola cornuta in variety is covered with flowers. This is the finest low-growing perennial we have and flowers persistently for six months. Many blooms of myosotis are in evidence, while some varieties of dianthus, Campanula rotundifolia, linarias and androsaces, to mention only a few, are still blooming freely and make the hardy garden interesting, even when "chill November's surly blasts have made fields and forests bare."

TO FOLLOW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

The mum season is now at its height and will rapidly decline. Some growers, owing to the reduced coal supplies, are planning to close houses when mums are cut and start up again in the spring. Others, however, plan to carry enough heat in their houses at least to exclude frost. There is no need to run temperatures for our staple crops as high as in former years. Experience last winter proved that both roses and carnations produced profitably when kept 10 degrees cooler at night than in former years. Production was smaller, but the quality was vastly improved. Our British cousins, with a far smaller coal supply than we expect, have proved the same thing. Suitable crops to follow mums are: Sweet peas, snapdragons, calendulas, mignonette and marguerites, all of which succeed in a comparatively low temperature. Single violets, pansies, double daisies and polyanthus can be planted and all will succeed well if kept at 38 to 40 degrees at night in winter. An even lower temperature will do no harm on severe nights.

HOUSING BAY TREES.

While bay trees are tolerably hardy, I do not care to subject them to a lower temperature than 20 degrees before housing them. They will withstand a good deal of frost. In fact, on one occasion our plants were left out late and exposed to a temperature of zero. They were then removed to a storage house and allowed to thaw out in the dark and they suffered no damage. It is not safe, however, to risk these plants in such a temperature and they are better placed under cover by the middle of November. Other subjects in tubs, boxes or large pots, such as aucubas, hollies, boxwoods, English and Irish yews, bay laurels, etc., should be placed under cover at the same time as the bay trees.

PLANTING HARDY ROSES.

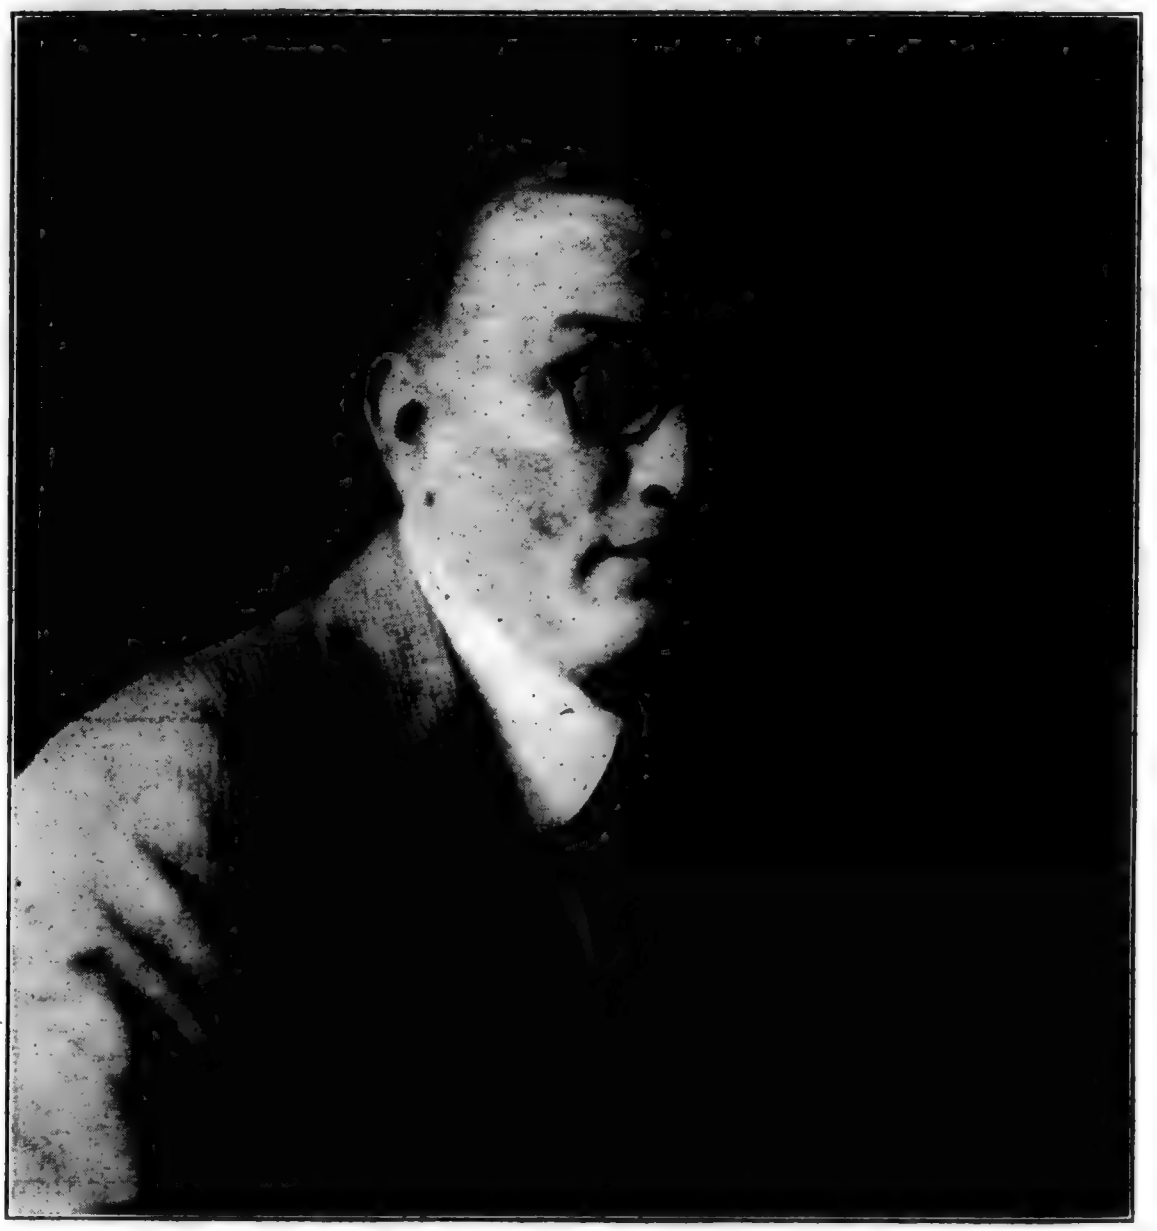
A comparatively small number of hardy roses are planted in the fall. Many more might well be set out now. An experience of nearly thirty years has shown me that both hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas, if planted carefully in November and well protected with loam, will winter splendidly and give vastly better results than spring-planted stock. This applies to grafted or budded plants, which are the only roses suitable for planting in the colder states. Firm the roots well, be sure they are moist, cover the grafts not less than four inches, tie up the tops and, before the ground freezes, bank up well with soil, later giving the ground a mulch of leaves, strawy manure or meadow hay. Try this fall planting and be convinced of its value.

LIFTING GLADIOLI.

If the gladioli are still in the ground, lift them without delay. We cannot tell how much longer the ground will remain open, with last winter's record still vividly before our eyes. Cut the growths back to within four or five inches of the bulbs. Quantities of tiny bulblets will be found attached to many of the bulbs. Save them and sow them in drills like peas next spring. Sowings of the primulinus hybrids made in this way will yield good-sized cuttings late in the season, some being still fresh the first week in November. Shelves in a frostproof but dry cellar are suitable for the storage of gladioli. They are better kept where little fire heat is used. Matthiolas should be lifted and stored away at the same time as gladioli.

FIGHTING THE CORN BORER.

The United States Department of Agriculture has issued an appeal to gardeners in the New England states to clean up their plots and burn all the dead vegetation as soon as possible after killing frost this fall. Destruction by fire of infested stock, stubble, garden plants and weeds after killing frost is the only known method of combating the European corn borer, a dangerous insect pest of corn new to this country, which has been found living in the corn fields of eastern Massachusetts.



If strenuous methods are not made to check this insect, according to the Bureau of Entomology of the department, it will spread to the great field corn producing regions of the country, do incalculable injury to the corn crop and materially reduce the prosperity as well as the food stocks of the nation.

The pest is not definitely known to occur outside of Massachusetts, but it is possible that it may be present in other New England states. The insect came from Europe and is especially injurious to corn in Austria-Hungary, where it has been known to destroy at least one-fourth of the entire crop in a single year. During the cold months it lives within the dead and dried stalks and roots of corn, the larger grasses, weeds and garden plants. Therefore the ease of destroying it at this time by burning garden trash of the kind mentioned.

Discovery of the insect should be reported immediately to the State Agricultural College or to the Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Waterbury, Conn.—Saxe & Floto, speaking of the great run in funeral work, state there were eighty-seven burials in one day in this city, and floral remembrances at each. They were fortunate in having the first crop of chrysanthemums in at the time. The new store, though somewhat smaller, is more favorably located than the former one.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

CHARLES H. GRAKELOW.

THE florists' business is so comparatively new that practically all of the men who have made notable successes in it have done so from a small beginning. This is the case with Charles H. Grakelow, Philadelphia. It was sixteen years ago that Mr. Grakelow decided to invest his small capital in the business. He rented a house, established his store in what had been the parlor and started in. Sales at first were slow, but his pleasant personality won him many customers and today his place at Broad and Cumberland streets is one of the finest in the country. Mr. Grakelow is notable for other things than being a florist. He belongs to forty different organizations, is a gifted speaker, and is fond of visiting far-off places. His descriptions of these places have delighted many an audience. A minimum overhead expense, extensive and continuous advertising and a gracious treatment of customers are Mr. Grakelow's rules for success in the florists' business.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The last week saw the finer grades of roses, including American Beauties, more plentiful, but the cheaper flowers remain inadequate in supply for the heavy demands of the market. The supply of chrysanthemums continues to increase, likewise the demand for these flowers; therefore the situation pertaining thereto remains relatively the same. Pompons are just beginning to come in, so it goes without saying that there are not enough of them, and the same may be said for carnations. There are a few lilies, but only a few. The first violets of the season have been coming in from Rhinebeck, but the prospect is that they will be no more in favor than for several seasons past. Greens of all varieties, particularly ferns, are scarce, and of outdoor stock there is nothing.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams and her manager, Harvey C. Sheaff, who are indefatigable workers in the common cause, have been having a continuous succession of distinctive patriotic displays for months past. The first, it will be recalled, was described in these columns during the early days of the War Savings Stamps campaign. It was during this special display that the custodian neglected one evening to remove the great bunch of exhibition stamps from their accustomed place in the corner of the window and, during the night, there was an unsuccessful attempt to cut a piece out of the plate glass, evidently in an effort to steal the stamps. Since then these valuable enemies of the Potsdam crowd have been carefully stored away overnight in the vault.

Thomas McKee Elliott left a few days ago to join the Motor Transport Corps at Camp Joseph E. Johnson, near Jacksonville, Fla., being succeeded temporarily in the town office of the Elliott Nursery Co. by his younger sister, Miss Helen Katharine Elliott. The latter, who has a pretty wit, says that the rest of the family who are not at war are at peace in the country counting French and Belgian bulbs, which are now rapidly arriving. The Elliotts, who are still at their beautiful summer home, Brook Lodge, near Springdale, Pa., expect to return shortly to their town house in the east end.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Demas are mourning the loss of their eldest child, a bright little 7-year-old girl named Katharine, who was buried October 31, as the result of heart failure. Mr. Demas, who is now proprietor of the Minerva theater, is well known by the florists and growers hereabouts through his former connection as manager of the old Pittsburgh Flower Exchange. He also continues to keep in intimate touch with many of his former associates through his brother-in-law, George Franks, proprietor of the Philadelphia Florists.

Another death affecting trade circles last week was that of Edward J. Hallam, of the north side, whose interment was also an event of October 31, death having been the result of pneumonia. He was a brother of Walter E. Hallam, who closed his flower stand in the Allegheny Market for several days last week.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. celebrated its twentieth anniversary informally during October with by far the heaviest volume of business in the history of the organization. The following young women are recent additions to the staff of this firm: Miss Josephine Clark, in the salesroom; Miss Roma Burki, as assistant bookkeeper, and Mrs. Kress and Miss Marshall, in the workshop upstairs.

Manager McMillan, of the Braddock and Duquesne shops of J. M. Johnston, made a hurried purchasing trip to town November 1. Mr. McMillan reports the serious illness of two of the Braddock employees, Mrs. Thomas Cavanaugh, who has just returned to business following a two weeks' detention at home, and her sister, Miss Cecelia Riley, who is still confined to the house. Both are victims of the prevailing epidemic.

C. C. Phillips also has just returned to his post with the McCallum Co. from a ten days' absence as the result of influenza. Edward J. McCallum, Homer Wood, manager of the supply department, and Edward Niggel, manager of the wire shop, took a breathing spell from their strenuous duties of the last month, November 1, spending the day on a hunting trip.

Miss Kathryn Antoinette has returned to her former position in the flower department of Kauffman's, preferring the more general trade there to the fashionable clientele of the William Penn hotel. Miss Antoinette has a happy faculty of "handling the crowds" of "The Big Store" that is not possessed by all saleswomen.

Through the instrumentality of State Game Commissioner John Phillips, known in Boy Scout circles as "Chief Silver Top," three barrels, or about 5,000 black walnuts were planted during the week in Allegheny county by the local organization under the supervision of the respective Scout and field executives, C. B. Shaler and Thomas Sparrow.

Samuel Matsukes has joined the staff of the Liberty Florists, with whom his cousin, John George Matsukes, has been identified for some time.

The recent presence of Mrs. Julius W. Ludwig in the store of the Ludwig Floral Co. is an admirable present-day illustration of the application of the biblical text: "The harvest is great and the laborers are few." Being essentially a "home woman," Mrs. Ludwig has no hesitation in saying that she is there from a stern sense of duty rather than from choice. If any further proof were needed that the establishment was doing its utmost in keeping the wheels of the floral industry revolving during the stress of the times, it is the fact that her husband has temporarily eliminated his weekly chat with the various press representatives. Mr. Ludwig has a keen perception of news which is second only to that of the trained journalist and it is largely to this fact that The Review is indebted for many choice morsels from time to time.

Like Mrs. Ludwig, Mrs. Michael F. Stafford, together with her two sons, John and Henry, is temporarily assisting Mr. Stafford at his shop on Smithfield street. Mrs. Stafford is noncommittal, but the attitude of the youngsters would suggest that parental authority rather than choice is holding them on the job. They are "banned" from school, owing to the order of the board of health, and it is a question whether they consider school or the flower business as the lesser evil.

Milton Alexander was a recent visitor in the city, representing a ribbon house of New York city. E. E. S.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business continues good, but is showing signs of easing up. The supply is sufficient for present needs. Shipping business is holding up well.

Roses are plentiful. Carnations are in fair supply and Easter lilies may be had. Chrysanthemums are here in quantities; although the local cut is not so heavy as it was for a fortnight, still it is large and includes excellent stock. Pompons are on the market and some valley is seen, but it finds a poor demand. Greens are in fair supply.

Various Notes.

Miss Laura Murphy reports that the Christmas Fund committee has over $400. Florists are urged to send in the names and addresses of all local boys in the service of Uncle Sam in either the military or naval forces.

C. E. Critchell has cleaned up almost his entire stock of wire goods and supplies during the last few weeks.

Among recent visitors to the trade were Harry M. Gregory, Reesville, O.; J. H. Broxey, Dayton, O.; J. T. Herdegen, Aurora, Ind., and Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.

L. Davis is now in charge of Peter Weiland's salesmen in this city.

PRIMULA POISONING.

From time to time the question arises of how to deal with poisoning from Primula obconica. It may be stated here that an authority says that it is the sharp hairs on the plant that produce the irritation. Careful handling, therefore, may be a way to avoid bad results. A number of remedies and recipes have been offered in previous issues of The Review for primula poisoning, the most effective of which are given below.

One says: "A few applications of peroxide of hydrogen gave me relief."

Another advises the use of thick sweet cream as an ointment. This is said to be a sovereign remedy.

Sugar of lead is claimed by others to be the most valuable treatment for this trouble. One recipe directs that it be dissolved in water, while another calls for alcohol. The alcohol solution is the antidote recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for rhus poisoning.

Several cures are reported to have resulted from the use of tincture of bloodroot, which should be applied freely.

Luytie's Pinus ointment as a local application and sulphur and cream of tartar, in the proportion of two parts to one, respectively, as a blood purifier, with a nourishing diet, is a treatment highly recommended for either primula or ivy poisoning.

Be sure that you do not light your pipe while using this one: Rub the affected parts with a solution made by dissolving two ounces of camphor in one pint of gasoline, before putting the hands in water. Another application before retiring is helpful.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business continues heavy. The last week was at least as good as the week preceding. The mercury registered 30 degrees November 2, the cold weather making an end of outdoor stock. Business for All Souls' day was good, but it would have been better had the day been celebrated as usual. There was no observance of the day, owing to the ban on public meetings.

Roses and carnations are in fair supply and their quality is good. Mums are plentiful and of fine quality.

Various Notes.

The Evansville Nurseries report that they are getting many orders for planting shrubbery throughout the city. They have a fine stock of the new pink salvia and are getting good orders through advertising in The Review.

Karl Zeidler is cutting fine mums, roses and carnations.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting roses, principally Ward, Ophelia, Russell and Columbia. The last-named is doing so well that he expects to propagate as many as possible of it, as he intends to plant heavily of it next season. He is beginning to cut sweet peas.

Niednagel & Sons have cut down considerably on production and will run only four houses this winter, owing to war conditions.

Theodore Kuebler had many bunches of mums for All Souls' day, which sold readily for $1 per bunch.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting fine mums, roses and carnations.

Royston & Fenton have a fine stock of coleus, Easter Greeting and ferns.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann is tired out after the rush. E. L. F.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are now in the market in great quantities and of excellent quality. Dahlias have disappeared, due to heavy frosts last week. Roses have been fairly good, with Columbias leading other roses in quality. Fine American Beauties are to be had. Pompon chrysanthemums are of unusually good quality. A number of potted plants, begonias, chrysanthemums and primroses are now in the market. Orchids are in wonderful condition. Although stock is coming in great quantities, florists are compelled to call on out-of-town markets to supply the demand.

Various Notes.

A number of florists were extremely busy due to the celebration of All Saints' day. A pretty display of potted mums and other potted plants, as well as cut flowers, was pleasing to all who entered the greenhouses of Adam Heitz, Jacob Schulz, J. V. Bohrman and a number of other florists.

C. B. Thompson has been extremely busy with local orders and never before in the history of his business has he had so many telegraphic orders, incoming as well as outgoing.

Mrs. M. D. Reimers finds funeral work keeping her busy.

Narcissus bulbs have made their appearance on the market, to the satisfaction of all florists, as well as their customers. L. K.

DOINGS IN DIXIE

SAVANNAH, GA.

Up to the last of October we had fine, mild weather, but November brought cold days. The temperature fell to 40 degrees and we had a light frost. October was a dry month, which was good for outdoor flowers. We grow two acres of Cochets in the field and they have been good all summer, and especially so this fall. Our dahlias were good and plentiful. We are still cutting them every day. Cosmos also was good, but it is gone. Now we have some field-grown mums that we are cutting from and they are useful right now, as stock is and has been so scarce. Owing to the "flu," we had many orders for flowers for the sick as well as for funerals. The funeral orders have been so numerous that we had to work at times twenty-four hours at a stretch to get orders out on time, and this condition continued for at least four weeks. We have filled as many as 200 orders in a day. We have a good territory around Savannah, and the flowers were wanted in every direction. Our indoor mums, such as Chieftain, Mrs. Robinson and Charles Rager, we had to cut half open. We grow many mums indoors and I do not think that we ever had a better market for them at better prices than now. We grow seven houses of them in all, 30,000 single-stem and 5,000 with several on a stem, including pompons.

We grow 20,000 roses indoors, such as Mrs. Russell, Ophelia, Radiance, K. A. Victoria, White Killarney, Aaron Ward, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty and some Sweetheart. Mrs. Russell is the best paying crop; next comes Ophelia, and then Radiance.

We grow 10,000 carnations, such as Mrs. Ward, White Enchantress, Beacon, Victory, Rose-pink Enchantress, Enchantress and White Perfection. They all look well this year and we are cutting a good many. They bring 5 cents at wholesale, and retail at $1.50 per dozen.

Had it not been for the sick and for funeral orders, I think we would have experienced a dull season. So far as social functions are concerned, there is nothing doing. We have had a number of weddings, but they were "Hooverized." The people are not buying flowers unless it is necessary. Still we look for a fair season. We are not making money and have not made any since the war, but on the other hand had to borrow till we could adjust ourselves to conditions. But for the last eighteen months matters have been mending, and we do not think we shall have to go out of the florists' business, which we would not like to do, after being in it for twenty-four years. I hope we shall not experience anything like these war-time troubles again as long as I am in the business or after.

The help proposition was another thing, but I have been fortunate. I managed to keep half of my old help. There were twelve of them, and I raised their wages to double what they had had and my pay roll now is double what it used to be.

The other florists have been in the same straits. Three of them gave up the struggle, so there are only four of us left in the business—A. C. Oelschig & Sons, A. W. Richardson, J. M. Breckenridge and myself.

I must mention that the express service is the worst that I have ever known. It is impossible to get things on time.

John Wolf.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds is improving, both in quality and quantity. Business for the last week has been about normal, but the month of October was the largest in the history of the Knoxville florists. Chrysanthemums continue to be the leaders, both in supply and demand, but we have not seen a single matured bloom this season. Roses are off crop, but carnations are more plentiful and the quality is much better. Outdoor pompon chrysanthemums are gone, as we have had several heavy frosts with some ice. The cooler weather is welcome, as we have had some sultry, rainy weather, which has a depressing effect on everyone.

Various Notes.

The first immortelles arrived in Knoxville some ten days ago and most of the stores are stemming and making up Christmas wreaths, urging sales now for this kind of stock in order to cut Christmas work down to some extent.

The first shipment of bulbs arrived last week and they are selling readily.

There is a great increase in the sales of baskets for funeral work, on account of the scarcity of wire designs.

A. N. Dailey had an attractive Halloween window.

A. J. McNutt continues to do a rushing business.

C. S. Custer, the Gratz street florist, has been doing a nice business and cleaning up each day.

Mrs. Rosa Hall Ryno continues busy and was compelled to turn business down during the last ten days.

D. R. Mayo received a shipment of bulbs last week and reported heavy sales.

Baum's Home of Flowers reports the largest month's business in its history.

K. P. B.

Leesburg, Fla.—J. Anderson, Jr., deals in florists' supplies. His specialty is magnolia leaves.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—C. Curlee has been ill with pneumonia since September, but is recovering.

Durham, N. C.—R. Hibbard has been in the florists' business in this city for thirty years. He is still connected with the Hibbard Floral Co., of which his son, Christy N. Hibbard, is in active management.

Auburn, Ala.—W. C. Cook has severed his connection with the Rosemont Gardens, at Montgomery, Ala., and taken the management of the greenhouses of the Auburn College, where a commercial department is maintained along with experimental work.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

According to all reports, the epidemic of Spanish influenza is waning, but as yet places of amusement, churches and schools are under quarantine. The ban is expected to be lifted within a week. The florists have been exceptionally busy during the last five weeks, but this last week there has been a decided falling off in our business. This report comes from all of the uptown florists, not one of whom has experienced any such rush as during the few weeks previous. Stock consequently is plentiful and prices are getting down to normal. A good many more flowers reach the market from outside growers, among them being a quantity of chrysanthemums. Beautiful stock is seen in Unaka, Chrysolora, Pacific Supreme, Rager, Golden Glow and Halliday. A fine lot of pompons is seen, as well as a good showing of single varieties of mums. There is, however, a scarcity of the little yellow pompon so far this season. The demand for roses is not so great as it has been, but the shorter-stemmed stock has cleaned up well. The quality of the roses arriving is fine, the mild weather having helped them. Ophelia, Sunburst, Columbia and Russell sell well. Red varieties, such as Scott Key and Hoosier Beauty, have dragged during the last few days. Double violets arrive daily, but the demand for them is not large. Easter lilies are not plentiful, nor is the demand so large as it should be. A few good gladioli continue to arrive and sell well. Dahlias have been in good demand, but the frosts ten days ago made an end of all the small buds. They have not been nearly so plentiful this season. Carnations show a decided improvement in quality of late and are at present in fine condition. The stems are short, but the most of them are used for funeral work. A few outside flowers continue to arrive, among them being fine cosmos, gaillardia and a little candytuft. African marigolds and calendulas are useful for basket work. Some fine snapdragon is seen. Potted mums, pompons, gloxinias and primulas, combined with an excellent assortment of crotons, berried plants and ferns, are seen in all the stores and are selling nicely. In the wholesale markets the demand for supplies of all kinds has been active during the last week or two. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., called on the trade during the week and spoke in glowing terms of his new rose, Premier. He says that business is remarkably good with his firm, and his trip thus far has been successful indeed.

The business, stock and fixtures of the late Paul Campus, of the Rosery Flower Shop, on Clinton avenue south, have been purchased by E. Kendig, of the Floral Art Studio, of Oswego, N. Y., who has taken possession and is doing a fair amount of business. He will continue to run both stores.

An artistic window decoration was seen at the store of the J. B. Keller Sons this week, which was composed chiefly of yellow pompons and violets. A few highly colored crotons were noted here, as well as numerous baskets of flowers.

H. E. Wilson during the week had a splendid lot of chrysanthemums at his store on Main street, which included Alice Day, Touset, Golden Glow, White Turner, Chrysolora, Fairy Queen and Minta. Business has been exceptionally brisk with this firm, but a falling off in both funeral and wedding work has been noticed during the last few days.

Harry Merritt, of the Boulevard, has a splendid house of carnations, which are in fine condition. There is every evidence that his winter crop will be large.

The hearts of many of the florists have been cheered this week by the arrival of Dutch bulbs. Several of the growers have received a large part of their orders and are making every effort to get them into the flats as early as possible. George T. Boucher had a pretty window arrangement for the week-end, in which lavender pompons and chrysanthemums and pink bouvardia were featured. Some fine Bird's-nest ferns also were seen. Arrangements are well under way for the chrysanthemum show, which takes place during the week of November 3.

Mrs. Arvilla Smith has been added to the sales force of the Rochester Floral Co. Miss Ellis, who has been sick for two weeks, expects to return to the store in a few days. Edwin P. Wilson, Jr., has been helping out during the rush.

The Greeks who have stands along Main street have been inactive during the rush, owing to the fact that flowers were so scarce and expensive. The trade they cater to looks for inexpensive bouquets for cemetery use chiefly.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The end of the week finds market conditions quite the reverse of those of the last three weeks. There is any quantity of stock to be had, except for the shortage of Easter lilies and orchids. The demand for funeral flowers has dropped off all of a sudden and in counter sales there is no important activity. Excellent roses are accumulating. The spot-light flower, however, is the chrysanthemum. The supply of these is good and indications are that the market is overdone on yellow, with a shortage of pink and white existing.

Roses arriving are all of good quality, with Sunburst, Russell and Ophelia in the lead. Flowers and stems are of good substance, making them satisfactory keepers. Special American Beauties do not find the market open to them. This, of course, is due to the supply of chrysanthemums. The Beauty buyers are taking advantage of the mum season. The short grades are used in baskets and funeral bunches.

Violets are finding an unseasonably slow market. They are of good size and form attractive bunches. The only fault that can be found with them is that they are off color.

Various Notes.

C. F. Christensen, of Eggertsville, is marketing some extra fancy pompons. The varieties are Mensa and Golden Mensa. There is nothing to beat them.

Felix Alberts, of Rochester, was in the city November 4. Mr. Alberts has been ill. He said he did not know what was the matter with him, but, judging by the disagreeableness of the thing, he thought it might have been the "flu."

F. P. A.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Business has been brisk here for the last few weeks, with funeral work the heaviest in history for the month of October. Stock is more plentiful now, but it was hard to get a couple of weeks ago. The early mums were cleaned up before they were half ready for cutting and there was a scramble at all times for them. Roses are more plentiful and prices are down somewhat. Carnations are coming in larger quantities and are demanding a good price. Lilies are scarce, but a few callas are coming in now. Sweet peas are in and are filling in nicely on corsage work. Some violets are coming, but the demand for them is rather light at present. There never was such a quantity of mums used so early in the season. Some growers had them in early and they brought top-notch prices. They still are moving in fine shape and some good stock is to be seen. Chadwicks, Bonnaffons, Roman Golds and Chrysoloras are in full swing at this writing. Potted plants are scarce and it looks as though they will be all winter, as a great many growers have cut them out entirely.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens, E. Metzmeier, Underwood Bros., T. J. Ludwig and James McKellar all report that business has been excellent, although they were handicapped by a lack of stock.

During the influenza epidemic a great many soldiers died at the barracks and government depot here, while a number of the Columbus boys, who died at the cantonments, were sent home for burial. These conditions brought a great amount of funeral work.

J. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Most of the local florists have been busy during the last week with funeral work, due largely to the epidemic of influenza and pneumonia. The transient trade is beginning to pick up now, though it is not brisk. There is practically no decoration work, because of the ban on public meetings of all kinds. Chrysanthemums now coming into the market are of excellent quality. There are also more varieties than there have been before this season. Dahlias are much more plentiful and are of good quality. The cold nights are beginning to cut into the supply of cosmos, although this flower still is plentiful.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros., of Broad street, have been so busy with funeral work recently that it has been necessary to keep open evenings several times a week.

Henry Hornecker, Central avenue, reports good business. Located near a cemetery, but not opposite the entrance, he has not done so much funeral work as some of the other florists, but the large number of burials will mean more work for him later, when the graves will be covered for the winter with evergreens, and in the spring.

OBITUARY

Samuel E. Taylor.

Samuel E. Taylor, for many years in the trade at Springfield, O., succumbed to an attack of pneumonia October 22. He is survived by three brothers, William D. Taylor, of Jackson, Mich.; John D. Taylor, of Holdrege, Neb., and Frank Taylor, of Springfield, O., and a sister, Mrs. Lillian K. Bragg, also of Springfield. He was a member of the Springfield lodge No. 33, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and of Mad River Encampment No. 16 of the same order. He also belonged to the Yolo Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men.

Hazel Morton.

Friends in Los Angeles and all over the United States, in fact, will sympathize deeply with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., in the death of their daughter Hazel, which occurred at Camp Cody, Deming, N. M., from pneumonia, October 28. Miss Morton was a nurse and had gone to Deming only a short time ago. She formerly had been located in Los Angeles. Knowing this noble girl and her parents as the writer did prevents doing justice to her memory. Words cannot express one's sympathy at such times and we can only hope that time will soften the blow.

H. R. Richards.

John R. Johansen.

After an illness of only ten days, with Spanish influenza, which developed into pneumonia, John R. Johansen died October 28. Mr. Johansen was only 25 years of age. For the last year he had been with the Bernard Johansen Seed Co., San Francisco, but for the four years previous he was with the Hunter Seed Co., also of San Francisco, seed growers. Fred H. Hunter speaks of him as one of the bright young men of the seed growing business, one with everything to make life worth living, and one whose death casts a shadow of sadness over the ranks of those in the seed producing business on the coast.

William Wood.

William Wood, for many years horticultural inspector of Los Angeles county, California, and since horticultural commissioner for the same county, died recently at his home in Whittier, Cal., at the age of 70 years. He probably was the most widely known of all the inspectors. As a proof of the esteem in which he was held by the nurserymen and others in the city of Los Angeles, members of the trade got together when the post of commissioner became open and recommended him unanimously for this office. The Horticultural Society also was solidly for him. That the choice was a good one has been shown by the smooth running of the work in his hands. A gentle, unassuming man, he had the respect of all who knew him either in a business way or as a friend. Apparently he had no enemies. His long experience in horticultural work and his study of insect pests and other matters pertaining to his work led many people to seek his advice, which was always freely given. The funeral was held at Whittier Heights cemetery October 28.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With the abatement of the influenza epidemic and the consequent smaller call for flowers for funeral work, the general demand has dwindled to a point really below normal. In all lines the market is well supplied and there is an accumulation of stock which is hard to move. The warm weather last week pushed everything forward, and gave new life to outside flowers. There is an abundance of chrysanthemums and pompons and clearances of arrivals are difficult, even with liberal concessions in price. Greenhouse varieties are unusually plentiful, many of the later sorts having made an appearance already. It is not often that Bonnaffon is available for Halloween requirements, but it was the case this season. There is a strong probability that the chrysanthemum cut for Thanksgiving will be lighter than for some years.

Violets have suffered severely on account of the heat, most of the arrivals being almost worthless. Carnations are more plentiful and do not move readily; the best are bringing as high as $3 per hundred, but the majority go for less than $2. Much of the stock is undeveloped, evidencing anxiety on the part of shippers to rush it into market. Roses are not so heavy in supply; consequently prices have not materially changed. The quality is a little better, owing to a drop in temperatures in the last few days. Orchids are a little lighter in supply, but the demand for them is also lighter; 35 cents is about the minimum price for cattleyas. Calendulas, cosmos, bouvardias and tritomas are coming in quantity, but their movement is sluggish. Lilies are in good supply, but have fallen in price considerably; the top is now $12 per hundred and fairly good flowers can be had at as low as $8. Lily of the valley is on the scarce side, but the best is bringing only $8 per hundred. There is every sign of a change to a more seasonable temperature, and frosty nights will have the effect of cutting out a lot of stock the market can well afford to lose.

Various Notes.

The fuel situation is improving, some florists think. It is certain that the Fuel Administration is disposed to be a little more lenient. An order has gone forth that florists who can use coal in sizes less than No. 1 buckwheat may use all they can get, irrespective of the fifty per cent restriction. Agents representing Pennsylvanian mines, which are not in a position to supply regular domestic sizes, are offering run-of-mine soft anthracite, screened once, at $5.50 per ton at the mine, and appear to be anxious to book orders for immediate shipment. While this quality of coal is not so good as the regular hard coal, it can be burned in ordinary grates and would help out in emergencies.

Samuel Parlew, of Spiwak & Parlew, the lily growers, of Elmhurst, L. I., died November 1, of pneumonia, following Spanish influenza.

The damage occasioned by the fire at the store of the New York Florists' Supply Co., October 24, was fully covered by insurance.

Commissioner William F. Grell, of the park department, is personally directing the work of removing sod on both sides of the Mall in Central park, where extensive flower beds are to be laid out. The beds are to occupy a frontage of about 800 feet on each side of this broad walk, and are to be about five feet wide. The beds will be completed this fall in readiness for spring planting.

Morris M. Cohen, formerly with Arthur Schloss & Co., has joined the sales force of Cohen & Hiller.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

P. Popken, Orange, N. J., speaks most optimistically regarding future business. Funeral work and wedding decorations are unusually plentiful with him. "Although the growers handed out a few lemons in the way of short supply at long prices, we shall yet live and flourish," decided our worthy confrere.

* * * *

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., are paying particular attention to the growing of palms, realizing that the prospects of importations from Europe for possibly some years to come are remote. Belgium and London have furnished the bulk and as the houses in the vicinity of Bruges and Ghent are probably in the bombed area, one can imagine their condition.

* * * *

Edward Sceery, Paterson, N. J., reports good business, both at the Passaic branch and the home place.

* * * *

E. A. Lorentz, Middletown, N. Y., is confined indoors as the result of a chill, caught while glazing some ventilators. "Too much cold air," commented his genial sisters, both excellent workers in the business. They also report an exceedingly busy time. The bulk of the chrysanthemums have been used for funeral work. Owing to shortage of help, but little disbudding was done; consequently there are smaller blooms and larger numbers of them, but they came in handy this season. This is the condition with many retailers who grow for their own trade.

* * * *

Anson V. Norton, Somerville, N. J., remarked the other day that he never had had so strenuous a time as of late with shortage of help and material; but the crest of the wave has passed and, with the new supply of flowers, it will be easier sailing henceforth.

* * * *

Charles L. Stanley, Plainfield, N. J., has discovered that Livistona rotundifolia makes a fine house plant. Cyclamens in bloom are seen in the store window and will doubtless be big sellers this winter.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

No florist can fail to rejoice that the German militarists now are to take schooling in the three R's—restitution, reparation and renunciation.

WITH the war nearly won, with the "flu" on the wane and with the fuel restriction order nearly off, we may all be thankful and prepare for Thanksgiving.

FOR the last four or five months it has been the general opinion, even in the east, where coal was scarcest, that the labor shortage is more important than the fuel situation.

MOSS is one of the items it will be well to conserve. The season's supply practically is out of the swamps and the quantity is much smaller than usual. If we don't save moss we shall be out of it before spring.

AMONG the bad habits of plantsmen is that of holding, unacknowledged, until the next batch of stock is ready, orders received in excess of those which can be filled at once. Curiously, some of those who do this when they are sellers, holler hardest when they are buyers and the other fellow fails to answer letters about the non-arrival of needed stock.

ONE of the paper-saving orders of the War Industries Board makes it obligatory for publishers to stop sending the paper when the subscription runs out. Any publisher who does otherwise risks his business life. The Review now sends its request for renewal three weeks before subscriptions expire. To avoid missing a copy, renewals should be sent promptly Back numbers are not available.

THE PINK PART.

None of the features of The Review have proved more successful than the Pink Section, devoted exclusively to the advertisements of florists who are prepared to fill orders for local delivery as received from florists at a distance. The pink paper has made it possible to open the magazine directly to these advertisements; the index by towns takes one directly to the page. It is by far the handiest arrangement thus far devised and the Pink Section is in universal daily use. Like this:

During the last week I have consulted the Pink Section of The Review several times a day and I want my Shoppe to be represented.—B. S. Fearn, Elyria, O., October 31, 1918.

For mechanical reasons it is feasible to print only sixteen pages in the pink section. It looks as though the section might soon be filled to its capacity.

A CHANCE TO CLEAN UP.

The tremendous demand and unusually good prices during the month of October afford an opportunity the good business men in the trade will not let slip by. It gives a chance to clear the books.

For many men operating greenhouses 1918 has been a hard year. It began with the worst winter ever known. Few greenhouses produced the expected revenue and expenses rose alarmingly. During the summer it has been necessary to make large investments in coal for the approaching winter. Bills have accumulated. Collections in the trade have been slow.

But improvement was noted in October, and in November the trade has the best chance in a long time to get the books cleared. Collections should be good. The public has bought flowers as never before; there has been no waste; good prices have been obtained; retailers, if they look after their collections as they should, will be able to pay their bills. Passing the money on, everybody will be placed in a more comfortable position than for many months.

Don't neglect collections this month.

THANKSGIVING PROSPECTS.

With turkeys soaring around 50 cents a pound and every loyal American requested to forego the toothsome Thanksgiving treat so that "our boys over there" can have the one thing that will remind them of home, there is going to be a somewhat different celebration of the holiday in the homes of the United States this year. But there is one thing that goes with Thanksgiving that everyone can have in greater measure than ever before and that is the chrysanthemum.

Because of fuel and labor restrictions, a great majority of the growers this year planted heavily to mums, planning so that after the crop is harvested the houses can be closed. Consequently, mums at Thanksgiving will be even more plentiful than usual, but the demand for flowers is greater, so that there will be no chance that the big supply cannot be moved.

Already the S. A. F. has opened the advertising drive for the sale of chrysanthemums this season. A full page advertisement in color appeared in the November issue of the Metropolitan magazine. It is up to every florist to get the benefit of this national advertising by calling attention to it in his local newspapers; post the page in color in his store and in the windows and keep the latter filled with a display of seasonable flowers, with mums predominating.

Just because there is a heavy supply of mums, as it seems certain there will be, there is no reason to cut prices. Keep the price up, but make the stock move by intensive selling methods. Advertising is the one best bet at times like these and as most people have more money than ever before, the holiday should bring bigger and more profitable business than in the years gone by.

COAL SITUATION EASES.

Observers of the situation have noted a steadily easing tendency in regard to coal ever since the new season opened. Scarcely an issue of The Review has appeared without some item indicating that the lusty admonitions of the Fuel Administration were merely the beating of the big bass drum to call the crowd; the restriction orders were so much more drastic than there was need for them to be that relaxation steadily has followed the development of supplies in excess of the demand.

The handling of the situation by the authorities has not been wholly to the liking of the trade. In the first place, the restriction order came so late in the season that many growers had made commitments which would have caused them considerable loss had the situation turned out to be as serious as the authorities then said it was. On the other hand, numerous growers who have closed or even demolished greenhouses under the belief that a strict compliance with the restriction order was necessary now pay the penalty for their loyalty and faith; it is too late for them to save themselves a loss.

It must be said, however, that we all are better off that the situation has turned in this way than we would have been with a repetition of last winter's heatless days. Also, there is no question that, high as coal prices are, they would have been much higher had it not been for the government regulation.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Such a market as that of the first week in November deserves more than passing comment. The like of it seldom, if ever, has been known in Chicago. If we have not already turned the peak of the chrysanthemum season, we shall do so within a few days, as the varieties now most conspicuous in the market are Bonnaffon, Chieftain and Chadwick. Not within the memory of the oldest inhabitant have chrysanthemums brought such good prices during the height of their season, nor have the prices of other flowers been so little affected by the heavy supplies of chrysanthemums. The prices of mums are not so high as they were before the heavy midseason cuts came on, but they are much higher than during the same time last year; reports show that the averages are anywhere from fifty per cent to 100 per cent higher than for the last week in October and the first week in November last year. Much of the difference in comparisons with last year is accounted for by the quality of the stock. The market is heavily supplied with low-grade flowers, with a comparatively small supply of strictly high-grade blooms. Consequently, the strictly fancy stock is commanding double last year's prices, with the lower grades showing up less well. But they all clean up and for the small stuff to bring better prices than last year is remarkable when it is considered what great extra quantities of mums are being grown all over the middle west in houses it is planned to close when the crop is cut.

Pompons are in heavy supply and are the cheapest flower on the market today. An enormous business is being done with them, for it is the one item in which the buyer's idea of price can be met.

It is a matter for comment and congratulation that the prices of other flowers have held up so splendidly during the height of the chrysanthemum season. Beauties have been somewhat affected, but the price is stiffening again. Other roses are selling at much better figures than the market has been accustomed to during chrysanthemum season and carnations also are bringing unheard-of prices for this time of year. It is all the more remarkable when one considers the blow the city trade suffered when the health department put on its "flu" quarantine, now happily withdrawn.

The retailers are doing a business above normal and are well satisfied, everything now being in their favor and most stock plentiful enough to go around. Funeral work with them continues good and, although not so heavy as it was a few weeks ago, it is above normal. Shipping business continues as heavy as ever and there seems to be no let-up in the demand for flowers outside the city. Present indications point to a record-breaking Thanksgiving business and the wholesalers seem worried that there will not be enough stock for all needs, although everything will be in good supply.

All varieties of roses in all lengths of stems are about equal to orders and the quality of the stock arriving continues excellent. An excellent grade of calendulas continues to come in, but the supply is short of the demand. Pansies are in heavy supply and meet with a steady call, but the call is not quite large enough to absorb the supply. There are plenty of single and double violets, rather more than the demand calls for, as the violet has not its old-time popularity for street wear. The quality of the stock is good. Gladioli have finally disappeared from the market, but asters still hang on. Carnations are coming in larger quantities. A better quality of stock comes in each week, but as the supply increases, so does the demand and there are not enough to answer present needs. The shortage, however, is not seriously felt, as it is made up by the big supply of pompons.

There is a supply of valley sufficient for the demand. The quality of the stock is good and it brings a satisfactory price. Orchids are in increased supply, but do not fill the demand. Prices, however, have dropped, which is one of the reasons for the extremely heavy call for them this week. Easter lilies, as for many weeks, continue on the short side, the steady demand keeping up. The quality continues excellent and the price remains stiff. Rubrum lilies are in good supply and answer the demand. There is a light supply of calla lilies and sweet peas, but there is no special demand for them at present.

The greens situation remains unchanged. Everything is plentiful, with the exception of ferns, but prices are up. Boxwood has made its appearance on the market and meets with a good call.

October Business.

The month of October made a new record in this market, one which will be hard to beat. Practically everyone did more business than in any previous October and a number of wholesalers report the largest month's business ever done, exceeding even December, which for the last several years has been the big month of the twelve. Some of the increases are phenomenal, running up to more than $1,000 for each day in the month; the month's increase for some of the larger houses not so long ago would have been a good month's business for any of them.

The retailers also did a big business; sales were large, but some of them complain that the profits were not in proportion, due to the high cost of stock.

We are opening the way to Better business for you with an increased supply of stock and lower prices.

October Weather.

September and October reversed the usual order of things this year, the former month being exceptionally cold, while the latter was exceptionally warm. The monthly report of the U. S. Weather Bureau at Chicago shows that the mean temperature during October was 57.4 degrees, or 4.2 degrees above normal and 12.2 degrees over that of October, 1917. The highest temperature was 80 degrees October 5 and the lowest was 37 degrees October 31. The precipitation for the month was 2.94 inches, while the normal is 2.55 inches. There was only a trace of snowfall during the month. The percentage of possible sunshine was fifty, while the normal for the month is sixty. There were nine clear days; eleven partly cloudy; eleven cloudy. There were twelve rainy days. There were no heavy or killing frosts. Altogether it was an exceptionally good month for the growers.

Reinberg Reëlected.

Peter Reinberg, florist, received another wonderful testimonial of popular esteem November 5, when he was reëlected president of the board of county commissioners by a majority of more than 20,000 votes.

Various Notes.

A large vase of Rose Premier, from the Hills, of Richmond, has been a center of attraction at the store of the E. C. Amling Co. for several days. The growers like the looks of this novelty and many of them think it will displace Russell, on which a number of them already have cut down.

J. Bombenger, who has run greenhouses and a store on Woodlawn avenue near Sixty-fifth street for many years, has closed up and discontinued business. It is reported that in years gone by he accumulated a moderate competence, but that recently the business had been losing money and that he closed up rather than suffer inroads on his savings.

Carl Ehrhardt, one of the Park Ridge growers, says that his crops of pansies and violets are better this year than he has seen them in many years and that no trouble is experienced by the wholesaler in selling this stock. One of his specialties is daisies, which are coming into crop and already are being cut. These he considers also of exceptionally fine quality.

Charles H. Fiske, in commenting on business conditions, says that, even though the recent health department orders cut down his funeral work, in spite of this his business is about normal and that he has every reason to believe that in a short time rushing business will be on again. Mr. Fiske adds that it takes "some" business to keep his many motor delivery cars busy.

Frank Schramm, the Crystal Lake grower, accompanied Paul Klingsporn down motor row one day last week in Mr. Klingsporn's car with no intention of buying anything, but while in one of the motor salesrooms, Mr. Schramm spied a car that looked so good to him that before he left he was the owner of a Stearns-Knight.

H. B. Kennicott, of Kennicott Bros. Co., has returned from Clearwater, Fla., where he has been on a business trip for several weeks.

Paul Klingsporn, together with Andrew Benson, of the Lombard Floral Co., and Fred Stielow, of Niles Center, both shippers to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, spent Sunday, November 3, at Richmond, Ind., visiting the Hill establishments. The purpose of their visit was to see the new rose, Premier. They were so favorably impressed with it that both growers bought a heavy supply of plants.

Charles A. Moravek, who has been in the florists' business for many years, on West Sixteenth street and more recently at 3226 Ogden avenue, has

The Market.

The wholesale market showed great improvement during all of last week. There was a large increase in the supply of stock, while the demand was considerably better. Halloween and All Saints' day brought an extra demand for stock, and the retailers had an excellent call for funeral work. Now that frost has killed the outdoor stock, the supply should be more steady. The chrysanthemum season is now in full swing. Pompons, too, are coming in quantities and meet a big call. The height of the mum season will come in a short time, when the crop of the later varieties will be cut. Roses are of fine quality and large consignments arrive daily from the local growers. Such varieties as Columbia, Ophelia, Russell, the Killarneys and Mock sell readily at moderate prices. Carnations, also, have shown improvement in quality and quantity, while the demand is increasing. They clean up daily. All the Enchantress varieties have the call, with Beacon the most popular of the reds. The colder weather has brought better color and stems to the violets and the demand is excellent at all times. Lilies, orchids and valley are in limited supply at present. Good smilax has advanced to $3 per dozen strings, while all other greens are in large demand.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting November 14 at the salesrooms of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. An exhibition of cut chrysanthemums will be staged at this meeting. President Hummert is making an effort to secure a large attendance.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

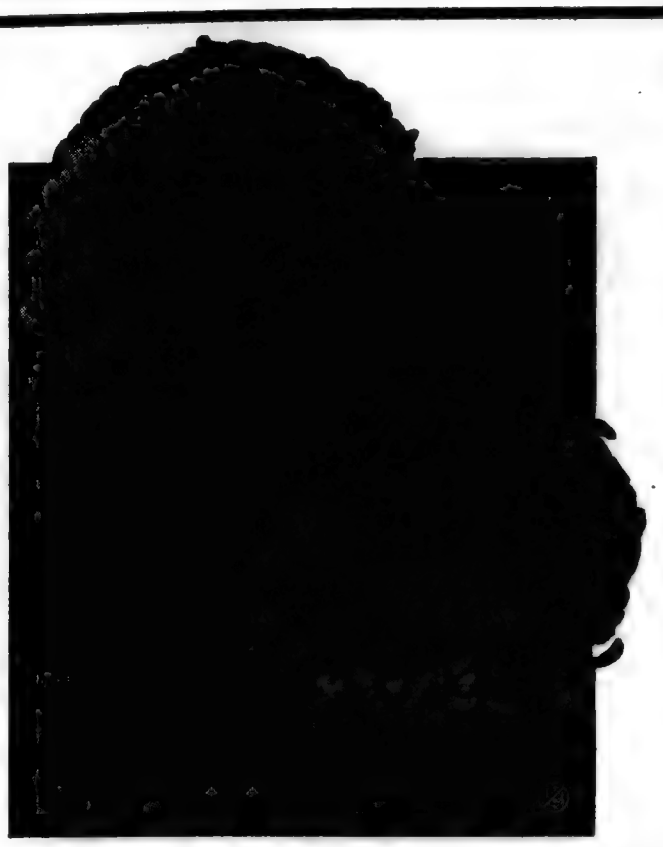
The week ending November 2 left a surplus in the cut flower market. Dahlias for the most part have been stopped because "every dog has his day," or, to be more explicit, because they were becoming scarce and poor and because there were more than enough good flowers without them. Cosmos has shared the same fate to a lesser extent. Violets, carnations, roses and pompons are in oversupply.

Chrysanthemums of course are the leading flowers of the day. This is the height of their season. The curious thing is that the fancy chrysanthemums sell best, at what ought to be remunerative prices. We are told that the rich are not buying flowers; that their money goes to the Red Cross and to other war work and that the great middle class are supporting the market. Yet how the great middle class can pay prices that enable the buyers to pay 50 cents wholesale for Turner and 33 cents for Bonnaffon passes comprehension. The probable solution is that there are fewer fine chrysanthemums than usual and that their support comes partly from the wealthy class and partly from those who have profited by the war. At any rate, choice chrysanthemums are good stock. Favor is enjoyed, also, by the select and medium grades, but, unfortunately, not by the pompons. Their time should come later. Careful observers think that the chrysanthemum season is one week ahead of time, owing to the warm weather. They predict that, unless the thermometer during November registers lower than usual, it will be extremely difficult to hold chrysanthemums in good condition until Thanksgiving. The early varieties are over and also some of the mid-season varieties, with a number of the growers. The market is fairly well supplied with colored stock, but it is short on white. This condition is explained by several wholesalers as a between-variety stage, when one good sort is going out of and another just coming into bloom.

The violet growers have been sending in heavy shipments, the last outdoor picking, it is said, and they have not been wanted. The waste has been the more exasperating because they would have been of such value earlier. Carnations, too, have been in oversupply. It has not been possible to sell them all, even at reduced prices. Roses have got back into the "job lots for leftovers" class, so common at this season. There is a larger supply of roses than usual in chrysanthemum time. Pompons have not replaced dahlias so quickly as it was expected they would. Even the indoor-grown stock exceeds the demand.

While more plentiful, sweet peas are not yet much of a factor in the market. Orchids are fairly plentiful. There is a moderate supply of the mixed varieties, dendrobiums, oncidiums and vandas. Callas have come. Easter lilies are falling off in numbers and they have declined in price. Halloween and All Saints' day did not seem to make any special difference.

Summing up, the market is fully up to standard for the season, but is dull by comparison with the extraordinary weeks that preceded this one.



The Bulb Situation.

The seed houses in this city that have so large a part in the distribution of Dutch and Freneh bulbs for this territory are in a difficult position today. They have received a portion of their stock. It is of excellent quality. So far, so good. But they do not know when the balance is coming, or even whether it will come at all. Without it, orders cannot be filled. For instance, an order calls for Belle Alliance and for Yellow Prince tulips. The red tulips are here and go out without any apology; but there are no yellow tulips and nothing can be learned of their whereabouts. Paper White narcissi are far short of the demand, and so it goes. The seedsmen are just doing the best they can, getting out their orders as far as possible, and hoping the balance of the bulbs will get here mighty quick, despite dark doubts raised by the rumors of their being at the bottom of the English channel. It is said that the fine quality of the Dutch bulbs is due to the fact that the poorer ones and the cheaper varieties have been ground up for cattle food for use "over there."

The Lifting Smoke.

Now that October is past and the smoke of battle has lifted, a view of the field is of great interest. October was the most extraordinary month ever experienced by the cut flower market in this city, probably in any city. No holiday month that held either Christmas or Easter ever equaled it in the volume of business done in cut flowers. This business was due, unfortunately, almost entirely to illness and to death. It was done in the face of enormous difficulties. It came at a time when open-air production was on the decline and greenhouse production was not yet in full swing. It came at a time when labor was scarce and when fuel was restricted; worst of all, it came at a time when sickness was rampant and it came in a rush without warning, so that no one was prepared.

The extent to which the influenza affected the workers themselves is not generally known. A number of stores were closed for days, even weeks at a time, because there was no one well enough to look after business. The wholesale houses were so short-handed that it was impossible to wait on the customers on the floor, to answer the telephone or to attend to the telegraph orders. Customers who occasionally visited their chosen retail florists would come in frequently, always for remembrances for the departed. One customer left nine such orders at one time. The representative of a business house which makes a practice of sending flowers on such occasions left a $50 order one day, two $35 orders the next day, two $25 orders the third day, two $15 orders the fourth day and on leaving he remarked that this pace could not be kept up.

The dahlia undoubtedly filled a place that it has never before occupied. Without the dahlia, many, many orders that were filled would have been refused. Even yellow dahlias were used for the departed.

The difference between October, Christmas and Easter from a price standpoint was the length of time that prices remained at the high-water mark. Flowers did not have to be cut and saved and sorted that they might be at their best on a given day. They were wanted all the time for several weeks. If not at their best on arrival, why, the purchaser just took them anyhow, with little question about price. Most of the time the wholesale houses were absolutely bare of any material whatever. The florists' supply houses sold everything in the shape of a wreath, even to those in their sample cases, to say nothing of quantities of crepe and wax flowers. The retail shops rarely had unsold stock in sight.

The benefit to the business, deplorable as was the cause, was enormous. It was limited with the growers to production; with the wholesale houses, to receipts and their ability to handle them under extraordinarily difficult conditions; with the retailers, to their ability to turn out work. There were times both in Camden and Chester when only two of the retail flower stores were open.

This, then, is a brief record of this month of October in the Philadelphia cut flower market. While no one hopes that it will return, it has been an experience and it has taught a lesson. Let no one say that flowers are not essential.

Employing Empty Greenhouses.

The following suggestions have been prepared by the Henry F. Michell Co.:

On account of the restriction on the use of fuel for greenhouse heating, many florists will have glass that is destined to be idle. It could be turned into profit by adopting some of the following suggestions, which can be undertaken without expense of fuel:

1. Greenhouses are an ideal place to raise chicks, which will grow into early spring broilers to be disposed of at big prices. Greenhouse-reared chicks, without any heat except that furnished by the hen or brooder, will be ready for the market weeks in advance of those hatched out under a hen or in an incubator in the usual way. They will get the full benefit of sunshine and fresh air and yet be out of danger of drafts, rain and rodents. We would suggest incubators to be set in the cellar during October for January broilers, and in February for April broilers. Why not try it? Chicks will not require much care and will do no damage to the greenhouses. Besides, it is a patriotic move and one that will be approved of by the government.

2. In November you can sow radish, lettuce and spinach, all of which mature before cold weather sets in permanently. Also, rhubarb can be taken up from outdoors, planted in solid benches and covered with light manure. In February it will start and in a few weeks will furnish an abundant crop that will yield big returns.

3. In February onion sets can be started for early green scullions. Beets, too, may be sown then and be ready for market by April 15, just when the seed is generally sown outdoors. Carrots sown in February mature quickly. Many florists for the period of the war will find it profitable to utilize their glass not heated as market gardens, as fresh vegetables always command a ready sale at a good price. The following are the varieties suggested:

Radish, Cardinal Globe, red.
Radish, Icicle, long white.
Spinach, Bloomsdale.
Rhubarb roots, Victoria.
Lettuce, Grand Rapids (leaf).
Lettuce, Big Boston (head).
Beets, Crimson Globe.
Carrots, Rubicon.
Onion Sets, White Silverskin.
Turnip, Snowball.
Parsley, Covent Garden.

4. Early vegetable plants, such as tomato, cauliflower, cabbage, head lettuce, pepper and eggplant, can be had from seed sown in March and these find a ready sale in almost every community where a garden space adjoins the dwelling. Let's all be optimists and make the best of what we can't rule otherwise.

Roses, Mums, Pompons

BOSTON.

The Market.

The closing week of October brought with it an unusually high temperature and sent along all greenhouse flowers with a rush. As a result, supplies increased heavily and, with a demand smaller than a week previously, if anything, a sharp drop in prices resulted. November is proving cool and seasonable and flowers of improved quality, compared with a week ago, now are arriving. The death rate here now is about normal and the demand for funeral pieces shows a considerable decline. Roses have taken a considerable drop, with short-stemmed stock as low as $1 per hundred. This compares with $8 to $10 per hundred three weeks ago. All grades of roses show a large drop in values. The same holds good for carnations. For these $3 per hundred is now top price, except for fancy grades of Laddie and Rosalia. Chrysanthemums now dominate the market and are in heavy supply. These have declined proportionately to other flowers.

The heat last week spoiled many violets, but good-grade flowers now are coming in. Pansies are abundant. So are snapdragons. Lilies continue scarce.

ASHBORNE GOLDFISH & SUPPLY COMPANY

Mention The Review when you write.

Bouvardia is of good quality, but the colored varieties sell rather slowly. Cattleya labiata is abundant and cheaper. There is a good supply of oncidiums and cypripediums. The demand for asparagus continues fairly good and there is an improved call for potted plants. Chrysanthemums are now good and nicely flowered cyclamens, begonias and Primula obconica are offered. There also are berried solanums and a fine assortment of crotons.

Various Notes.

George Ellsworth Comley, second son of Henry R. Comley, the Park street florist, arrived safely in France October 26. He is an instructor in aviation repair work. Mr. Comley's eldest son is right up on the firing line. Mr. Comley reports business as good, but he is glad the tremendous rush of funeral work is over.

October proved a dry month, with a precipitation of less than one inch. Only on four previous occasions has the month proved so dry in 101 years. Temperatures show an excess of 118 degrees for the month. The last four days of the month Boston had the warmest wave of October weather ever known. Minimums did not fall below 60 degrees during that period and maximums reached 80 degrees. The warmest night the minimum was 69 degrees.

Mr. Margolis, of H. M. Robinson & Co., states that October business reached the highest figures of any month since the firm started in business. So tremendous was the call for wire frames that orders could only be partially filled with a large staff working overtime making them.

Henry Penn gave a most interesting address before the students of the Burdett Business College October 29. He spoke on the conservation of flowers, its uses and abuses, and gave practical demonstrations through assistants of how to arrange flowers artistically. His address was listened to with great interest. September business at the Penn store was more than double that of a year ago and October business was nearly double. Window decorations of mums, crotons and oak leaves are effective.

The Waban Rose Conservatories, in addition to splendid shipments of Russell, Hadley, Stanley and Ophelia roses, are cutting the finest single-stem mums coming into the Boston market.

Galvin's had some handsome floral designs for the funeral November 2 at Brookline of A. Paul Keith, head of the Keith chain of theaters. In the window decorations cattleyas, oncidiums and chrysanthemums are principally used.

The extreme heat the closing days of October raised havoc with violets. Kidder Bros., specialists in these flowers, had 2,500 of their flowers ruined one day and there were others in the same predicament.

The autumn tints on trees and shrubs have been superb this season, thanks to the clear skies we have had. There have been extra large attendances on recent Saturdays at the Arnold Arboretum, where Professor J. G. Jack has conducted the interested visitors and has pointed out the numerous highly-colored plants in this famous collection.

Recent letters from Stanley W. Hall, one of which was published in last week's Review, state that he has recovered from the machine gun bullet wound in his leg and is back on the firing line.

The many friends here of Superintendent F. C. Green, of Roger Williams park, Providence, are glad to learn that now he is at home convalescing from a recent serious operation.

The Boston Coöperative Market elected these directors at its annual meeting October 26: W. R. Holden, J. M. Cohen, Robert Montgomery, J. A. Simpson, D. Carmichael, Elijah Cartwright, Norris F. Comley, William H. Elliott and John McFarland. Mr. Carmichael was reëlected treasurer and Mr. McFarland secretary. Messrs. Cohen and Holden are the new members of the board.

Wheeler & Co., of Waban, are cutting a splendid crop of Cattleya labiata. They also have a fine lot of Dendrobium formosum giganteum coming in.

William R. Morris, of Wellesley, is passing cigars. It is a boy this time and the mother and William R., Jr., are doing nicely.

C. S. Andem, of Putnam, Conn., is sending in an average of 3,000 carnations daily, about half of which are Matchless.

J. H. Leach & Son, of North Easton, are this season having excellent pansies, in addition to their staple crop, which is carnations.

Bulb specialists are busy boxing up and potting their shipments, which have arrived in good condition, considering the length of time they have been en route. At the seed stores stocks are cleaning out rapidly.

William Anderson, superintendent of the Bayard Thayer estate, South Lancaster, has been more fortunate than many of his fellow craftsmen on the labor question, having had for some time a number of German prisoners from Camp Devens, men taken from the interned German liners. These men are in charge of armed guards and have been employed largely of late in assisting nearby gardeners and fruit growers in securing their crops. W. N. C.

The Market.

The big rush of funeral work during the last three weeks was still unbroken last week, many of the retailers reporting the demand heavier than during any preceding weeks.

Chrysanthemums are increasing steadily, with many single varieties making their first appearance of the season and some handsome specimens in the doubles being shown. Pompons were never so plentiful, and are eagerly welcomed. Chrysanthemum plants are shown in every color and shade and they move rapidly. The rose market is in better condition than for some weeks, Russell, Shawyer, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Columbia being plentiful and of especially fine quality. There are few lilies to be had and those available are quickly bought up at a good figure. A large percentage of the funeral designs, especially wreaths, are made up of galax, oak or magnolia leaves. The demand for baskets is exceptionally heavy. The supply of ferns is not nearly large enough to satisfy all wants. A few single violets, the first of the season, are arriving. Outside of the demand for funeral work, the call for flowers has been slack.

Excellent chrysanthemums, roses and lilies are being featured at the store of the Freese Floral Co., from their greenhouses at New Haven, Ind.

The month of October this year far surpassed the same month of any previous year, or any other month in fact, in the large receipts of both the wholesale and retail florist, due, of course, to the unprecedented amount of funeral work.

The recent government ruling given out by William F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., allowing florists their full allotment of coal, was received with much relief by the florists of this city, many of whom had planned to close down at least half of their greenhouses on account of their inability to procure enough coal to run their entire ranges throughout the winter. Steps are now being taken by local growers to procure their full allowance and to produce to their utmost capacity this winter.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

During the last two weeks Toronto florists have had probably the busiest season for the time of the year in the history of the trade here. Some idea of conditions may be obtained when we state that the number of deaths was 1,881, as compared with 445 for the same period last year. Of these 1,881 deaths, 307 occurred before October 12. Until recently, also, stock has been scarce, so that it was practically impossible in many cases, and actually so in some, to meet the demands, which were chiefly for funeral work. Stock is more plentiful now and trade conditions more nearly normal.

Various Notes.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club is holding chrysanthemum shows November 8 and 9 at all the local shops.

John H. Dunlop has been hit the hardest, perhaps, of any of the trade here by the influenza epidemic. Lloyd Whitmore died with the disease after an illness of only four days. George M. Geraghty, manager for Mr. Dunlop, has been away from business for two weeks and will not be able to resume his duties for some days yet. His assistant has been away for three weeks and is now recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia. At one time all but two members of the staff were on the sick list.

J. S. Simmons also was hard hit in having his staff reduced by illness.

Mrs. Moore, of the People's Florist Co., was ill for two weeks with pleurisy.

Thomas Manton received word November 1 that his son, who is in active service in France, was suffering from shrapnel wounds in the head. We are glad to state, however, that the wounds are not considered serious.

H. G. Dillemuth's family left for the south November 1.

Visitors to the trade last week included E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and Harry Brant, of Wertheimer Bros., of New York city. J. J. H.

Greenford, O.—Carl Clay, who has been ill with typhoid pneumonia, is recovering.

Warren, O.—Frank H. Adgate, of Adgate & Son, working upon a floral harp to the tune of $25 the other day, observed that funeral work had, of late, been unusually plentiful, with a preponderance of harps. Opening a box of roses and reading the slip, he expressed the belief that the wholesaler was looking after his grower's interests, adding that sometimes the price slips acted as a stimulus to a corresponding advance at retail, giving the retailer backbone, so to speak. Mr. Adgate frankly admits he never misses a number of The Review, realizing the valuable time absorbed in its compilation and, with him, it has a corresponding value.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Pasadena, Cal.—The flower show scheduled for October 25 and 26 was postponed.

Spokane, Wash.—Lewis Krohn, employed at the greenhouses of A. J. Burt, was injured October 26 in an automobile accident. Mr. Krohn was taken to the emergency hospital.

San Diego, Cal.—The San Diego & Arizona railroad published a notice in the local press that flowers for Camp Kearny would be received between the hours of 9 and 10 a. m., October 9, for delivery at the base hospital, stating that members of the San Diego Floral Association would be in attendance to receive them.

Portland, Ore.—The illustrated lectures of Howard Evarts Weed on civic improvement are receiving highly favorable press comment in the cities and towns visited by the landscape architect. Mr. Weed shows the importance of beautifying the waste places of a municipality not only for the sake of the scenic effect, but from the standpoint also of increased real estate values and better business conditions brought about by attracting more people to build their homes in well kept places. The moral effect of proper surroundings and the spirit of civic pride developed by making the most of the possibilities that lie dormant in every locality are other arguments set forth with graphic emphasis from appropriate views thrown on the screen. Mr. Weed is an interesting and convincing speaker.

BIRD-OF-PARADISE FLOWER.

Will you kindly tell me the correct name of the plant from which the enclosed leaf was taken? In this locality the name generally heard is bird-of-paradise flower or lyre-bird flower. The plant seldom blooms here, but the occasional flowers that it does bear are unique and striking. The leaf enclosed is an unusually small one.

W. E. K.—Cal.

The species commonly known as the bird-of-paradise flower is Strelitzia Reginæ. The leaf submitted was so dry and discolored, on arrival, that it was impossible to identify it positively. Except in its comparative smallness, however, it bears a general resemblance to the leaves of Strelitzia Reginæ. The leaves of the latter average nearly a foot long, or about twice the length of the enclosed specimen, but the inquiry states that the specimen is unusually small. The leaf-stalks of S. Reginæ are all radical; that is, they all grow from the root of the plant. Its flowers are orange and purple and are curiously shaped; the bracts are described as "large, spathe-like and boat-shaped." Altogether they are odd enough in form and color to be called "unique," as in the query. The plants do not bloom regularly unless provided with good conditions, including a rich soil and plenty of water.

INSECTS IN WALKS.

I have sent you some insects in a jar, with the cover screwed on securely, and I trust they will arrive safely. These insects appear by the million in our greenhouse walks, climb up the legs of the benches and then disappear. Can you tell me something about them, their name or class and whether they are friends, foes or neutral? T. J.—Ore.

The insects forwarded in the jar came duly to hand. I am unable to determine just what they are. Fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas would seem to be the best remedy. You might destroy multitudes by pouring hot water over the walks; if the water contained a little nicotine, it would be all the more deadly. If you would use a force pump and spray the walks and the space below the benches well with kerosene emulsion, or one of the nicotine preparations like Black Leaf 40, with some soap added, you probably would get rid of them.

C. W.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Another week of the influenza epidemic has resulted in a lengthy death list, with its consequently large amount of funeral work. The rush has been so great that extra help has had to be put on in practically all the stores and the regular staff kept working to the limit. Mums have helped out in this time of stress, as it was impossible to get other stock wired up in many cases. Turners, Bonnaffons and Appletons are the best offerings now, the bright-colored Harvard and the pink Maud Dean also being on the list. Roses are more plentiful also and there is a better supply of carnations and small flowers. Giant marigolds are fine for shipping and make a good show. Dahlias are past their prime, but as long as the weather keeps open there will be some of them. Callas are in, coming to the market much earlier than usual, and there is some demand for them for shipping, owing to the lack of Easter lilies. The brake shortage continues.

Various Notes.

The death of William Wood, commissioner of horticulture for Los Angeles county, is noted in the obituary column, as is also that of Miss Hazel Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz.

A. Francis, manager of the Western Orchid Co., of Alameda, Cal., was among the visitors this week. He formerly was located in this city and in San Diego and has been looking up old friends.

Harry C. Soekle, of the F. Lichtenberg force, has changed his name to Harry C. Morgan and would like his friends to note that fact. Mr. Morgan, it will be remembered, came to Lichtenberg's some years ago from Podesta & Baldocchi, San Francisco, after being with this firm from eight to nine years.

A look through the Superior Dahlia Gardens shows a wonderful wealth of bloom for so late in the season. The varieties are so numerous that no attempt was made to take notes of them, but the show as a whole is superb. Besides a cut of 1,000 blooms daily for the florists' trade in the city, Mr. Gutting uses a great many in funeral work and for presentation boxes, which illustrates the utility of the dahlia as a florists' flower, when the varieties are selected with reference to the end in view. For display purposes, the dahlia has proved a great attraction to passing pedestrians and motorists.

A pleasing duty is that of recording the fact of the promotion of Miss Rose Lathrop to the post of manager of the floral department at Hamburger's. Miss Lathrop has been employed in this department for between eight and nine years and in that time, by her personality and unfailing courtesy to all, has made a great many friends, all of whom will be glad to congratulate her and wish her the best of success in her enlarged sphere of action.

Oscar Schneider is again at his post at the store of Purdie & Co., not fully recovered from his late illness, but sticking to duty grimly.

Anything that adds to the gayety of nations or individuals is useful in these days, and it was surely amusing to see J. Dieterich and his robust friend trying to back up a Ford car which was balking like Si's mule. By running it around a block, it was persuaded to enter the garage head first.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

There has been little change in the local market since the last report. The shipping demand continues brisk and what flowers remain after out-of-town orders are filled clean up easily, as a result of the heavy requirements of the local retailers for funeral work. The rush is beginning to tell upon both wholesalers and retailers. To cope with the abnormal demand has required continuous effort for the last ten days, including much night work, and everybody is beginning to look forward to the return of normal conditions, although it will mean less business. Although the San Francisco health department reports the epidemic of Spanish influenza under control, providing there is no let-up in the precautions taken against its spread, the death rate continues comparatively high and the florists have about all the funeral work they can handle. Several of the old-timers in the business claim they never before saw so many floral pieces turned out by the local trade in one week as have been made in the last week.

The large supply of chrysanthemums and pompons has been welcome, as these flowers work up easily and a big showing can be made on a small amount of money and with less work. There have been some complaints on the part of local buyers that out-of-town orders have been given the preference over home needs. It is claimed that the bulk of the white and pink mums have been shipped out, making it necessary for local florists to use yellow varieties extensively for funeral work, which has not been done here in previous years.

The chrysanthemum season is on the wane, but it will long be remembered as a profitable one for all branches of the business. The big fancy varieties are about all gone now and another week will see the supply of smaller Chinese mums on the decline. Shipments to the Chicago market have already ceased, but the demand is still heavy from intermediate points.

Carnations demand high prices, especially white ones. Everything in the shape of a white carnation sells, regardless of quality, at prices seldom reached here for the finest kind of stock. Roses leave nothing to be desired, the quality being good, the supply ample for requirements and prices only slightly above normal for this time of the year. Violets improve as the season advances. There is plenty of cosmos and it is well taken; the same may be said of snapdragons and other miscellaneous stock. Orchids are plentiful and opportunely so, in view of the big demand for high-class funeral work.

Various Notes.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says they have been so rushed for the last ten days that the entire force is nearly tired out. Sunday was spent making floral pieces and Monday was the heaviest day of funeral work to date in the history of the firm. Fortunately, the epidemic has not visited any of the staff.

The downtown florists have missed the regular visits of Peter Ferrari this week. It is understood he is on the sick list.

P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., says funeral work has claimed every bit of attention for the last ten days, but he hopes to see conditions a little more normal by the end of the week.

George Duffy, with the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has been home taking care of his mother and brother, who have the influenza. Otherwise this firm's force has not been affected by the epidemic. Walter Hoff reports business active, meaning, of course, funeral work. Mr. MacRorie has just returned from a business trip in the southern part of the state.

Mr. Wagner, formerly with B. M. Joseph's, paid this establishment a visit a few days ago. He is now wearing a Merchant Marine uniform and is quite enthusiastic over that branch of the service.

Many friends mourn the death of Mrs. Mary D. Boland, wife of the late James B. Boland. Mrs. Boland passed away Sunday evening, October 27, following an illness of three weeks. Upon the death of her husband, the business in Kearny street bearing his name was continued by Mrs. Boland, under the management of Charles F. Shellgrain. What disposition will be made of it has not been announced.

As the chrysanthemum season draws to a close, officials of the United Flower & Supply Co. are beginning to turn their attention more to roses. They expect to have an unusually heavy cut of the latter this winter, as many of the partners in the business have thrown out carnations in the last year in favor of roses. Among the varieties grown by different members of the firm in considerable quantity now are Prima Donna, Ophelia, Mrs. Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley and others. In a few days a nice cut of Ophelia is expected from Stege, a suburb on the east side of San Francisco bay. It is the intention of the United Flower & Supply Co. to ship roses to Salt Lake and other interior points on an extensive scale during the remainder of the year.

WESTERN ROSE CO. Pasadena, California

He has had two men on the sick list for several days, which has made it doubly hard to handle the enormous demand for mums. Everything cleans up, he says, and never before did he see small white and pink chrysanthemums demand such high prices. The demand for short roses also has been exceptionally brisk, on account of so much funeral work.

Enomoto & Co. figure another week will practically put a stop to chrysanthemum shipping and see the violet season well under way.

C. Kooyman says flowers can now be sold in the Bush street wholesale district at almost any time of the night, it no longer being surprising to see groups of buyers waiting at the market for hours for flowers to come in.

The retail seed stores in lower Market street have not shared in the rush which has visited the florists in the last two weeks. Instead of stimulating sales for them, the Spanish influenza epidemic has brought business practically to a standstill. Immediate improvement is anticipated, however, when the epidemic has run its course.

The Hallawell Seed Co. expects its consignments of Dutch bulbs to arrive around the middle of November.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Roses, mums and pompons are the principal items of stock seen in the market. Mums are bringing from $3 to $5 per dozen, and roses from $1.50 to $3. Pompons are not plentiful yet. In the shops the florists are too busy to talk and one has literally to wade through masses of floral pieces and litter.

Various Notes.

Wallace Garside, of Clarke Bros., is congratulating himself that his mother did not take passage, as she contemplated doing, on the ill-fated steamer Princess Sophia, which sank in Lynn canal, Alaska.

On account of the ban on public meetings of various kinds due to the epidemic of influenza, the Portland Floral Society held no meeting in October, which was generally regretted, as the meetings of the society have been interesting and enjoyable.

Henry Kahn has planted a house to St. Louis snaps, which are looking well. His Fordhook Pink and Yarrawa sweet peas are setting buds. He hopes to be able to control their growth this year. Last year they tried to get through the glass, although they have eleven feet of space overhead. His Godfrey callas are beginning to show blooms and his Mignonette Matchless is coming on in fine form.

G. Zitzewitz is working again for Martin & Forbes Co. He formerly was employed by this concern for a number of years.

INSECTS ON ASTERS.

We have been troubled with insects that sting the buds of our asters, making the flowers imperfect. We would like to know what to spray the plants with to keep the pest off.

M. A. T.—N. Y.

The pest which stings your asters undoubtedly is the tarnished plant bug, Lygus pratensis, commonly called the chinch bug. It is an active, bronze-colored sucking insect, less than one-quarter of an inch in length. It punctures and stunts the terminal buds on many growing plants, including asters, chrysanthemums and a number of other members of the compositæ family. Injured plants become dwarfed and stunted and produce imperfect flowers. There is no spray which will control this destructive insect, but if you will burn up rubbish instead of leaving it in heaps about your grounds every winter, you will rid yourself of the bulk of them. Piles of rubbish are their favorite breeding places. Destroy all such refuse and the major part of the chinch bugs will go, too. Cleanliness will go a long way toward ridding your gardens of this pest.

Tempt Customers to Buy

When your flowers are attractively displayed—in a McCRAY Florists' Refrigerator—where customers can see your variety of flowers, with all their freshness and delicate beauty preserved just as perfectly as when they were cut—the temptation to buy more flowers—of different kinds—is almost too strong to resist.

To the florist a McCRAY Florists' Refrigerator is a paying investment. In increasing your sales and saving the tremendous loss of profits due to waste and spoilage of your flowers, a McCRAY Refrigerator will pay for itself in a very short time.

McCRAY

are especially built to suit the florists' needs. The patented system of refrigeration, by which a constant current of cold dry air circulates through the refrigerator, keeps flowers perfectly—your flowers retain every bit of freshness and beauty.

McCRAY Florists' Refrigerators are built in a variety of sizes and styles—having ample compartments to accommodate long stem flowers—special sizes built for particular requirements, and any desired finish can be had.

PUBLICITY AND PROGRESS

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Slogan Becoming Familiar.

Thoreau is quoted as saying, "Most men lead lives of quiet desperation."

To get the public mind concentrated on flowers, especially in these troublous times, is hard indeed for an individual to attempt; in fact, nothing but a desperate effort would be rewarded with success. One of the ideas back of our publicity campaign was to make an organized effort to do this thing, in order that the florists might cut this desperation out of their business lives and enjoy a better demand for plants and flowers. And who shall say our committees have not succeeded?

Through our magazine advertising many thousands of people have turned their minds to flowers as mediums for the expression of sentiment under various conditions. Every mail brings to this office numbers of letters from all parts of the country requesting copies of our little booklet, "Say It with Flowers," and information in regard to filling orders in distant cities. This result is gratifying to us, even though representing only a fraction of the interest which is aroused by the publicity our fund provides.

Our slogan has even had expression on the stage. We are informed that recently in a vaudeville performance, during a pause in a dual song-and-dance act where, according to custom, a little banter passes between the partners, the male of the duet made a stammering protestation of love to the female, whereupon the latter said: "Oh, cut it out and say it with flowers." This brought a hearty laugh from the audience, which, it is quite fair to assume, recognized the slogan.

The Dealers' Helps.

Gradually but irresistibly our slogan is taking hold. Any florist who is not giving it a personal push is making a mistake. Our promotion bureau is providing the means for a push through the dealers' aids service. The beautiful glass sign displayed in any store window says "Say It with Flowers" all day long and every day. If this sign at $2 is considered an extravagance, then there is the decalcomanie sign, supplied in units of four, in sizes for windows and door panels, at $1 per unit. Our bureau has supplied hundreds of these transfer signs, but ought to place ten times the number. There are stickers in three sizes, suitable for affixing to envelopes, boxes, express packages and the like, the use of which connects the slogan to an individual establishment. Our lantern slides for use in the moving picture houses are works of art at chromo prices. Our electrotype service, comprising newspaper plates featuring

PUBLICITY AND PROGRESS

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Slogan Becoming Familiar.

To get the public mind concentrated on flowers, especially in these troublous times, is hard indeed for an individual to attempt; in fact, nothing but a desperate effort would be rewarded with success. One of the ideas back of our publicity campaign was to make an organized effort to do this thing, in order that the florists might cut this desperation out of their business lives and enjoy a better demand for plants and flowers. And who shall say our committees have not succeeded?

Through our magazine advertising many thousands of people have turned their minds to flowers as mediums for the expression of sentiment under various conditions. Every mail brings to this office numbers of letters from all parts of the country requesting copies of our little booklet, "Say It with Flowers," and information in regard to filling orders in distant cities. This result is gratifying to us, even though representing only a fraction of the interest which is aroused by the publicity our fund provides.

Our slogan has even had expression on the stage. We are informed that recently in a vaudeville performance, during a pause in a dual song-and-dance act where, according to custom, a little banter passes between the partners, the male of the duet made a stammering protestation of love to the female, whereupon the latter said: "Oh, cut it out and say it with flowers." This brought a hearty laugh from the audience, which, it is quite fair to assume, recognized the slogan.

The Dealers' Helps.

Gradually but irresistibly our slogan is taking hold. Any florist who is not giving it a personal push is making a mistake. Our promotion bureau is providing the means for a push through the dealers' aids service. The beautiful glass sign displayed in any store window says "Say It with Flowers" all day long and every day. If this sign at $2 is considered an extravagance, then there is the decalcomanie sign, supplied in units of four, in sizes for windows and door panels, at $1 per unit. Our bureau has supplied hundreds of these transfer signs, but ought to place ten times the number. There are stickers in three sizes, suitable for affixing to envelopes, boxes, express packages and the like, the use of which connects the slogan to an individual establishment. Our lantern slides for use in the moving picture houses are works of art at chromo prices. Our electrotype service, comprising newspaper plates featuring the magazine advertisements, are extremely effective when used in local newspapers, as tending to connect a local store with the advertisements in the ten magazines. The slogan is prominent throughout.

All these present a chance for noisy demonstration which will go a long way to obviate the necessity for quiet desperation, and promote that healthful activity which is essential to prosperity.

We are still waiting to hear from a surprisingly large number of florists who have not yet contributed to the fund. Every dollar so far contributed has been applied to the work, and about $5,000 more is required to complete the plans made for the year. This is not a large sum and surely should be forthcoming.

worker to the grower, and all of whom shared in the rush to fill orders which came from all directions.

Now, during a rush like the present, we are apt to forget probable conditions of the future, as, for instance, where the demands for flowers have been many on account of the influenza epidemic, there doubtless will be a curtailment of flowers for personal use later on, due to the unusual expenditure now.

It is up to us to keep the ball rolling by continually advertising our slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

Now, many may say, "Why advertise our product when we have a shortage of flowers, as perhaps will be the case later?"

Do you not realize that when you create the demand you will also create something that will fill the bill, if not with one thing, then with another?

Have you noticed how many manufacturers have been advertising their products to the public, although the government has commandeered their entire output for the period of the war? This is done for the sole purpose of holding the good will of the public, so that the product may not be forgotten when times become normal again.

What do you think the slogan will mean to every thinking man, woman and child, when in doubt what to send to mother, father, sister or brother? Do you realize the effect it will have? And if all who use printers' ink will make use of it, do you realize what the future will have in store for you?

Go the limit with the slogan and you will merit the benefits more and more.

Chairman National Publicity Campaign.

The Market.

"Whatever goes up is sure to come down." Among other things this axiom is applicable to flower values and their rise to dizzy heights during the early days of October, which apparently had defied the magnetic force of augmented supply to draw them back to normal levels, until a record was made that is epochal. But it is all over now. The suction caused by increasing supply drew the wind from the wings of demand during the latter days of October and both the conditions of value are now floating at a level. Prices are still good, but easy. All orders are being filled in full; occasionally a few hundred roses are left over at the end of the day. The casuals, who were so strong in insistence and long in assurance of steady patronage, one by one are filing their excuses, covering reduction in orders and cancellations, and hurrying off to the points of congestion, as business slowly floats into the quiet waters of decreased demand. Never before was there such a condition and possibly never again will the wholesaler and retailer both make the money that conditions in October made possible. Hypothetical tales already are at hand concerning increases in sales over preceding October records that are astounding and in many cases incredible. It is safe, though, from actual records in this territory to state that October sales were as great as the total for October and November last year.

Various Notes.

F. E. Selkregg, of North East, Pa., is optimistic regarding the prospects post-bellum conditions will hold for the florists' trade. Expansion is necessary to keep pace with the growing demand for the various crops Mr. Selkregg grows and he states that, should destiny see fit to return his eldest son from "over there," several additional greenhouses will be erected when conditions become normal. Both of Mr. Selkregg's sons are in the service, Fred M. being with the 302d Engineers somewhere in France, and James L. in the aviation branch in training at Arcadia, Fla. A fine lot of snapdragon in 2-inch pots was noted, and Mr. Selkregg smilingly stated that several insertions in the classified columns of The Review would result in the stock adding a few more names to his list of satisfied customers.

Mrs. Helen M. Schluraff, of the Schluraff Floral Co., Erie., Pa., states that the extraordinary inflation of flower values in October resulted in some of her trade, to whom the law of supply and demand is a thing unknown, uttering the cry of "Profiteer." The demand for flowers in that city of wealthy toilers is growing with leaps and bounds, and Mrs. Schluraff has applied all of the laws of psychology to the effort to incite interest and desire in the minds of the people, and the measure of her success is of satisfactory proportions. Extensive remodeling in her store has been carried out. An important improvement is a mezzanine floor for office and display purposes. A new delivery car has been purchased and also a limousine, for both pleasure and business. The range of greenhouses on Eighteenth street has been leased for the culture of vegetables. This arrangement permits running the other range at 100 per cent capacity.

Mrs. Schluraff has been chiefly instrumental in creating the wonderful demand for flowers that exists in Erie and the business she has developed is a great tribute to her capacity as a modern executive.

Eliot Worden, dean of the local florists, is busy as the proverbial bee. He directed attention to the small mortality rate among the florists' trade since the Spanish influenza became epidemic throughout the length and breadth of the land, and advances the opinion that, on the whole, florists possess better average health and vitality than the human components of any other trade or profession. Stock at Mr. Worden's greenhouses is in excellent condition and shows the result of expert care.

G. Wickstrom says that when business at his place is conspicuous by its absence, stock is so plentiful that it can be had for almost the asking, but the minute activity commences, he finds it next to impossible to get enough flowers to fill his orders. Mr. Wickstrom special-

Grant Babcock, well known to members of the trade who are interested in peonies, has just concluded the harvesting of a heavy crop of late planted gladioli at his Westfield, N. Y., acreage. Gladioli in quantity during October in this latitude will seem almost incredible to many florists, but, owing to a climatic peculiarity, the result of topographical conditions surrounding Westfield, frosts never occur there until late in October. Mr. Babcock reports prices up as high as $12 per hundred for his production and, if Dame Rumor can be relied upon, the project has secured the interest of large capital and future cultivation will be on an immense scale. Mr. Babcock also reports a heavy demand for peony roots, especially for high-priced novelties, and states that orders from Canada are startling in their size.

Gladiolus bulblets about the size of a pea for $5 apiece caused a florist chiefly interested in roses to gasp with astonishment, when C. Zeestratum, of Greenhurst, N. Y., pointed out a small basketful as he quoted the price mentioned above. "Beats rose growing all hollow," remarked the rosarian, but those of us who know the amount of toil and energy and the long hours Mr. Zeestratum has expended on his proposition during the last two years could not see it that way. Mr. Zeestratum is about to inaugurate a new phase of floriculture, gladioli every day in the year. His entire range of glass is to be utilized in their production and his plans look feasible; in fact, so feasible that two prominent wholesalers are negotiating now for his entire output.

William Graham, of Bradford, Pa., has discovered that a Ford car is limited in its versatility. Mr. Graham has used his in hauling soil, delivering flowers, joy-riding and other formerly unheard-of practices with great success, but came to grief when he attempted to have it emulate a tank. The Market.

The crisis is past and things again are normal in the flower market. Indeed, the wholesale people are reporting conditions bordering on a glut. This is caused by the fact that warm weather has brought a flood of outdoor stock, which is still to be had, and indoor mums are now about at their height. Roses, too, are coming in fine shape, so that altogether the supply this week is greater than the demand. This does not mean the demand has in any way abated, for it is just as heavy now as it has been for the last four weeks. In fact, there is a greater demand for funeral work, for the reason that every day funerals of victims who died several weeks ago are taking place, their bodies having been placed in public vaults until conditions were more opportune for burial.

What the Epidemic Did.

The one great thing we, in the trade, should learn from this epidemic is how quickly an unusual occurrence can right itself. Only a few weeks ago every one of us was thinking of war conditions in connection with business, when suddenly a condition confronted us that, in its death toll, was worse than the war. Yet there is not a florist in our city who has not come through it a bigger and better man and who has not a far greater respect for the business in which he is engaged. This is not a matter of dollars and cents, but in these times, when there is so much talk of flowers being nonessential, every member of the trade can realize how essential is an offering of flowers to those who have lost a loved one. Never, after the scenes the florists have witnessed in the last four weeks, will any florist make an apology for the business in which he is engaged. If I may be permitted to say so, the florists' business was just as essential as the undertakers' in the minds of the public. Indeed, instances have come to the writer's notice of funerals that were postponed because the proper accompaniments could not be obtained and on account of the ruling of the Health Commission that there should be no public or church funerals. Many people, in the face of this ruling, were unwilling to lay their loved ones away and would rather face the ordeal of a second funeral when conditions were more favorable. There is not a florist in our city but can tell how hard it was to refuse some customer an offering and of how they pleaded—it was not a case of cost, but inability to get the flowers.

But it is now past, the florists' business has had its baptism of fire and I am proud to write that through it all I have not, in a single instance, heard of gouging by any florist. This is a record of which the trade can be justly proud.

Various Notes.

The regular meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club were scheduled for the second and fourth Mondays of November. The lecture which was to be given by Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., October 28, will be heard at one of these meetings.

I have inquired carefully and am glad to announce that at this time there is no serious illness among the members of the trade. To those who were unfortunate I feel that, in this public way, I can extend the sympathy of every one connected with the trade. Tate.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

REPORTS have it that there are not many gladiolus bulbs in Holland this season.

THE death of John R. Johansen, of the Bernard Johansen Seed Co., San Francisco, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

LESTER L. MORSE, returning to San Francisco from an eastern trip, will celebrate his forty-eighth birthday anniversary November 9.

THERE seems to be enough Dutch hyacinths, Paper Whites and Romans, with some to spare at the price, but no surplus of tulips, jonquils or daffodils.

A LETTER from a Holland house to its representative here says spiræas, peonies, Spanish iris, Gladiolus Colvillei, etc., went forward October 3, via England. No bulbs have been shipped since late August.

THE Holland bulb exporters are signing up to sell only f. o. b. the shipping station in 1919. In other words, to stop sales f. o. b. New York, on which many of them, if they filled the orders, have lost money this season.

IN spite of the fact that there has been a suspicion that the boat which was reported sunk with Dutch bulbs went down only in somebody's mind, advices from Holland continue to refer to such a boat with 4,000 cases as missing.

WATSON S. WOODRUFF, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn., was elected, November 5, as state senator from the Fourteenth Senatorial District of Connecticut. Every town except one in the district gave him a majority, resulting in an unusually large total majority for the district.

ANDREW IRELAND, for many years manager of the Marks Tey seed growing establishment of Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, Scotland, has started in business for himself and has been succeeded by Harry Wright, who has been Mr. Ireland's chief assistant and in the service of the firm for more than twenty years. All the parties mentioned are known to numerous American seedsmen.

J. M. RIDGFORD, general manager of Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, has noted that many American seedsmen or their relatives are now crossing the Atlantic in connection with the war, and it has occurred to him that it will tend to promote good feeling on both sides if the American seedsmen will call at the company's offices, Drury Lane, Covent Garden, whenever their route lies through London.

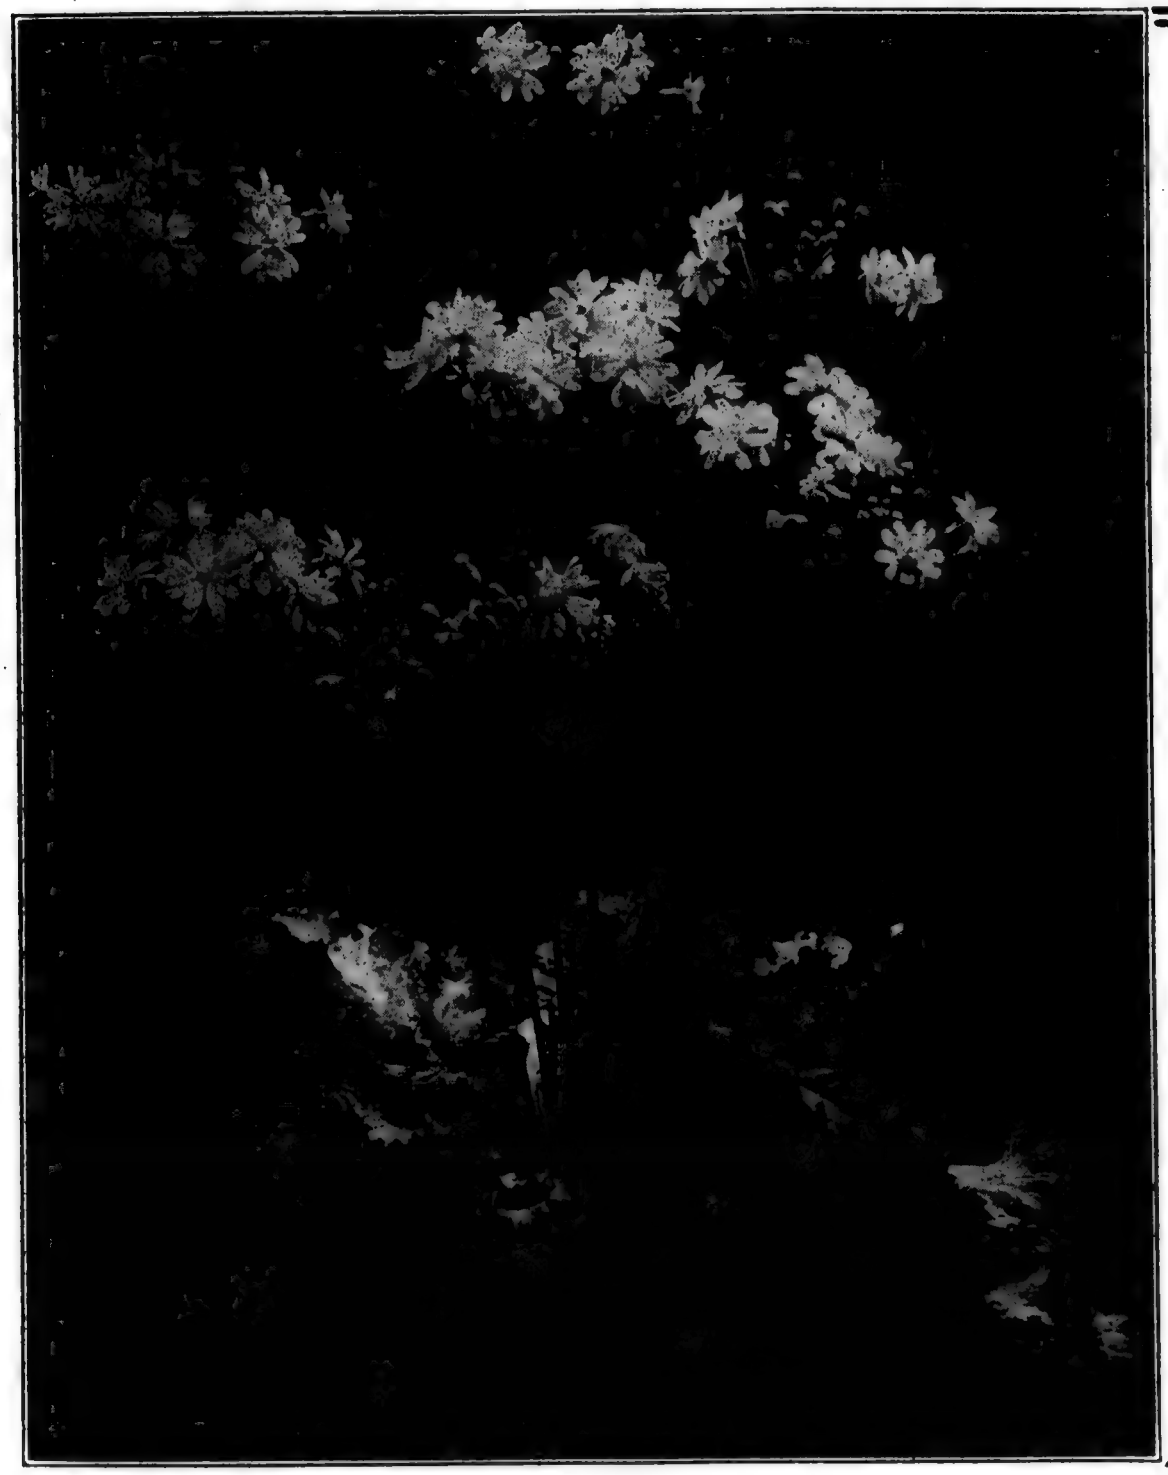
HENRY F. MICHELL CO., 518 Market Street, PHILADELPHIA

the buyer has the burden of proving the extent, if any, to which the particular seller's seed was responsible for the condition of the entire shipment.

And where seed is sold as being "good" and "merchantable" there is no such warranty by the seller of its quality as survives the buyer's acceptance and payment for the same after inspection or opportunity for inspection.

These two points of law were laid down the other day by the Texas Court of Civil Appeals in the case of Ferguson vs. Johnson, 205 Southwestern Reporter, 512, in which suit plaintiff was defeated on a claim for damages demanded on the ground that defendant had failed to deliver good, merchantable millet seed under a contract of sale.

The first ruling turned upon the fact that plaintiff offered evidence tending to show that there was a considerable quantity of trash and foreign matter in the car, but that the evidence afforded no basis for determining to what extent, if any, defendant's seed was responsible for this condition.



Accepted Without Inspection.

On the second point, the court said:

"Ferguson accepted and paid for the seed without inspection, though the evidence is sufficient to warrant the conclusion that he had a fair opportunity of inspection. No claim of failure of the seed to meet the quality provided for in the contract was made until some time afterward, when it was reported from Dallas, to which place the seed had been shipped, that it was not of such quality. The [trial] court, in this connection, instructed the jury that the plaintiff could not recover if it should be found that at the time of the delivery of the seed the plaintiff had a reasonable and fair opportunity to inspect the same before acceptance. The plaintiff complains of this instruction, on the ground that if his theory that the contract provided for the sale and delivery of good, merchantable millet seed is correct, this would constitute an express warranty which would survive acceptance and a breach of which would support recovery, although the seed had been accepted after inspection or a reasonable opportunity to inspect. We do not think this description of the quality of the millet seed contracted to be sold is properly an express warranty.* * * An express warranty is collateral to the contract, while a description of the quality of the goods contracted to be sold 'is regarded as a part of the contract of sale itself, and not as a warranty or agreement collateral to it.' Dutchess Co. vs. Harding, 49 N. Y., 321. * * *

What Constitutes a Warranty?

"The authorities agree that an express warranty, being collateral to the agreement, is not discharged by delivery and acceptance under the contract, although such acceptance is made after inspection. In such cases the goods may be accepted and suit brought for breach of the warranty of quality. But there is much conflict and confusion as to whether a particular description of the quality is to be construed as a warranty, and, even if it is not, as to what are the rights of the purchaser upon a discovery subsequent to acceptance that the quality does not conform to the specifications of the contract. Our Supreme court seems to have recognized a rule which may be stated as follows: A contract merely descriptive of the quality of the goods to be delivered imposes, of course, an obligation on the seller to deliver goods of that description. If the goods tendered in discharge of the contract do not meet its requirements, they may be rejected and the seller sued for breach of his contract to sell and deliver the goods of the specific quality. Ordinarily, however, where the goods are accepted after inspection or opportunity to inspect, and in the absence of fraud, the contract is discharged, and the purchaser may not thereafter assert that the goods do not fulfill its terms.

"There are some exceptions to this rule—where there is no opportunity of inspection, where inspection is prevented by fraud, or where the inspection would not disclose the defect, and perhaps others not necessary to mention here. In such exceptional cases the rights of the purchaser, 'when rescission has become impracticable, are practically the same as on breach of warranty.'"

flict and confusion as to whether a particular description of the quality is to be construed as a warranty, and, even if it is not, as to what are the rights of the purchaser upon a discovery subsequent to acceptance that the quality does not conform to the specifications of the contract. Our Supreme court seems to have recognized a rule which may be stated as follows: A contract merely descriptive of the quality of the goods to be delivered imposes, of course, an obligation on the seller to deliver goods of that description. If the goods tendered in discharge of the contract do not meet its requirements, they may be rejected and the seller sued for breach of his contract to sell and deliver the goods of the specific quality. Ordinarily, however, where the goods are accepted after inspection or opportunity to inspect, and in the absence of fraud, the contract is discharged, and the purchaser may not thereafter assert that the goods do not fulfill its terms.

"There are some exceptions to this rule—where there is no opportunity of inspection, where inspection is prevented by fraud, or where the inspection would not disclose the defect, and perhaps others not necessary to mention here. In such exceptional cases the rights of the purchaser, 'when rescission has become impracticable, are practically the same as on breach of warranty.'" S.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

President J. J. Wilson, of the J. J. Wilson Seed Co., Inc., Newark, N. J., predicts a banner seed business for the season, especially if the government distribution of seeds is abolished, in accordance with rumor. "It does not require a large stretch of imagination," observed Mr. Wilson, "to see that this custom is likely to be productive of a harvest of graft. On the other hand, if the sowers realize they are not to get something for nothing, they will place greater value upon their purchase, however small it may be, and use more care in the sowing." Inquiries for and sales of bulbs are encouraging, though large returns are not looked for this season.

Martin C. Ribsam, of Trenton, N. J., reports the usual success following the annual state fair, in which his seed exhibit was exceptionally attractive. Owing to the heavy call for funeral work, bulbs have had to stand aside. But, as normal conditions are looked for now, with a steady demand at slightly increased prices, it is hoped good business will be shown.

Hirsch Bros., of Middle Village, N. Y., speak of the last season as one of the best on record for seeds, but poor for the sale of implements. Never before has the market gardener made fewer purchases in this line or had so many old things repaired. The crop of bugs cleaned up all stocks of insecticides.

Alexander Forbes & Co., of Newark, N. J., will be among the first in issuing the annual seed catalogue. Stocks are well under way with this firm, and prospects bright. Mr. Forbes, Sr., has been kept at home for some time, owing to sickness, but hopes to be around soon.

George Cannon, manager of the Stamford Seed & Nursery Co. & Quality Shop, Stamford, Conn., is an active worker for the forthcoming local chrysanthemum show, being of the opinion that to abandon such in the present state of things is most unwise. It promises to be a success, in keeping with that of the seed business he has worked up in a comparatively short time.

W. L. Hundesmark, Passaic, N. J., reports business as being away above the usual mark, owing mainly to funeral orders. It has been a good seed season, but there were no bulbs.

Giant Californla Hybrid Amaryllis

With the shortage of many of the customary Easter Plants, these Giant-flowered Amaryllis, which are more easily grown in pots than Easter Lilies and are far more showy, should prove a valuable addition among flowering plants for late winter, early spring and Easter use.

We have been familiar with and have watched this particular strain for a number of years. We have not only seen it growing with the originators, but tried it out in pot culture in our own houses. The flowers are of enormous size. Flowers with full, rounded, broad petals, 10 inches in diameter, are not unusual, and 5 to 6 flowers to a stem, frequently two stems being pushed to the bulb. In color there are selfs and stripes, ranging from the purest white ground color with rose or red markings to rich orange-scarlet, cherry, crimson and maroon, and all with a satin-like luster which, in the deeper shades, shines as if burnished.

Give these a trial, as we feel certain you will be pleased with the results were at one time the principal white-bean-producing states, but now the western states, principally California, are more dependable, as the crops there are less subject to attacks of anthracnose. This year unfavorable weather damaged the white beans of the eastern states to such an extent that care was necessary in conserving stocks for planting in 1918, as seed grown in the west is not suitable for the north and east. It is estimated that over 1,000,000 acres were planted in white beans in 1917, requiring over 45,000,000 pounds of seed.

The pinto bean is now next to the white bean in acreage, there having been more than 350,000 acres planted in 1917. This bean is taking well on dry land in the western part of the great plains and its acreage has increased phenomenally in the last two years. The seed requirements now are about 6,000,000 pounds, but the supply of good seed is ample.

The red kidney and tepary beans are grown in the southwest. Both are used as dried beans. The commercial area grown of the former was about 145,000 acres in 1917, while that of the latter was less than 40,000. These acreages require for their planting about 9,000,000 and 600,000 pounds of seed, respectively.

The white tepary bean is sometimes substituted for the navy bean, which it resembles somewhat closely, but it is suited only to the dry southwest.

California devoted approximately 150,000 acres to the production of Lima beans for drying and the quantity of seed required for planting this acreage is nearly 12,000,000 pounds. Lima beans are extensively used as a green vegetable, but our seed requirements for this purpose are not known.

It is of the so-called strictly garden varieties of beans that there is difficulty in producing an ample supply of seed. The exact requirements are not definitely known, but they are large, since almost every garden in the country has a few rows of snap beans of one variety or another. The total area of the varieties planted for seed is probably less than 200,000 acres, scattered throughout the principal bean-growing states.

Where the Sweet Corn Grows.

While sweet corn is grown for seed somewhat generally throughout the entire corn belt, the bulk of our supply comes from Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and Ohio. It requires a large quantity of seed for planting the acreage for the canneries, as well as for home gardens, but data are not available as to the total number of bushels needed. Early frosts in the fall of 1917 and subsequent unfavorable weather injured the vitality of the seed and reduced the supply to a point so low as to cause concern, while only a small stock was carried over from the crop of 1916; therefore the total supply of seed for 1918 is far from abundant.

Before the present war, Europe supplied us with much seed of the cruciferous vegetables, including principally radish, turnip, cabbage and kale. Most of our foreign radish seed, and we imported heavily, came from Germany, France and England. Now we are even exporting small quantities to the last two countries. Most of our radish seed is grown in California and the seed growers there have expanded their acreages of this crop substantially.

It was estimated that prior to 1914 we imported more than seventy-five per cent of the turnip seed we required. This came chiefly from Denmark, Sweden, Holland, Germany, France and England. Most of our domestic supply is produced in the Pacific northwest. On account of the large surplus stocks in the hands of the seed growers, seedsmen and jobbers when the war began and the slowness with which the European supply became unavailable, we did not at first realize what it would mean to be dependent upon our own growers for turnip seed. The realization came early in 1917 and the advance in the wholesale price of seed was quicker and more pronounced than that of any other vegetable. The poor seed crop of the Pacific northwest in 1917 still further increased the price and from present indications it will be necessary for us to conserve rigidly our stocks of turnip seed, both of the English and Swede Wichita, Kan.—A violent hailstorm swept over this section September 23, accompanied by rain and severe electrical disturbance. Seventy-five per cent of the glass in the greenhouses of C. P. Mueller was broken to bits, but fortunately the plants in the houses suffered but little. Mr. Mueller stated that it would take the labor of twenty men to replace the broken glass. Fruit was bruised in some places, but there was practically no damage to crops of grain.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, Chicago, puts the general report in a few words: "We have as much business as we have help to handle," says he.

MARTIN L. DAVEY, of the Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, O., was elected to congress from the Fourteenth Ohio District November 5. He is a Democrat.

THERE is enough stock in the nursery trade this season, and doubtless as much as will be required in spring, but the labor shortage will be apparent in next year's production.

FRENCH nursery stock will come over in considerable quantities during the next few months and there appears to be fair prospect that Holland will resume exporting in the near future.

ONE of the difficulties encountered by British nurserymen is in procuring packing material for the fall shipments. The use of straw, paper and burlap all require government permits.

HOLLAND GROWERS ORGANIZE.

To Meet New Conditions.

With improved prospects for the importation of the usual autumn and spring shipments of nursery stock from Holland as the result of the changed military and submarine situation, the circular to American buyers recently issued by the Holland Plant Exporters' Association will be of special interest:

"According to information received from members of the Holland Plant Exporters' Association, you are buying Holland nursery stock from members of this association. I beg to inform you that the majority of the Holland growers and exporters of nursery stock have formed an organization comprising in its membership growers and exporters in Aalsmeer, Boskoop, Dedemsvaart, Gouda, Naarden, Oudenbosch, Veendam, etc.

"The necessity for this organization is evident. Entirely new conditions prevail in all countries since the war. Consequently it will be impossible to extend credit for so long a period as was customary before the war. It will be out of the question also to sell at the old figures, as the cost of producing nursery stock has nearly doubled.

"The Holland growers therefore have followed the example of the American Association of Nurserymen and have formed an organization to protect the interests of its members and with the object of adjusting the plant trade to the new conditions. It is also the desire of the members to assist their customers to reduce unfair competition on the part of slow and fault-finding buyers and to abolish the practice of sending goods from Holland to public auctions. Some steps in this direction had been taken already, but so far only the Holland nurserymen dealing in America had agreed not to send goods to auctions, whereas under this organization all auctions in all countries where a regular plant trade with Holland exists, are forbidden.

"In order to attain this purpose, the members have adopted the following rules, with a heavy penalty for their infraction. A strict control is guaranteed by the secretary of the organization, a control which will prove feasible, as it has been agreed that all books of the members must be open for inspection by the secretary or his accountants.

1. No auctions are allowed in countries where a regular trade in plants has been established.
2. Goods are sold only f. o. b. seller's nurseries.
3. No orders will be executed for such firms as have not settled their accounts of the preceding season with the seller or other members of the association.

These will help to fill in the gap. Will pot nicely in 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots. They are also good material for filling window and porch boxes, also vases and tubs for lawn and veranda decorations.

BUSINESS EQUALS RECORD.

Jackson & Perkins Co. Optimistic.

We feel optimistic over the outlook for business this season, says G. C. Perkins, secretary and treasurer of the Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y. Like most other nurserymen all over the country, we have been working under a good many handicaps, the worst being the serious shortage of labor, but we find the demand for nearly all lines of nursery stock exceptionally good, and some lines we think are going to be practically out of the market before the season is far advanced. There seems to be an especial shortage in most kinds of fruit trees. In ornamental stock we have never known such an extraordinarily strong demand and at such high prices for field-grown rose bushes. In ornamental shrubbery and trees there is, for the most part, a good demand, and we think there will be a satisfactory clean-up by the time business is over next spring. Perennials also seem to be selling readily. We thought six weeks ago that we had a big oversupply of perennial phloxes, but since then we have sold all of what we would regard as surplus and have bought several thousands from other growers to eke out our supplies. Ampelopsis Veitchii and Clematis paniculata appear to be unusually scarce and in strong demand.

Some Handicaps to Overcome.

The business which we have booked up to the present time is a few thousand dollars behind what we had booked at the same period last year—and last year was the biggest year we ever had—but this is readily accounted for by the fact that on account of draft inroads in our office and sales organization we have not been able to keep our usual number of traveling representatives on the road. We are getting shaped up so as to remedy this shortly, however, and we haven't the slightest doubt that long before winter is far advanced our sales will be fully up to or ahead of last season.

Excepting the above-mentioned handicap of labor shortage and some little uncertainty in transportation conditions, we can't see anything for nurserymen or florists to feel blue about, and we think there is something besides the times that must be wrong with any establishment that is not doing a pretty satisfactory business. There never was as much money in circulation or in such free circulation as there is at the present time.

LABOR ONLY DRAWBACK.

"Since business began this fall we have had more than we were able to accomplish with our short supply of labor," reports the W. & T. Smith Co., Geneva, N. Y. "There was more than the average call for fruit trees and about the average demand for ornamentals. If the war comes to an end this winter, we expect a heavy trade in ornamental stock the coming spring. Inquiries now coming in make us feel optimistic on the immediate outlook. Prices are holding firm on an advancing market."

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business continues good. The enormous consumption of the last few weeks, however, is moderating. Funeral work still is the potent factor, although flowers in quantity are needed for the sick. Chrysanthemums are abundant now. They are of good quality also, in both spray and large types. As yet their presence in the market has not affected either the sale or price of carnations and roses.

All Souls' day was not so important an occasion as in previous years, from the standpoint of the florists, as outdoor stock, such as cosmos, zinnias, dahlias, etc., were still available. The morning of November 2 these were laid low by the first heavy frost. Easter lilies have been limited in supply all the fall and, although callas are beginning to arrive, no increase is evident in the arrivals of the former. Violets have been much in evidence, but a week of warm weather has checked them. Greens continue scarce. Potted chrysanthemums have slackened, due to the popularity of cut mums. Ferns are good property, but extra fine ones are not plentiful.

Various Notes.

The November meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was postponed from November 5 to November 12 on account of the ban on public meetings. It is expected that the meeting will be well attended, as the rush will have subsided by that time.

The Circle Flower Store did an unusual business in mums November 2 for the football game of the University of Indiana vs. Camp Taylor.

O. E. Steinkamp has been in Connersville for a short stay.

A letter received from Henry Elsner tells of his flight from Stonehenge, Wiltshire, England, to Dublin, Ireland.

D. F. Fern, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and H. B. Ruppert, of the Carbone Art Pottery Mfg. Co., Boston, Mass., were visitors to the trade last week.

Otis Hack is at home on a short furlough.

Letters from Oscar Karlstadt and Edwin Nelson are optimistic. Both feel that they will be home by spring.

THIS IS TO INTRODUCE TO THE TRADE

Our New Pink Salvia Splendens King Albert

This remarkable novelty was obtained by us by a crossing of Salvia Splendens Alba and Salvia Splendens Zurich. The color of the flowers is between Killarney pink and old rose. The flowers are larger in size than those of the parent, Zurich, and so are the racemes. The habit of the plant is very dwarf and compact (dwarfer than Zurich). With us this novelty, treated the same way as Zurich, flowered more abundantly and one month ahead of the latter and is still in flower now. This is the new variety to fill in the gap in the color range of Salvias the public has been looking for. We offer the first plants for sale now. Not a single plant of this novelty has been sold up to this date. We book orders now for immediate and November shipments.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Conditions in the local cut flower market showed a substantial improvement last week over those of several weeks previously. Although the florists had a steady call for flowers, the unprecedented rush experienced the three previous weeks has been broken. Cut flowers are a trifle more plentiful, as chrysanthemums are increasing in supply, and prices have slacked off correspondingly.

Various Notes.

The Mathewson Flower Shop made a special run on yellow mums for Halloween.

Charles Smith, of Washington street, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

James Hay, of East Greenwich, has recovered from his recent illness with pneumonia, following an attack of influenza.

Louis D. Pierce was elected vice-commodore of the Rhode Island Yacht Club at the annual meeting held last week.

Wallace Steere, manager of the What Cheer Wire Co., and his wife have been confined to the house by a severe attack of the influenza.

T. J. Johnston & Co., Ed. Brooke, manager, had an attractive Halloween window, with jack-o'-lanterns, etc., and autumn leaves and chrysanthemums.

Joseph G. Leikens left last week for New York for the winter, after a good summer's business at Newport.

William Conway, brother-in-law of Conrad Schultz, with whom he is associated at Westerly, is critically ill with typhoid-pneumonia.

Henry Miller, chief decorator for J. G. Leikens, Newport, has returned to New York for the winter. His wife and daughter, however, will spend the winter at Newport. W. H. M.

Paterson, N. J.—A flower show staged by the Paterson Floricultural Society September 28 brought out many handsome exhibits, which were viewed by large crowds. The proceeds were turned over to the Red Cross. First-class certificates were awarded to George Peterson and Cross Bros. for their fine collection of roses; to Bobbink & Atkins for a display of perennials of much merit; to William S. Cole for roses, and to William Thurston for decorative plants.

A HOMEMADE GAS BURNER.

This is in reply to an inquiry from C. P. G., which appeared in The Review of October 24, page 78, under the heading of "Natural Gas as Fuel." C. P. G. states that he is planning to use natural gas in his hot water boiler and that he wishes to know where he can get the best burner. I have a burner that does the work, but my supply of gas has been shut off and so I shall be willing to send this outfit to C. P. G. at the price of junk, if he wants it. I have used gas for twelve years to heat 5,000 square feet of glass. If C. P. G. cares to write again, I shall be pleased to explain the burner in detail.

I might state now, however, that the burner was placed in the doorway of a Burnham 8-section boiler. The door itself was removed and sheet iron was cut to fit the open space. In the fire box, behind the burner, fire bricks were so arranged as to cause a second combustion of the gas. The lower part of the burner is made of 4-inch pipe, to which are attached four jets, each with a separate key. Only two of the jets were used in moderate weather. After trying several kinds of burners, I have found this one to be the best. Yet the entire cost of making and installing it did not exceed $5. J. F. Sked.

GAS TO EQUAL COAL.

Please tell me through the Heating Department of The Review how many cubic feet of gas is equal to a ton of soft coal. C. A. D.—O.

It is difficult to make a comparison between the fuel value of gas and soft coal, since there is considerable variation in the heating value of the different classes of coal and the same also applies to gas. Also, we are not certain whether coal gas or natural gas is referred to.

The value of both coal and gas is expressed in thermal units. In the case of soft coal it varies from about 14,000 British thermal units (or B. T. U.) for West Virginia coal, to 12,000 B. T. U. for Ohio coal. In a similar manner coal gas is rated at from 600 to 700 B. T. U. per thousand cubic feet.

The number of thermal units in coal is based upon the amount of combustible matter it contains, and as a rule not more than 20,000 cubic feet of gas will be required to equal a ton of soft coal.

Neither in the East or West, nor the North or South has any other make of boiler ever equaled the performance of the Kroeschell—installed for 3,974,605 square feet of glass in 1916-1917. Every customer immensely satisfied. The high efficiency and low cost of operation make the Kroeschell the best of all boilers for Florists' use.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have satisfactorily and permanently solved the effective burning of screenings. They will burn the worst grades of coal, even the dirtiest culm or sawdust and wood refuse.

Greenhouse owners like the KROESCHELL because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver, it pays its own way. The KROESCHELL will increase your heating plant efficiency 20 to 40%.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

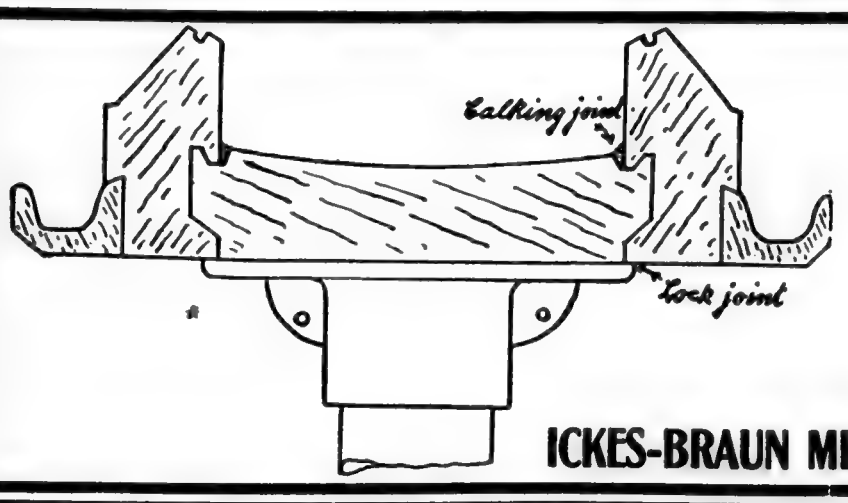
war, while an enormous demand in California has absorbed the mum supply of that state. As in other cities, the epidemic of influenza is sweeping over this territory and taking an awful toll. There is not only a shortage of cut flowers, but the supply of ferns and other greens from California is inadequate. The florists have been looking everywhere for flowers of any description from private gardens, in order to meet the tremendous demand for funeral flowers. Garden chrysanthemums and dahlias are important items in design work.



The mountains surrounding this city are now capped with snow, and Jack Frost is destroying valuable garden flowers. As the chrysanthemum season in California has passed its prime and garden flowers have gone, flower market conditions will be more acute from now on.

The demand for Holland bulbs is greater this year than ever before and florists who received shipments this week are selling them out rapidly. The demand for high-grade tulips and named varieties of peonies is increased many fold this year, but hyacinths are not moving so rapidly as last year. Perhaps the reduced demand for hyacinth bulbs is due to the closing of all classes of schools temporarily. As soon as schools open the demand may increase.

Various Notes.

A rumor is current that by 1919 a large nursery that will devote full capacity to the culture of indoor roses is to be established near this city. Negotiations for the purchase of a 10-acre tract are now in progress, it is said.

F. T. D. orders have been heavy for the last few weeks. The public is coming to appreciate the efficiency of the F. T. D. system. Bailey & Sons Co. is employing a novel idea to boost the F. T. D. by using a tag reading, "This Order Is Executed Under the F. T. D. System. Ask Bailey & Sons Co. About It," for all F. T. D. orders. Numbers of inquiries are bringing fine results.

The Huddart Floral Co. recently made an elaborate rose casket cover for a notable funeral.

The Lambourne Floral Co. is displaying a fine assortment of artificial bouquets in its window.

The B. C. Morris Floral Co. reports out-of-town business is keeping its force busy day and night.

Bailey & Sons Co. also has been keeping its force at work day and night. Among numerous floral pieces the most notable one was a huge broken column made of outdoor chrysanthemums and Countess of Lonsdale dahlias, with garlands of cattleyas entwined. It was one of the finest floral pieces ever executed in this city.

G. K. Uno, of Bailey & Sons Co., has bought a 6-acre farm in a suburb, where he and his brothers intend to grow nursery stock and cut flowers. G. K. U.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.

The Market.

Weather conditions during the last week favored the florists greatly. The demand for funeral flowers has been the heaviest on record.

Dahlias have been exceptionally fine. Funeral wreaths have been made of nothing but dahlias and garden flowers. If there had been no garden flowers, many orders could not have been handled. Prices are now more normal and stock more plentiful.

Various Notes.

Carnations are backward this year. Last year a big crop was cut at this time by the Summerfield Floral Co., but this year this concern has none to offer yet. Mums are just coming, however, and soon will be in large supply.

The J. W. Stokes Floral Co. last week made two casket covers in one day, with over 100 other pieces. It had a large force of extra help to handle the work. J. W. S.

Kansas City, Mo.—The first successfully field-grown hybrid tea roses produced in Missouri are said to have been grown in the nursery of James S. Pepper, known as Pepper's Roses, during the season just past. These roses came through in splendid condition in spite of the fact that there was a severe drought. Thirty-three varieties were grown, for the most part cut flower sorts, and, while the stems were not long, they sold readily by the thousand to the trade.

The Market.

There has been a decided change in the market. There is no longer the demand for flowers there has been for the last few weeks. With the temperature about 80 degrees for several days, there were more roses than could be handled, and with the decrease in demand and the increase in supply there was a slump in the market. It is safe to say that one-half of the roses that were cut were not sold and found their way to the dump. Chrysanthemums fared better. They were well taken, especially the medium sizes. The early varieties are mostly over and the mid-season varieties did not come in sufficient quantity to flood the market. Outside pompons could not be moved at any price. Only a change in the weather with a heavy frost will relieve the market of these. White and yellow Turner are the principal chrysanthemums on the market at present. There are also some good Major Bonnaffon, Marigold, pink and white Chieftain, Charles Rager and Snow Queen. Easter lilies are to be had again in quantity, but they find little sale. They seldom find much sale during the chrysanthemum season. Carnations also are more plentiful and have dropped in price. There are some good quality sweet peas to be had for so early in the season, mostly in white and light pink shades. The demand for these is limited.

Various Notes.

There was not much in the way of Halloween business this year, largely due to the ban not having been lifted in this city on account of the influenza epidemic. Neither did the stores make the usual Halloween displays.

A number of the families and members of the craft were stricken with influenza. Fortunately, no fatalities were reported. Stanley Holland and family are ill with the disease. J. Harper Hetherington and wife are both recovering. Louis Bowdler is able to be about again. Several members of the family of George Lavelle were also stricken with the disease, but are now improving.

The October meeting of the Florists' Club was called off on account of the ban on social gatherings and meetings.

PANSIES.

We have as fine a lot of pansies as we ever had, strong and well rooted, and are shipping by parcel post prepaid as it is much better. I ship insured so there is no chance for you to lose. Our prices are net. We pay all charges and give you as good plants as you get anywhere. The parent of these plants had thousands of blooms 3 in. across. Steele's Greenhouse Special, at $4.50 per 1000; Ozark Mammoth Strain, at $4.00 per 1000; Steele's Private Strain, $4.00 per 1000. Compare these prices and you will find they are as cheap as others are selling Trimardeau. You don't run any risk; if the postoffice does not deliver the goods in good shape notify me and you can get your money back, as I let the postoffice do my worrying.
These terms only when a postoffice money order accompanies your order. We have 500,000 of these plants, so if you will need any for spring, order this month, as these prices are only for November.

BEFORE AFTER

Niles Center, Ill.—Ludwig Schmitt has given up the growing of flowers and will hereafter grow vegetables for the market.

Pittsfield, Mass.—An effective and at the same time inexpensive window display celebrating the Fourth Liberty Loan was staged by F. I. Drake & Co., in which Liberty Loan posters and a handsome flag were featured with a garniture of autumn leaves. An electric fan was utilized to keep the flag in motion and colored lights thrown on the design added much to the effect, focusing attention on the window, which the lightless streets and darkened stores made the more conspicuous. It was conceded to be the best window display in the city in honor of the patriotic campaign.

How Long Does It Take You—to get the temperature up in your houses with the old hot water system?

Does the water in the boiler get boiling hot while the return stays cool for an hour or so?

Are the coils in your house sagging or not pitched enough to give good circulation in the system?

You need something to give a positive circulation to start the water moving in the pipes, to pass it over the hot water surface faster; in a sentence, to make it absorb the heat before it goes up the chimney.

The

will remedy these troubles without a great expense for labor and new material.

"Nite" Light Time is Here

THE BRIGHT "NITE" LIGHT

THE days are getting shorter. Darkness comes early. Before your work is finished you are compelled to stop because you can no longer see.

The ordinary barn lantern gives out about thirty candle power; not much good to work by.

The "Nite" Lantern gives out 400 candle power, burns gasoline and costs about 1/4c per hour to run. Can be used very roughly without damage and will not blow out in a wind.

It is a great thing to hang in your boiler or packing room, for it lights up the whole place, enabling all to do some extra work, and it spreads cheerfulness all around.

Capacity 1 quart (burns 15 hours), price $7.00.

THE WAR IS WON RESTRICTIONS MODIFIED

The immediate result of the ending of the great war has been a change in government policy; restrictions on industry are modified in many important particulars and the florists' trade once more, and among the first, is free to develop practically without government interference.

WITH hostilities happily ended, the government has been prompt to change its policy toward the nonwar industries and the greenhouse trade, which had suffered a smaller degree of regulation than almost any other industry which could not be converted to war work, has been practically turned free to pursue the normal tenor of its development in preparation for the good times that are to come.

Almost the first act of the War Industries Board, after Monday's celebration, was to lift numerous restrictions which had been placed on construction and production during the war. The first of these modifications were announced the very next day after the armistice was signed and further removal of curtailments are promised from time to time until all industry is restored to its normal basis.

Through the announcement of Chairman Baruch November 12 building and construction projects and repair work are largely released from the war restrictions. Many industries which have been curtailed, like those of boiler-making, glass-making, pottery and others of special interest to florists, are helped by having the percentage of curtailment reduced one-half.

Greenhouse Building.

Construction projects falling within certain classifications are now permitted to proceed without restriction. Other classes of work still require permits or licenses. The paragraphs of the new order under which greenhouse work may proceed are as follows:

"10. The construction of new buildings not embraced in any of the foregoing classifications, or repairs on buildings, involving a cost not exceeding $10,000.

"11. The construction of new buildings or structures not embraced in any of the foregoing classifications, or repairs or extension, involving a cost not exceeding $25,000, when approved in writing by the State Council of Defense."

This is equivalent to permission to proceed unrestricted with the building of any greenhouse, or repairing of any greenhouse involving a cost not exceeding $10,000. If the expenditure exceeds $10,000 the State Council of Defense is authorized to give a permit for greenhouse construction up to $25,000.

All limitations on the production of building materials, including brick, cement, lime, hollow tile and lumber, are removed. The circular of the priorities division continues:

No More Fight.

"The priorities division of the War Industries Board will, as far as practicable, assist industries in procuring materials, fuel, transportation and labor to enable them to increase their operations to normal limits as rapidly as conditions may warrant. Precedence must, however, be given to stimulate and increase the production of cargo ships and supply the requirements of the army and the navy of the United States as well as to provide for this nation's proper proportion of the enormous volume of materials, equipment and supplies as shall be required for the reconstruction and rehabilitated of the devastated territories of Europe." It sounds good.

Another order not directly affecting the greenhouse trade but which, nevertheless, has made a great deal of trouble and which has been properly applied to a few employees in flower stores, is canceled. It is the celebrated "Work or Fight" order. On the very day the armistice was signed the entrainment of draftees was stopped. This permits a considerable number of florists between the ages of 31 and 36 to remain at their homes and at their work. The next day all work of the draft boards was ordered discontinued and the work or fight order was canceled.

Greenhouse workers did not come within the scope of the work or fight order, but, because of the nonwar character of the florists' trade, overzealous workers in the selective service and government labor bureau branches persistently, though mistakenly, tried to apply the principles of the order to many of our people. While such efforts could be successfully contested, it caused great uneasiness among florists' employees and resulted in many seeking occupation elsewhere. They may now return to the work at which they are skilled without fear of running counter to any government requirement.

Florists' Fuel.

The Fuel Administration took action to remove restrictions on florists even before the war was ended, as has been reported in The Review from week to week. The latest modification of the original restriction order left it to the state fuel administrators to decide when florists may have their full supply of coal, any kind except prepared sizes of anthracite. The order, dated October 26, was printed on page 9 of The Review of November 7. Its appearance thus was brought to the attention of the trade throughout the United States and many florists have gone to their state administrators with it and in most cases have had no difficulty in securing blanket permission for all florists in their states to use their full requirements of the kinds of coal that are in surplus. These are

MODIFICATION OF RESTRICTION ORDERS

Even before the war actually had come to an end the Fuel Administration had modified its "50 per cent" order in such a manner as to permit florists their full requirements of all fuel except prepared sizes of anthracite.

November 12 the War Industries Board modified its orders prohibiting nonwar building operations so that greenhouses costing less than $10,000 may be built without restriction and greenhouses costing less than $25,000 may be built under permit of the State Council of Defense.

November 12 the Provost Marshal canceled the "Work or Fight" order, which has been misapplied to many florists.

the coals most florists used in normal times. In several cases fuel administrators even have asked the florists to advertise to the trade that steam-making fuel is abundant.

Other Industries Released.

While not directly affecting the trade, it still is important to florists to note the modification of the curtailment orders on other industries. Most of the industries which were curtailed were converted to war work, but not all of them. The order now issued reduces the degree of curtailment one-half for the last two months of 1918. It will result in increased activity in all these industries and as many of them supply purchasing power for the consumption of florists' stock they are of importance to us all. The modification order affects these commodities:

Agricultural implements and farm operating equipment, including tractors, road machinery; coal, coke and wood burning cooking and heating stoves and ranges; gas ranges, water heaters, room heaters, hot plates, and appliances; oil and gasoline heating and cooking devices; electrical heating and cooking devices and appliances; black, galvanized and enameled ware and tinplate household utensils; refrigerators; ice cream freezers; washing machines; clothes wringers; family sewing machines; electric vacuum cleaners; metal beds, cots, couches, bunks, and metal springs for same; boilers and radiators; baby carriages; corsets; bicycles; electric fans (including motors); builders' hardware; padlocks, stepladders, scales and balances, rat and animal traps; talking machines (including motors and accessories); talking machine needles; clock watches and clocks; watch movements and watch cases; hand stamping and marking devices; safes and vaults; lawn mowers; pottery; pocket knives and similar products; linoleum; rag felt floor covering; sporting goods; glass bottles and glass jars; tinplate; pianos, including piano players, automatic pianos and parts; automobile tires, passenger automobiles, cash registers.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY

ANNUAL MEETING.

Held at New York.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America was held at the Engineering building, in New York city, November 6 at 4 p. m. President William Vert presided and in the absence of Secretary Charles W. Johnson, of Morgan Park, Ill., Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., acted as secretary. Mr. Herrington welcomed the members of the society in behalf of the American Institute.

Officers Elected.

Following the reports of President Vert, Secretary Johnson and Treasurer J. N. May, the annual election of officers was held. All of the present incumbents, with the exception of the vice-president, were reëlected. They are as follows:

President—William W. Vert, Greenwich, Conn.

Vice-president—William Turner, Oceanic, N. J.

Secretary—Charles Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill.

Treasurer—J. N. May, Summit, N. J.

On the invitation of the American Institute it was decided to hold the next meeting and exhibition in New York, in conjunction with the Institute's annual show.

Miscellaneous Matters.

The advisability of making some changes in regard to the offering of medals was discussed, but it was considered inexpedient to take any action on the matter at present. The lack of interest in the society also was considered and a motion was carried that in the future competitive exhibitions any exhibitor not a member of the society would be required to pay an entrance fee of $2, the same to apply on a membership if it be taken out.

J. H. P.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[This is the president's annual address, delivered by William W. Vert, at the meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, New York city, November 6.]

Another year has rolled around and we are once more assembled for our annual meeting, the seventeenth. This year the list of exhibitions throughout the country will be much reduced, due to the fact that most of the large private estates are closed and, therefore, the number of growers of exhibition flowers is much smaller than in previous years. It is to be hoped before another year has passed the Fuel Administrator will permit the large private greenhouses to have coal, as they have been accustomed to having, so horticulture may once more be continued on its accustomed plane.

As you are all probably aware, the society last year voted to go to the Pittsburgh Gardeners' and Florists' Club and the Western Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. These two societies, in conjunction with the Sewickley Horticultural Society, were anxious to make the 1918 convention a success and I have no doubt they would have done so. It is a matter of regret that, owing to local conditions, they were unable to carry out their contract and asked to be released from their engagement. The officers of the American Institute, on being asked if they would again take up the invitation they forwarded last fall, stated they would and were glad to do so, and to them our sincere thanks are due for placing these rooms and exhibition hall at our disposal. This is the reason we are here today.

Exhibitions Less Numerous.

While the large exhibitions may not be so numerous throughout the country this fall, still the fact remains there is a great liking among the average citizens for the chrysanthemum. This is shown by the quantities of blooms growing everywhere in the gardens.

The present fall so far has been wonderfully favorable for the chrysanthemum outdoors, the singles, early-flowering and pompons being equally fine. Under such favorable conditions it is a matter of surprise that we do not have scores of amateur growers who would be glad to join the C. S. A. and contribute their dues to help out the finances.

Members Lack Interest

The mum season is so short it seems hard to hold the interest of the new members from year to year, and if any of our older members have suggestions to offer along these lines we shall be only too glad to hear from them.

Before closing I would suggest that the medals of the C. S. A. be offered to the horticultural societies throughout the country, where it is shown that such exhibitions are of sufficient importance to warrant this, which I believe has been done previously, when asked. This would give every member an opportunity to compete for these medals at their local exhibitions or clubs. However, I consider this should be restricted to C. S. A. members.

THE TREASURER'S REPORT.

At the meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America in New York city November 6, Treasurer J. N. May submitted a detailed report of the receipts and expenditures of the society during the year. A summary of his report follows:

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

[This is the report of Secretary Charles W. Johnson, presented at the meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, New York city, November 6.]

At the annual meeting held in Cleveland, O., November 8, 1917, the invitation of the Pittsburgh Gardeners' and Florists' Club, the Sewickley Horticultural Society and the Western Pennsylvania Horticultural Society to hold the C. S. A. 1918 meeting and exhibition in conjunction with their 1918 flower show was accepted. After arranging for a number of special prizes for the exhibition, your secretary received a letter from the secretary of the Pittsburgh Gardeners' and Florists' Club stating that, owing to the unsettled conditions of the country, it was thought best not to hold a flower show until the conditions became normal again. Then they would be pleased to again extend the C. S. A. an invitation to meet at Pittsburgh.

Your secretary took the matter up with President William W. Vert, who made arrangements with the American Institute for the 1918 meeting and exhibition. A second letter to the firms and individuals offering the special prizes brought a responsive sanction for all the prizes to be transferred to the present exhibition. Your secretary appreciates on behalf of the C. S. A. the kindness of those whose generosity makes the list of special prizes possible.

Membership Campaign.

As instructed at the last annual meeting, your secretary had 20,000 application-for-membership forms printed and sent to the leading chrysanthemum growers for insertion in their 1918 catalogues. So far the gain in new members has scarcely paid for the outlay.

The general outlook for the chrysanthemum is satisfactory. Not for many years has the demand for cut blooms been so heavy as this season. The pompons and single varieties are also being called for in larger quantities.

The routine work of the secretary's office, consisting of sending out statements to the members, recording the varieties disseminated, getting out the report of the sixteenth annual meeting and the solicitation of special premiums, was attended to in due season.

Your secretary wishes to acknowledge the kindness of Elmer D. Smith in furnishing him with a complete list of varieties disseminated in 1917, which was a great help in getting up the annual report.

The trade papers generously published all notices sent to them from time to time during the year, for which we owe to them a vote of thanks.

HOWARD M. EARL.

FEW men in the seed business are better known to the trade than Howard M. Earl, now associated with F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, D. C. For more than thirty years of his business life Mr. Earl was connected with Burpee, Philadelphia. When he graduated from the Episcopal Academy in 1886, Mr. Earl secured a position with the Burpee organization as an office boy. Later he went into the printing room and worked his way through the different departments in Philadelphia and the growing end at Fordhook until he became manager of the business, a position he held until about a year ago. Recently Mr. Earl left the Burpee organization and has joined the Bolgiano forces, of which F. W. Bolgiano, president of the American Seed Trade Association, is the head. Mr. Earl has been a member of the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association and a director of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League. He is married and has three sons, two of whom now are in France with the American Expeditionary Forces.

NEW YORK'S TWO SHOWS

THE MUM SOCIETY SHOW

At American Institute.

The annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America was held in the Engineering building, West Thirty-ninth street, New York, in conjunction with the eighty-seventh annual fair of the American Institute, November 6 to 8.

War-time conditions of course were against an exhibition on the usual scale, many regular exhibitors being absent, especially in the private classes. The exhibits, however, though few in number, in quality generally were most meritorious. There was little in the way of new varieties, nor was much expected, but some of the varieties which have passed into the standard class were particularly well done, notably William Rigby in the class for yellows, some blooms of which were really remarkable; Mrs. Gilbert Drabble and Wm. Turner, among the whites; Mrs. R. C. Pulling and Meudon. Stagings in the classes for specimen bush plants were light; in fact, were scarcely noticeable.

Commercial Competition Nil.

With the small amount of material available, the arrangement of the show was most creditable, the best possible advantage being taken of conditions. There were no exhibits from the retail trade and the artistic touch to the exhibition usually obtained through these was entirely missing. The groupings staged by C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., were fine and comprised the ornamental features of the exhibition.

The only exhibitors in the commercial classes were the C. H. Totty Co. and John Condon, of Brooklyn, who took the following awards:

C. H. Totty Co.—First for twenty-four blooms, long stems, one variety, with Louisa Pockett, white; first for twenty-four blooms, twenty-four varieties, 10-inch stems.

To John Condon—Second for twenty-four blooms, one variety.

In the open-to-all classes, C. H. Totty Co. took first for a vase of single varieties, ten sprays pink, with Bertha Fairs; R. E. Jones, Elberon, N. J., first for six blooms, Japanese anemone variety, white.

In the class for new varieties, including seedlings, sports and undistributed importations, C. H. Totty Co. took first for six blooms, any pink variety, and first for vase of anemone-flowered variety, with seedling No. 13. The same exhibitor was given special awards for a collection of anemone-flowered chrysanthemums, for group of chrysanthemums, for collection of hardy chrysanthemums, for collection of single chrysanthemums, for collection of pompon chrysanthemums, for display of hairy and plumed chrysanthemums, and for display of chrysanthemum blooms with short stems.

The C. H. Totty Co. staged splendid exhibits of the new roses, Columbia and Premier, in the non-competitive classes, for which special awards were given.

G. E. M. Stumpp, New York, was awarded a special prize for a collection of palms.

There were no commercial exhibits in the rose, carnation and violet sections.

W. J. Sealey, Portchester, N. Y., was awarded first prize for a collection of pompon chrysanthemums, ten vases.

The silver cup of the Chrysanthemum Society of America for the best seedling chrysanthemum not disseminated, six blooms of one variety on long stems, was won by the C. H. Totty Co.

The A. N. Pierson Co., Cromwell, Conn., was awarded a special prize for five vases of pompon chrysanthemums.

The judges were Eugene Dailledouze, Peter Duff, Alex. McKenzie, John McNichol and Wm. Turner. J. H. P.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY SHOW

Smaller Than Heretofore.

The annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York was held in the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West and Seventy-seventh street, New York, November 7 to 10.

As was to have been expected, the exhibition was much smaller than any held in recent years. The beautiful foyer of the museum, usually crowded with the finest examples of cultural skill, was only partly taken up with exhibits, the immense specimen plants trained to form one has been accustomed to see being supplanted by a few subjects of a size dwarf in comparison.

The main corridor of the west wing, and a small portion of the corridor of the north wing, were ample to accommodate the rest of the exhibits.

The number of exhibits was small. Consequently competition was not at all keen. The recent warm spell, no doubt, spoiled the prospects of many exhibitors, in that much material grown for exhibition had passed before the opening of the show; and war conditions figured considerably in the preparation of exhibits for this or any other show, most of the private establishments in the vicinity of New York being closed down on account of fuel restrictions. Among the exhibits, however, were many showing the high quality usually forthcoming and the exhibition was disappointing only to those who were inclined to pass judgment without due regard for conditions which were and are just now insurmountable.

The arrangement of the show was creditable, although without innovation. Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., exhibited palms and other plants in generous profusion, in a non-competitive way, and these were placed to advantage insofar as aiding in the general effect sought in arrangements.

Trade Exhibits.

The commercial exhibits, while not numerous, were good.

C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., carried off the first prize in the chrysanthemum classes for a collection of twenty-five blooms in twenty-five varieties; first for collection of singles, twenty-five varieties; first for new variety not in commerce, with a beautiful canary-colored with three rows of petals; first for vase of twenty blooms, stems not less than three feet, and first for collection of pompons in twenty-five varieties. The Totty Co. was the only member of the trade to make entries in these classes.

John Scheepers & Co., New York, staged in the foyer a nice bed of winter-flowering begonias and, in the west corridor, a fine collection of caladiums. They also received a certificate for everbearing raspberry, La France.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., staged two splendid groups of foliage and decorative plants and obtained a silver medal for specimens of Fourcroya Watsoni. In one of the stagings was a collection of decorative forms of Helxine Soleirolii, a small creeping herb, showing the adaptability of this plant for table purposes. In the same exhibit were many forms of tradescantia, the collection being awarded a silver medal.

The C. H. Totty Co. exhibited vases of the new roses, Columbia and Premier, which were greatly admired and which showed the commercial possibilities of these excellent novelties. Premier was awarded a silver medal.

In the orchid classes, Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., were the only exhibitors in the class for a group containing a collection of not less than twenty-five species and varieties, to cover fifty square feet of table space, and were awarded first prize. Conspicuous in the group was a new cattleya, Enid, a cross between C. gigas and C. Mossiæ, the flower having a lip much larger and more spreading than the parent. They received a silver medal for a new epidendrum.

Joseph A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., had a splendid exhibit of Cypripedium insigne. The sub-variety Sandeianum was awarded a gold medal. He also showed a new hybrid cypripedium, Sergeant Manda, a cross between C. radiosum Shorthillense and C. Fairrieanum, for which he was awarded a silver medal.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., staged a fine group of orchids in the non-competitive class.

Private Gardener Classes.

Competition also was slight in the classes for non-commercial exhibitors. The gardeners who were represented were:

Robert Marshall, gardener to J. R. De Lamar, Glen Cove, N. Y.; Max Schneider, gardener to Peter Hauck, Jr., East Orange, N. J.; Robert Jones, gardener to Percy Chubb, Glen Cove, N. Y.; Geo. Ferguson, gardener to Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y.; James Foster, gardener to Theodore R. Hoyt, Stamford, Conn.; Louis Piantin, gardener to Mrs. Louisa U. Skidmore, Great Neck, N. Y.; Wm. Reid, gardener to S. M. and A. Colgate, Orange, N. J.; A. Alius, gardener to J. B. Cobb, Stamford, Conn.; A. V. Carver, gardener to Miss M. Valentine, New Canaan, Conn.; John Thomson, gardener to Mrs. C. I. Hudson, East Norwich, N. Y.; A. Peterson, gardener to Chas. S. Smith, Stamford, Conn.

The society's silver cup, valued at $100, was awarded to the group of trained chrysanthemum plants exhibited by Robert Marshall. J. H. P.

GARDENERS' CONFERENCE.

The New England gardeners' conference, which was scheduled to be held in Boston, October 18, but was postponed owing to the influenza epidemic, will be held at Horticultural hall of that city under the auspices of the Boston members of the National Association of Gardeners November 22. The meeting will be called to order at the early hour of 6:30 p. m., to permit of ample time for a full discussion of the subjects to be presented.

All affiliated with the profession of gardening are invited to attend the conference, which may be counted on to prove of more than passing interest at this time, involving, as it will, the discussion of the many problems which will confront the gardening profession during the post-war period.

JOHN COOK'S BIRTHDAY.

John Cook, dean of the commercial flower growers of the country, becomes 85 years of age November 16. The anniversary, as usual, will be celebrated quietly at his estate, Hillside, near Baltimore, but it is safe to assume that Mr. Cook will be the recipient of many messages of congratulation from his friends in the trade.

While the active management of the Cook range, comprising some 60,000 feet of glass, is in the hands of Mr. Cook's sons, the founder of the place keeps busy about the houses, especially among the roses that have made for Mr. Cook the reputation of being one of the foremost producers of new varieties in the United States.

Mr. Cook was born in Germany, but came to this country sixty-five years ago. Practically all of those years have been spent in Baltimore, first as a gardener on private estates and later as a commercial grower. During his career he has produced many roses which were popular, among them being Maryland, Radiance and Francis Scott Key, which still are grown extensively for commercial purposes.

HE WILL BE 85 NOVEMBER 16

John Cook.

EXPENSE AS RELATED TO PRICE

AS A member of a committee appointed by the president of our club "to make recommendations for bettering conditions in the trade," I wish to say that I have made a careful study of this subject and my observations and experience lead me to submit for your kind consideration, first, an analysis of the situation, and then recommendations for improvements.

At the present time, under existing conditions, all branches of the trade are suffering and are not getting the returns they should from their business. The hardest hit of all is the grower, the backbone of the business, who has by far the greatest investment, the biggest fixed expense in depreciation and otherwise, and an extremely hazardous business. He is at present facing a serious situation and wondering whether it will be possible for him to survive. However, upon his welfare depends the further existence of the wholesaler and retailer.

Reports show that many greenhouse establishments are now operating at a loss, and of these a considerable number, finding it impossible to produce at a loss indefinitely, will close down all or part of their houses, to keep from losing more. This reduction in the supply, with the present decrease in the output on account of the glass already abandoned, may cut a large figure in the future of our business, and it directly affects the wholesaler and retailer.

The Problem of Prices.

To prevent further curtailment of production, it is necessary to get better average prices for the grower than those prevailing in past seasons. To this end the coöperation and assistance of all branches of the trade are needed. Better average prices will keep the growers above water, increase the commission and lessen the handling expense of the wholesaler, and insure the retailer a steady flow of stock.

It has been suggested that the only solution of the grower's problem is the establishment of a powerful growers' organization to handle the selling and establish a chain of stores for the direct disposal of flowers to the public at profitable prices. This, however, may be unnecessary, as there is no reason why the established wholesale houses should not handle the stock at prices that will enable the grower to make ends meet.

To accomplish this, it is necessary, in the first place, for the wholesaler to know what profitable prices for flowers are, and secondly, to get them. Many wholesalers have no producing experience and that of others is antiquated. Therefore it is necessary for the grower to supply him with an accurate record of the present-day cost of production per flower, from which he can determine the price he should get for the different varieties and grades from time to time to bring the season's average up to where it should be.

A paper read by Otto H. Amling, secretary of the Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, Ill., at a meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, November 7, 1918.

SUMMARY

Permit me to summarize my views in the following brief recommendations:

1—Growers, study the costs of production and bring them to the knowledge of the wholesalers.

2—Wholesalers, don't be bashful about asking a price. Remember that your season's returns per flower must average above the costs to enable the grower to live, and that the prices received during the months of heaviest production decide the average more than do the seemingly high prices usually prevalent when cuts are low.

3—Wholesalers, establish a minimum price of $1 per hundred on roses, 50 cents per hundred on carnations, and similarly on other staple articles.

4—Wholesalers, always bear in mind, even though you may lose a sale by asking a price from a customer who wants to buy for a song, that by maintaining uniform prices you may enable some other man to make a profitable sale, resulting in mutual benefits.

5—Growers, consign your stock to the house through which it reaches the retailer most directly.

6—Wholesalers, charge one another full market price. You owe it to the growers.

7—Growers, coöperate with and assist your wholesalers by a uniform system of grading and bunching, adopting such standard sizes as 12-inch, 15-inch, 18-inch, 24-inch, 30-inch, 36-inch and 48-inch for roses.

8—Wholesalers, remember that each inch of stem costs money to produce, and utilize the full length whenever possible.

9—The election of a representative advisory board of nine members, three to be chosen from each branch of the trade, to meet twice weekly in the trade's interest.

10—The issuance of two semi-weekly bulletins, one for the retailer and the other for the grower.

11—Retailers to purchase, as far as possible, the items on the long side of the market in sufficient quantity to prevent stock from reaching the department stores, thereby reaping the benefit for themselves.

I am convinced that a thorough knowledge of what it costs to produce each flower today will open the eyes of many men in the flower business, lead them to realize more fully that each flower has a value, and spur them on to get better average prices.

An Appeal to the Wholesaler.

Profitable prices can be gotten by the wholesaler if asked. Many times it requires nothing more. It should be borne in mind that nature brings on by far the largest quantity of stock during the spring and summer months, and that the prevailing price in these months in a great measure decides the season's average price. Even though prices may seem high during some months, when production is low, these high prices are needed to make up for the low averages prevailing at other times.

Uniform prices by all houses on equal stock, and the establishment and maintenance of a minimum price on flowers, such as $1 per hundred on roses, 50 cents per hundred on carnations and similar figures on other staple articles, would also result in materially improving weekly returns to the grower, as frequently just as much stock can be sold at these figures as could be moved if the prices were allowed to drop still further, thereby demoralizing the market.

In Times of Oversupply.

It would be better, in time of abundance, to donate to the hospitals of the country the unsold surplus, if any, after prices have reached these extremely low levels, than to follow the practices of some wholesalers, who offer stock for sale at 50 cents per hundred when their competitors are asking an established minimum of $1 per hundred. No greater quantity of stock is sold at the lower figures and the loss to the grower and wholesaler is tremendous. It matters little whether John Doe's stock is sold or that of Jim Smith, whether one wholesaler makes the sale or another. The main thing is that someone makes a profitable sale and not below the established minimum. If this is kept in the minds of all wholesalers, the wonderful mutual results will be reflected on the grower's statement.

Another practice of the wholesaler which has frequently come within my own personal observation, and which does not work out to the grower's best interests, is the reconsignment of stock, and the neglect at times of one wholesaler to charge another the market price for goods bought, although the stock so purchased is often again billed out at top market prices. In fact, some wholesalers have few or no consignors, and openly boast of being able to buy stock from others at prices enabling them to resell at wholesale at figures yielding them as high as 100 per cent profit. Growers can curb this practice and get the full price at which stock is billed to the retailer, less the usual fifteen per cent commission, by so distributing their stock that no one house will be overloaded on certain stock and placing it as nearly direct to the buyer as possible.

Uniform Grading of Stock.

A uniform system of grading such stock as roses by all growers to a certain length of stem—say 12-inch and under, 15-inch, 18-inch, 24-inch, 30-inch, 36-inch and 48-inch—tying them in bundles of fifty each and allowing one extra for breakage, would materially lessen the expense of handling the stock by the wholesaler, as stock frequently can be sold in these original bundles, thereby eliminating some of the breakage and bruises incidental to regrading. Open flowers, ready for immediate sale, should be kept separate. Arranging stock in bundles of a given length of stem would reduce the practice, common among some wholesalers' employees, of cutting stems unnecessarily short just because they think they ought to be so. Often have I witnessed this, much to my disgust. It costs money to grow every inch of stem on a rose and the full length of stem should be utilized whenever possible, and stems reduced in length no more than necessary.

A plan that has struck me as practical is the establishment of an advisory board consisting of three representative men from each branch of the trade, wholesalers, retailers and growers, who would meet twice a week to discuss prevailing conditions. Such meetings would help in a great measure toward bringing about closer coöperation.

A Growers' Bulletin.

Such a board, for instance, could issue bulletins after each meeting, a separate one to the retailers featuring the items that represent the best value at the time, owing to the quantity on hand. The prospects of the cut for the next few days, as gauged by the weather conditions and by information furnished by the growers, would also help them with their plans. Retailers would thus be enabled, during times of overabundance, to get bargains if quantity purchases are made, and they should go out and make a splurge, giving the public part of the benefit of their large purchases and thereby moving a large quantity of stock, in much the same way as does the dry goods man in his line. The result would be new customers and a handsome profit, besides eliminating the competition of the department stores.

In the Wholesaler's Hands.

The growers' bulletin would contain timely advice, such as: "Cut stock tighter, due to the prevailing heat wave"; "Market overfilled on roses; pinch what stock you can to have it come later"; "Quite a lot of stock arriving infected with mildew; get after thrips," etc. The recipient of this bulletin would stop to think whether any of his stock had been neglected in any way, and much could be accomplished in this way toward raising the quality of flowers received on the market. Under prevailing conditions the individual wholesaler often hesitates to call a grower's attention to his neglect, fearing he may lose a consignor, even though such advice would mean many dollars in his pocket and still more to the grower, besides more general satisfaction to the retailer.

After all, the wholesaler, as the grower's selling agent and the source of supply of the retailer, controls the situation, and it is my honest belief that he can do more than any other at this time to furnish immediate relief to the grower, enabling him to continue his difficult task in these times of stress. By so doing the wholesaler would improve his own welfare, as well as that of the retailer.

My general idea of improving the present system and affording immediate relief for the grower might be termed "cutting off the rough edges of present practices of the wholesaler," and would include closer coöperation with him by his retailer and the grower. It has been my aim, not solely to criticize, but to depict conditions as they exist, with a view to effect improvements which will insure the future prosperity of our business and result in mutual benefits. I would urge a discussion of these recommendations and the adoption of those that meet your approval.

The Chart of Expenses.

The prices received by the grower should be based, of course, upon a careful estimate of the cost of production. To illustrate this phase of my subject, I have prepared a chart which shows the relative amounts of the various items of expense in growing roses, under our system of culture.

The cost of production has been arrived at by taking the total operating expenses for the year, including proper depreciation charges and six per cent interest on the total investment, and dividing this into the total number of square feet of bench space. Thereafter the cost per square foot is used as a basis for all other determinations.

The cost of operation per square foot of bench space of an exclusive rose growing establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, was 67.6 cents per square foot, divided as follows:

	Per sq. ft. bench space
Wages	24.44 cents
Coal	11.32 cents
Commission on sales	10.14 cents
Depreciation on plant and equipment	4.73 cents
Interest on investment	4.35 cents
General expenses	3.88 cents
Fertilizers	2.15 cents
Boxes, wrapping and expressage	1.58 cents
Water (power bills and other expenses)	1.40 cents
Plants and seeds	1.26 cents
Taxes (state)	1.13 cents
Insecticides	.79 cents
Insurance	.03 cents
One rose grower's total cost	67.60 cents

Recent Increases in Costs.

The cost of operation during the current year will be much higher than the average prevailing during the last year. For instance, a lot of coal was bought in the fore part of the year at lower figures and with lower freight rates attached than are obtainable now. Labor, also, is considerably higher. The latter, as indicated by the chart, comes first in order of importance, with coal ranking next. These two represent a grower's heaviest expense items and any increases in these are reflected immediately on his balance sheet. Of course, the advances of other items since last year also add to the grower's difficulties.

Considering all advances and the extremely hazardous nature of the business, with little or no insurance, due to the almost prohibitive rates, I feel certain that the gross returns per season, to meet present conditions and provide a profit commensurate with the chances taken, should be not less than 96.2 cents per square foot on roses and similar crops requiring the same high temperature, fertilizer, and amount of time to handle. These figures would be somewhat lower in the case of carnations and other cool-growing crops.

The Returns per Plant.

The cost of operating per square foot is the basic figure for all other determinations. Some varieties of roses, such as Russell and others, are sometimes set closer, but the average planting distance of most growers is 12x15 inches. Each plant thus occupies one and one-quarter square feet of bench space. The gross returns per plant on roses should be not less than $1.20 on varieties occupying one and one-quarter square feet, and proportionately, according to distance set.

The average wholesale price for the year that must be obtained to reach this figure depends on the quantity of flowers a plant will produce on an average per season. Compilation of the average production of good, average flowers per plant from records of the last three years shows as follows:

Russell	17.3 flowers
Brilliant	32.4 flowers
White Killarney	35.1 flowers
Milady	25.4 flowers
Ophelia	26.5 flowers
Sunburst	26.4 flowers

Taking $1.20, the lowest amount a plant should return in a season, and dividing it into the average yield of each variety for a number of years, gives us the average price that should prevail on each variety, namely:

	Necessary yearly average.
Russell	6.26 cents each
Brilliant	3.69 cents each
White Killarney	3.29 cents each
Milady	4.67 cents each
Ophelia	4.38 cents each
Sunburst	4.52 cents each

Necessary Variation in Prices.

The selling price would necessarily be considerably higher for select stock and correspondingly lower for stock grading lower. Also the prices during the cold season, when the yield is limited and the operating costs are heaviest, should go above the year's average because of the exceedingly low prices during the season of heaviest production.

Although I have no late records on carnations, from experience and from the best information obtainable I would venture to say that the gross returns on carnations should be not less than 81 cents per square foot of bench space. Figuring a carnation plant as occupying five-ninths of a square foot of bench space, and taking a general average yield on all varieties of eighteen flowers per plant, would bring the season's price to 2½ cents each. Selling prices of all other flowers and plants can be determined from the foregoing basis.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

VICTORY WEEK.

I have an idea. I offered it at our Florists' Club meeting November 5 and William F. Gude and all who were present seemed to think it was worth passing along. I am writing it to you and others, because I believe the more people we can have interested in it, the better our purpose will be served, from both a patriotic and a financial standpoint.

We feel now that we are on the edge of victory, the victory of right over might; the victory that has been heralded to the world from generation to generation. We cannot, then, be considered previous when we make preparations to celebrate this victory. My idea is that thousands and thousands of women, and men, too, would like to have some standard, outward expression of their feelings for the occasion. What better emblem of this than a victory bouquet?

Can we not get together and put this over? Let the streets be fairly ablaze with ladies wearing victory bouquets for the first week after peace is declared.

The make-up of such a bouquet would necessarily be varied. It was suggested at the club meeting that three flowers with a shirred or ruffled red, white and blue bunting, or wide ribbon, or such a bouquet tied with a rosette of red, white and blue ribbon, or a bouquet with a small American flag in it, be used for this purpose.

Would it not be a wonderful thing during victory week for every city on the American continent to have ladies wearing about the streets such a bouquet, whether simple or elaborate, arranged with this patriotic effect?

Cannot you get the florists in your city to get together and offer it to the public in the proper manner and spirit?

THE RETAILER'S POSITION.

Under the caption, "One for the Grower," in The Review of November 7, S. Kahn has shown the point of view of the grower. I wish to reply for the retailer. I must say that Mr. Kahn has the wrong view of the retailer's position. He seems to believe that the grower has been the only dog under the table and I must answer that I know that he has had plenty of retailers to keep him company. Since the war started, however, the retailer who was feeding on the bone has passed away, with many of his friends, the growers. In fact the retailer was the first to feel the pressure and Mr. Kahn has not far to go to find some of the larger retailers among those who have gone to the wall.

During the recent epidemic, the grower who had anything to sell made a fat reap. So did the retailer. The retailer has no idea of dogging the grower now, had not in the past, will not at any time. If the grower felt that he fared badly at times it was only a matter of competition. The retailer was no better off. When I bought carnations for $1.50 per hundred, my competitor did the same and the consequence was low prices and large designs. When stock is high we sell for high prices and make profits in proportion. I believe it would be fine if the grower would get closer to the retailer. He is a better friend of the grower's than the latter seems to think. He has hard times just as often and perhaps oftener than the grower.

HOW TO READ A TRADE PAPER.

A wise owl said: "There is too much good reading in the trade papers to be taken in hastily. Take the trade paper home with you and read it while sitting in your easy chair. Spend one evening, after reading your daily paper, in thinking over your work with the help of your trade paper."

Too many florists, especially the busy retailers, receive their trade papers with other mail, give them one glance and that ends it.

Now, instead of that, a wise owl said to me one day: "Don't look at your trade paper during your business hours. Take it home and give it more time than usual." Ever since that I have done so, and I think I have learned a lesson. I did take the trade paper home and I can state that, to my surprise, I have spent many a pleasant evening digging deeply into the resources of our trade papers, and many a dollar I have made by studying these papers and gaining more knowledge of my profession. In the ads as well as the write-ups of our trade papers, there will be found suggestions that will enable you to ring up sales a great deal oftener than you have any idea of. Since that time I have taken my trade paper home, and feel much disappointed when the trade paper does not arrive promptly.

Try it and convince yourself.

COAL FOR OHIO.

Ohio florists hail with great satisfaction the latest order of the Fuel Administration, regarding it as virtually the removal of restrictions, as there is reported to be a substantial surplus of coal in the state. Fortunately, the majority of growers planted their benches as usual and proceeded with the hope that some modification of the order of last April, restricting them to fifty per cent of their normal coal consumption, would be forthcoming before cold weather. To some, of course, the concession has come too late to be of much benefit, as they decided several months ago to let their places remain idle during the winter. A few were impelled by the dismal prospects of last spring to dismantle their greenhouses and leave the business entirely. But the principal sources of supply are prepared to go through the winter months with slight diminution of their normal output.

This is extremely providential, as the ending of the war will give business an impetus which would be of little benefit to florists handicapped by a fifty per cent decrease in production. The new order of things gives assurance of a supply sufficient to take care of even an augmented trade, especially after the trying experiences of the last month, which has served effectively to place a higher value upon flowers and to inscribe in bold letters the absolute necessity of eliminating waste.

Ohio florists are indebted to their spirit of optimism and steadfast faith in the future for their extrication from an almost ruinous condition, for assuredly the unduly pessimistic are the losers.

THANKSGIVING PUBLICITY.

November 28 will be the greatest Thanksgiving day in history. The heart of every American will be athrill with genuine joy—and it will demand expression. What a splendid opportunity for the florist to increase his business!

Thus reasons the publicity committee of the Cleveland Florists' Club. As a result, the coöperative advertising for Thanksgiving day is to teem with such slogans as "Give your thanks," "Say your thanks" with flowers, and "Express your appreciation and gratitude to the boys 'over there' by wearing a flower." As yet only the few are aware of the great value of flowers as expressive of sentiment; the object is to make the multitude thoroughly acquainted with it, particularly now that it is sharing so liberally in the general wealth. Billboard advertising is not being employed this autumn. The entire campaign is in the hands of Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, whose publicity work has heretofore been so effective with the public of Cleveland.

Even in this enlightened community an occasional florist is met—it is an encounter if H. P. Knoble meets him!—who has decided to save money this winter by not expending the usual advertising appropriation. He reasons that, as flowers are going to be scarce, it is not logical that money should be spent to increase the demand. He forgets that the benefits accruing from all advertising are cumulative and that once a business man succeeds in placing his goods in public favor by the use of judicious publicity, it is nothing short of business suicide to discontinue it.

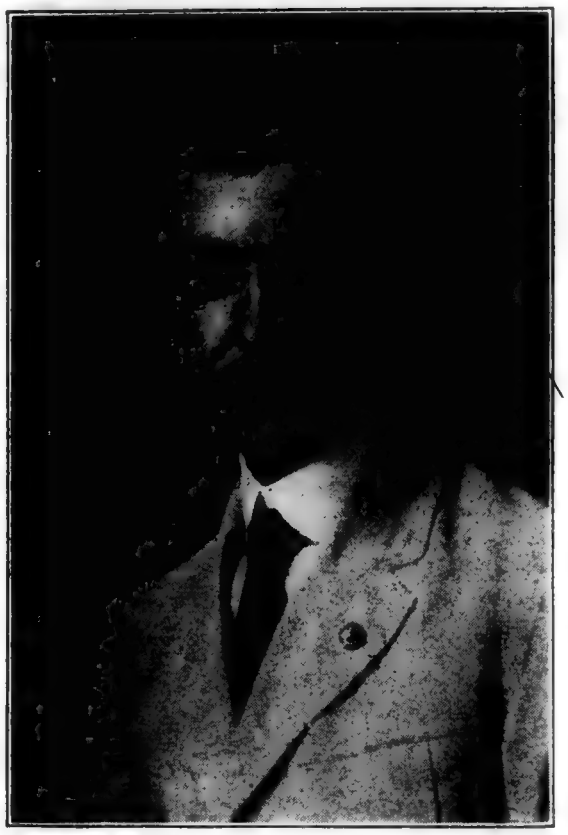
THE BOYS WHO DID THE JOB

THE WAR IS OVER.

U. S. Gets Credit for Victory.



The war is over and every one of the heads of the allied governments give the lion's share of the credit for the defeat of Germany to the American forces, whose appearance in France eighteen months ago shifted the balance of power to the side of the French and English and their allies. With the signing of the armistice, which went into effect November 11, Provost Marshal General Crowder issued orders to the draft boards to stop the entrainment of selected men for the cantonments. Undoubtedly there will be no more such calls, but those American soldiers who are in Europe will be needed there during the negotiations that will precede the signing of the peace treaty and the reconstruction period over there. Also the casualty lists will continue to come for some days yet. In these undoubtedly there will be the names of some members of our trade. When news comes of the florists who are fighting in France or from those who are now in the training camps here, send it to The Review.

E. E. Stone Dies in Battle.

E. E. Stone, wholesale florist of Dickinson, Tex., who left December 18 last for Toronto, Ont., and enlisted in the Canadian army, was killed in action in France, Mrs. Stone was notified by the Canadian government November 7. Mr. Stone was a Canadian and, having been refused enlistment in the U. S. army, returned to Canada and joined the Canadian forces. "When you have made up your mind to do your bit, it makes no difference where you do it so long as you are on the side of the allies," Mr. Stone wrote R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., then president of the S. A. F., just before he left Dickinson for Canada. Mr. Stone leaves his wife, who has been continuing his business of growing asparagus since he left.

Leo F. Willis Wounded.

Leo F. Willis, son of Mrs. George Madsen, of the Madsen Floral Co., Alton, Ill., was among the American soldiers severely wounded in battle during the recent "peace" drive in France. This information came to Mrs. Madsen last week. The young man was with what was formerly an Illinois National Guard regiment, having enlisted at Alton, June 7, 1917. He has been in France for a considerable time and saw a great deal of active service in the drive that ended the war.

Morris Le Vine Hurt.

Morris Le Vine, well known to the trade throughout the country, among whom he traveled for a number of years, has been wounded in action in France. This news was received recently by friends here. Mr. Le Vine joined the army more than a year ago and has been in France for many months.

Lieut. Charles B. Sands.

Lieutenant Charles B. Sands, formerly employed for four years by T. W. Wood & Sons, seedsmen, of Richmond, Va., who has been missing many weeks, is reported dead of wounds suffered in action. The facts in regard to the fate of the gallant young Virginian are not definitely known. He served with the first American squad of aviators in the same unit in which Quentin Roosevelt lost his life. It is thought he was for a time a prisoner behind the German lines.

Lieutenant Sands was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Conway Sands, of Staunton, Va., and was 23 years of age. He was a graduate of the Richmond high school and of the Richmond college. He was identified with school athletics.

Private Herman A. Schmidt, of Company L, 344th Infantry, of the American Expeditionary Forces, died October 14 in France of pneumonia. This information has been received by H. P. Smith, Piqua, O., his former employer. He was 24 years of age. Private Schmidt started to work for Mr. Smith after school and on holidays when he was 12 years of age and continued with him until he joined the army. For the last six years he was foreman and head grower. Of him Mr. Smith said: "Honest, industrious, kind to his loved ones and loyal to his friends, the untimely passing of this brave, good boy will cause many sad hearts among the scores who knew and loved him."

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The events of the last few days have been somewhat disturbing to the flower market, the thoughts of the buying public being turned to everything but flowers. Fortunately, arrivals have been rather light and have been moved without much difficulty, but prices suffered somewhat. November 12 conditions were normal and there was an improvement, although the demand was only moderate. Roses are shorter in supply and prices have stiffened. The best American Beauties have moved up to 60 cents apiece and the other varieties have advanced a little in the longer grades. Carnations are stronger than they were last week, and the quality is better; $4 per hundred is obtained for top grades. Easter lilies are not in active demand. Although the finest bring $15 per hundred, much good stock is available at $12, and this is about the average top price. The influenza epidemic has abated considerably, so with a greatly reduced death list lilies, largely used in funeral work, are working down to a normal demand. The supply of cattleyas is lessening, the cut of labiata being practically at an end, and Percivaliana and Trianæ not being yet ready to figure much in the market. There is, however, a good supply of cypripediums and phalænopsis, and a few oncidiums. Gardenias are making an appearance, but the flowers are rather small, few bringing more than $3 per dozen.

Chrysanthemums are, of course, quite plentiful and prices remain about the same. There is an ample supply of the single and pompon types, and their movement at times is sluggish; white varieties are in greatest demand, and other colors move under price concessions, although yellow in many instances goes off only at a sacrifice. The cooler weather has been favorable to violets, and prices have advanced a little.

Retail florists are hopeful that in a few days a healthy demand for flowers will be in evidence, and with the expected improvement in external conditions, business should soon become normal. Growers now are concerning themselves with the problem of benching stock which can be grown in cool houses, and the result may be that with less fuel restrictions, much will be produced to balance a shortage which has until now been considered threatening.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held November 11 at the club's rooms in the Grand Opera House building. The wild rejoicings over the signing of the armistice ending the war was responsible for a smaller attendance than usual, but interest in the proceedings was most marked. Besides the patriotic feeling which seemed to envelop everything discussed, and which was emphasized by the bursts of cheering that floated into the meeting room from the streets below, the club had two celebrations to go through which had not been heralded in the program for the evening. One was in the form of congratulations to Patrick O'Mara, who had just passed the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the house of Peter Henderson & Co. Mr. O'Mara made feeling response to a cordial address by President Schenck on behalf of the club, speaking at some length of his work during his connection with the florists' and seedsmen's business. From planting onions in a market gardener's domain to a head position with one of the largest seed houses in America was an uphill course, and he sandwiched in an experience covering two years as day fireman on twenty-one boilers. It did not seem that he had missed much in his course to the top. After much applause, C. H. Totty presented Mr. O'Mara, as a tribute from the club, a magnificent bunch of the new rose, Premier, which had been staged that evening for a judgment from the committee on awards. The other celebration was in the form of birthday congratulations to Philip F. Kessler, the efficient chairman of the house and entertainment committee, who, after owning to 45 years of existence, expressed his belief that he should give a peacetime birthday especial distinction, and therefore presented to the club a turkey lunch, which was discussed after adjournment. Naturally, congratulations were most heartily extended.

President Schenck, as chairman of the Florists and Allied Trades Committee, reported that the committee had disposed of Fourth Liberty Loan bonds to the value of nearly $400,000, greatly exceeding the subscription to the previous loan, which was placed when the florists were in a somewhat better condition than they found themselves today. Secretary Young read a personal letter received from Governor Strong, of the Federal Reserve bank, expressing his great satisfaction with the work of the committee, and such a testimonial of loyalty from the florists. Mr. Schenck gave particular credit to F. H. Lee, of Henry & Lee, who returned subscriptions for $65,000 worth of bonds; to the Lord & Burnham Co., which boosted the subscription list returned at the last meeting of the club by equaling practically every other subscription made, and to Robert E. Berry, a member now located in Virginia, who sent up $500, preferring to place his subscription with the club rather than his local committee, even to his personal disadvantage.

P. W. Popp reported for the flower show committee that the question of holding a spring flower show next year would be taken up and decided before the next club meeting.

W. A. Manda reported for the nominating committee its selection of candidates for offices in the club for 1919 as follows:

For president, Charles Schenck, John Canning, Philip F. Kessler; for vice-president, P. W. Popp, Emil Schloss, Charles Knight; for secretary, John Young, John H. Pepper, J. G. Esler; for treasurer, W. C. Rickards, Jr., Thomas B. DeForest, Alfred T. Bunyard; for trustees, Patrick J. Smith, E. C. Vick, Wallace R. Pierson, Max Schling, Percy B. Rigby and A. T. De la Mare.

Resolutions on the death of C. B. Weathered, Jr., son of C. B. Weathered; Louis Schmutz, Jr., and A. D. V. Snyder were presented and passed. The secretary reported the deaths recently of Ralph M. Ward and Walter R. Siebrecht, members, and of Mrs. Giessler, wife of Carl O. Giessler, New York; William Weber, son of Charles Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y., and a brother of Arthur G. Vescelius, of Paterson, N. J., and committees were appointed to prepare resolutions expressing sympathy with the bereaved.

C. H. Totty reported the result of the hearing before the Federal Horticultural Board in regard to the proposed restriction of plant importations, as reported recently in The Review.

Arthur J. Radice was elected to membership in the club, and Clarence Ankers, of Rockville Center, N. Y., was nominated for election at the next meeting.

A communication from the United States Chamber of Commerce calling for the appointment of representatives from the florists' trade to form a section of the organization was read, and on motion of F. H. Traendly the president was instructed to appoint a committee of two to report on the matter at the next meeting, and, if necessary, attend a preliminary meeting in Washington.

The coal situation was informally discussed, but it seemed to be the opinion of the meeting that conditions in the near future would insure relief under existing restrictions.

There was an interesting exhibition of flowers staged in the meeting room, and the committee on awards reported on the exhibits as follows:

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., collection of pompon and single chrysanthemums, and of the exhibition variety, Barbara Davis, silver medal.

R. L. Dunn, St. Catharines, Ont., vase of a new chrysanthemum, a yellow sport of William Turner, scoring eighty-five points, preliminary certificate.

The C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., vase of new rose, Premier, scoring ninety-one points, preliminary certificate.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Charles R. Miller will be found in the obituary column of this issue.

Joseph A. Manda, of West Orange, N. J., was in Boston November 6, a guest of the Horticultural Club. According to the Boston Transcript of November 6, Mr. Manda is credited with acquiring Cypripedium insigne Sanderianum in London.

W. C. Cook, who recently embarked in business in Cleveland, O., is reported to be a patient in a hospital in Newark, N. J. He is remembered here as a former salesman for Vaughan's Seed Store.

There was a meeting of the directors of the American Dahlia Society at the Grand hotel November 6, at which were present President Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., Secretary Lewis, of New York, James Duffy, George Stillman, Alfred H. Langjahr and George W. Kerr. The finances of the society were found to be in excellent shape. It was arranged that the next annual meeting and exhibition will be held in Syracuse, N. Y., at the New York state fair, and that sectional exhibitions be held in connection with the show of the Connecticut Horticultural Society, in New Haven, and the show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, in Boston.

Recent visitors were: F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; George Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; George W. Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., and R. L. Dunn, St. Catharines, Ont.

Henry Duncan, of Guara, Cuba, farm engineer and horticulturist for the United Fruit Co., was among the visitors at the meeting of the New York Florists' Club November 11. Mr. Duncan was an eyewitness of the sinking of the British man-of-war Audacious off the northern coast of Ireland, some time ago.

Morton F. Plant, a prominent exhibitor at the New York flower shows, died last week. His exhibits were greatly missed at the two shows just closed.

The stores of many of the wholesalers on Twenty-eighth street were gayly decorated with bunting November 11, in celebration of the signing of the armistice, ending the war. The day was observed as a holiday, unofficially declared, all business being suspended and the populace rejoicing in unrestrained enthusiasm.

In a fight last Thursday a man was shot for the reason, it was given, that he wore a yellow chrysanthemum above a miniature American flag. The general publicity given to the affair seemed to affect somewhat seriously the sale of yellow mums during the peace celebration. J. H. P.

DOINGS IN DIXIE

SOUTHERN FLORIST SUSPENDS.

It is announced that the Southern Florist, published at Fort Worth, Tex., has suspended publication. The journal had been in existence a little more than three years.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

Ever since the Charles W. Crouch store was again taken over by the Crouch family, business has been excellent. October was one of the most successful months in the history of the store. Not only was this true in the amount of business done, but old friends would drop in and say: "It certainly looks good to see you folks back in the game." This little greeting cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, but the good feeling brought so much business that it was impossible to fill more orders, although at one time the fourteen employees of the store worked night and day. We expect great things of the flower business, especially since we have secured the services of an expert grower of mums, orchids and roses to take charge of our greenhouses.

W. H. Crouch.

BIRMINGHAM'S BIG BUSINESS.

No Shortage of Stock.

Business with local florists throughout October was unusually good, it being occasioned by the epidemic of influenza, which struck this district hard. Practically every florist in Birmingham was hard pushed to keep up with orders. The demand was heavy, not only in Birmingham proper, but in the outlying districts for a radius of approximately 100 miles. In this district there are many prosperous mining towns, which called for much floral work during the epidemic. Fortunately, there was an abundance of roses, dahlias and mums from outdoors available, so that no serious shortage of flowers was noticeable. Greens, however, were scarce and such substitutes as cherry, laurel, arborvitæ, etc., were used to a large extent.

Since the epidemic abated business has settled down to nearly normal again, the demand still being for funeral work principally, there being only a few social affairs and little prospect of much in this line in the immediate future. Outdoor flowers are still abundant, there having been no killing frost as yet. Chrysanthemums are fine and nearly all of the local growers have good stocks of both large flowers and pompons.

Purely Personal.

Miss Charlotte Black has recently redecorated her flower shop and it now presents an attractive appearance.

F. G. Kelly, the Ensley florist, has recovered from the "flu" and is back on the job again. Mr. Kelly is the only local florist, so far as is known by the writer, who had an attack. Through the capable and energetic work of Mrs. Kelly his business did not suffer during his enforced absence.

We might add that the stork visited the writer's home November 3 and left a fine 10-pound boy, who has been named for his "dad," Oliver Weston Fraser. This is the first boy and naturally we are proud of him. O. W. Fraser.

TAMPA, FLA.

The Market.

Business has been excellent during the last month, the epidemic of influenza creating a large amount of funeral work. Locally grown flowers are, at this time of the year, scarce and it was next to impossible to secure enough stock to fill orders. There are now a few gladioli, roses and dahlias in the market, most of which are shipped from the north. Retail prices are as follows: White Killarney roses, $3 to $5 per dozen; Russells, $4 to $7.50 per dozen and the larger northern stock $8; fancy carnations, $2 per dozen.

Various Notes.

During the rush the Knull Floral Co. had all the work its staff could do, and had to turn down many orders through lack of stock, time and extra help. Fortunately, none of its force had the influenza, only bad colds, but all were worn out from the long, strenuous rush and the constant hurry. This is the only concern in Tampa that ships stock regularly throughout the year. The Knull company's new catalogue is now on the press and will be distributed soon. It will contain thirty illustrations.

Arthur Dervas reports that a few mums will be ready soon, but on account of being flooded with salt water by the high tide during the recent storm the crop will be short.

Anton Fiske, proprietor of the Tampa Floral Co., reports that his concern has been busy with funeral work.

The florists' trade of Tampa is looking forward to an excellent season, as it is expected the number of tourists will be large. Knull Floral Co.

HOUSTON, TEX.

Business Breaks Record.

With the passing of October, there is little doubt that it was the largest month's business with all the florists of the city that has ever been experienced in the history of Houston. We had a continuous run of funerals from October 3 until the end of the month. Flowers were scarce. The epidemic took off some of our best known men and consequently there was a heavy run of funeral work. It should certainly put the florists in a good condition to start off the winter's work.

Mums are coming in quantities. There

There was an interesting exhibition of flowers staged in the meeting room, and the committee on awards reported on the exhibits as follows:

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., collection of pompon and single chrysanthemums, and of the exhibition variety, Barbara Davis, silver medal.

R. L. Dunn, St. Catharines, Ont., vase of a new chrysanthemum, a yellow sport of William Turner, scoring eighty-five points, preliminary certificate.

The C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., vase of new rose, Premier, scoring ninety-one points, preliminary certificate.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Charles R. Miller will be found in the obituary column of this issue.

Joseph A. Manda, of West Orange, N. J., was in Boston November 6, a guest of the Horticultural Club. According to the Boston Transcript of November 6, Mr. Manda is credited with acquiring Cypripedium insigne Sanderianum in London.

W. C. Cook, who recently embarked in business in Cleveland, O., is reported to be a patient in a hospital in Newark, N. J. He is remembered here as a former salesman for Vaughan's Seed Store.

There was a meeting of the directors of the American Dahlia Society at the Grand hotel November 6, at which were present President Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., Secretary Lewis, of New York, James Duffy, George Stillman, Alfred H. Langjahr and George W. Kerr. The finances of the society were found to be in excellent shape. It was arranged that the next annual meeting and exhibition will be held in Syracuse, N. Y., at the New York state fair, and that sectional exhibitions be held in connection with the show of the Connecticut Horticultural Society, in New Haven, and the show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, in Boston.

Recent visitors were: F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; George Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; George W. Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., and R. L. Dunn, St. Catharines, Ont.

Henry Duncan, of Guara, Cuba, farm engineer and horticulturist for the United Fruit Co., was among the visitors at the meeting of the New York Florists' Club November 11. Mr. Duncan was an eyewitness of the sinking of the British man-of-war Audacious off the northern coast of Ireland, some time ago.

Morton F. Plant, a prominent exhibitor at the New York flower shows, died last week. His exhibits were greatly missed at the two shows just closed.

The stores of many of the wholesalers on Twenty-eighth street were gayly decorated with bunting November 11, in celebration of the signing of the armistice, ending the war. The day was observed as a holiday, unofficially declared, all business being suspended and the populace rejoicing in unrestrained enthusiasm.

In a fight last Thursday a man was shot for the reason, it was given, that he wore a yellow chrysanthemum above a miniature American flag. The general publicity given to the affair seemed to affect somewhat seriously the sale of yellow mums during the peace celebration. J. H. P.

DOINGS IN DIXIE

SOUTHERN FLORIST SUSPENDS.

It is announced that the Southern Florist, published at Fort Worth, Tex., has suspended publication. The journal had been in existence a little more than three years.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

Ever since the Charles W. Crouch store was again taken over by the Crouch family, business has been excellent. October was one of the most successful months in the history of the store. Not only was this true in the amount of business done, but old friends would drop in and say: "It certainly looks good to see you folks back in the game." This little greeting cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, but the good feeling brought so much business that it was impossible to fill more orders, although at one time the fourteen employees of the store worked night and day. We expect great things of the flower business, especially since we have secured the services of an expert grower of mums, orchids and roses to take charge of our greenhouses.

W. H. Crouch.

BIRMINGHAM'S BIG BUSINESS.

No Shortage of Stock.

Business with local florists throughout October was unusually good, it being occasioned by the epidemic of influenza, which struck this district hard. Practically every florist in Birmingham was hard pushed to keep up with orders. The demand was heavy, not only in Birmingham proper, but in the outlying districts for a radius of approximately 100 miles. In this district there are many prosperous mining towns, which called for much floral work during the epidemic. Fortunately, there was an abundance of roses, dahlias and mums from outdoors available, so that no serious shortage of flowers was noticeable. Greens, however, were scarce and such substitutes as cherry, laurel, arbor vitæ, etc., were used to a large extent.

Since the epidemic abated business has settled down to nearly normal again, the demand still being for funeral work principally, there being only a few social affairs and little prospect of much in this line in the immediate future. Outdoor flowers are still abundant, there having been no killing frost as yet. Chrysanthemums are fine and nearly all of the local growers have good stocks of both large flowers and pompons.

Purely Personal.

Miss Charlotte Black has recently redecorated her flower shop and it now presents an attractive appearance.

F. G. Kelly, the Ensley florist, has recovered from the "flu" and is back on the job again. Mr. Kelly is the only local florist, so far as is known by the writer, who had an attack. Through the capable and energetic work of Mrs. Kelly his business did not suffer during his enforced absence.

We might add that the stork visited the writer's home November 3 and left a fine 10-pound boy, who has been named for his "dad," Oliver Weston Fraser. This is the first boy and naturally we are proud of him. O. W. Fraser.

TAMPA, FLA.

The Market.

Business has been excellent during the last month, the epidemic of influenza creating a large amount of funeral work. Locally grown flowers are, at this time of the year, scarce and it was next to impossible to secure enough stock to fill orders. There are now a few gladioli, roses and dahlias in the market, most of which are shipped from the north. Retail prices are as follows: White Killarney roses, $3 to $5 per dozen; Russells, $4 to $7.50 per dozen and the larger northern stock $8; fancy carnations, $2 per dozen.

Various Notes.

During the rush the Knull Floral Co. had all the work its staff could do, and had to turn down many orders through lack of stock, time and extra help. Fortunately, none of its force had the influenza, only bad colds, but all were worn out from the long, strenuous rush and the constant hurry. This is the only concern in Tampa that ships stock regularly throughout the year. The Knull company's new catalogue is now on the press and will be distributed soon. It will contain thirty illustrations.

Arthur Dervas reports that a few mums will be ready soon, but on account of being flooded with salt water by the high tide during the recent storm the crop will be short.

Anton Fiske, proprietor of the Tampa Floral Co., reports that his concern has been busy with funeral work.

The florists' trade of Tampa is looking forward to an excellent season, as it is expected the number of tourists will be large. Knull Floral Co.

HOUSTON, TEX.

Business Breaks Record.

With the passing of October, there is little doubt that it was the largest month's business with all the florists of the city that has ever been experienced in the history of Houston. We had a continuous run of funerals from October 3 until the end of the month. Flowers were scarce. The epidemic took off some of our best known men and consequently there was a heavy run of funeral work. It should certainly put the florists in a good condition to start off the winter's work.

Mums are coming in quantities. There are a good number grown locally and a large quantity grown in the state. It is necessary, however, to have many shipped in from California and Chicago and other northern markets. Roses are arriving in excellent condition and good quality. Carnations are just beginning to come in good grade.

With the anticipation of 50,000 or 60,000 more soldiers, or about double what we had last year, prospects are bright for an unusual season this winter. The soldiers, more particularly the officers, are quite liberal spenders for flowers, always wanting the best.

I notice, of course, considerable decrease in the more elaborate decorations, but I am pleased to note orders are coming in large numbers, even though the amounts are not so great. This is due largely to the increased wages paid; also those who have never spent money for flowers are now buyers. As a whole, business is far above the average.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newell, of Kansas City, Mo., spent several days in Houston visiting their son Walter, who has been seriously ill at Camp Ellington. The young man is on the road to recovery and was permitted to go home with his parents on a 30-day leave of absence to recuperate.

Kerr, the Florist, reports a large funeral design business, not only locally, but out of town.

The R. C. Kerr Co. is making nice cuts of roses and mums.

The American Florists' Co., successors to Atwood & Fagan, now owned by Mrs. Fagan and Leon Hahn, reports a record-breaking business, not only in funeral work, but in the general cemetery work, it being located near the cemetery. The prospects for a fall business are bright.

The Houston Floral Co. reports a most excellent wholesale as well as retail business, local florists demanding about everything they could cut. Mr. Hauser reports that he is now ready for frost any time it comes.

Q. & S. Florists, Kutschbach, Kuhlmann, Carroll and Boyle & Pendarvis all report a heavy month's business.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Considerable improvement has taken place in cut flower circles within the week. Prices show a fair advance and supplies are tolerably well cleaned up daily, in spite of the fact that chrysanthemums are at their height. The number of mums coming in is much reduced compared with a year ago, but prices are much more satisfactory to the grower. The old reliable Bonnaffon is being received in quantity and remains the most popular commercial sort we have. Chadwick, Chieftain, Rager, Oconto and an assortment of other varieties are coming in; also a fine lot of pompons. Roses are doing better, with short-stemmed stock averaging $10 per thousand higher than last week. Ophelia continues to be the most popular of hybrid teas.

Carnations, with cooler weather, are arriving of better quality; the same holds true of violets. Some small lots of sweet peas are seen. Lilies are scarce, but callas are arriving more freely. Antirrhinums do not sell well and marguerites drag. There is a good supply of cattleyas and oncidiums, with a fair lot of other orchids. Asparagus continues to sell fairly well.

Horticultural Society.

The fall exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, November 6 and 7, was a small one. No prizes were offered, which accounted for the paucity of exhibits, but as a matter of fact the society made absolutely no effort to secure material for a show. The present year has proved beyond question that, if creditable shows are to be held, inducements must be offered to exhibitors, which the society could well afford to make. It is pleasing to note that a less penurious policy will prevail in 1919. A silver medal was awarded to W. I. Anson, orchid grower for A. C. Burrage, for a splendid group of choice orchids, well arranged with foliage plants. A similar award went to Joseph Manda for a fine display of Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ. Peter Arnott, gardener for E. S. Webster, received a silver medal for a dozen splendidly flowered begonias of the Mrs. Heal type, including Fireflame, elatior, Rosalind, Moonbeam, Optima and Exquisite. The last named varieties received a special silver medal.

Certificates of merit were awarded to Carnation 119 from F. Dorner & Sons Co., shown by S. J. Goddard, and to Chrysanthemums Monadnock and Nashawtuc, from Miss F. P. Mason. The variety Radio received honorable mention, also Carnation No. 167, from F. Dorner & Sons Co. Allston Conservatories had a nice group of foliage and flowering plants.

Nominations of officers of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for 1919 were as follows: For president, W. C. Endicott; for vice-president, Nathaniel T. Kidder; for directors, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, R. M. Saltonstall, A. F. Estabrook and George E. Barnard. The election and annual meeting of the society will be held at noon November 16.

Various Notes.

E. J. Beatty, who joined the British army four years ago and has been fighting in France for over three years, was reported killed two years ago, but a letter received from him last week proved him to be much alive. He has received the French Croix de Guerre and has also been mentioned for gallantry in Field Marshal Haig's dispatches. Mr. Beatty, who is a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, has had four brothers killed in action.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, is sending in fine flowers of Matchless, Ward, Pink Delight and Benora carnations, also Bonnaffon and pompon mums. Mr. Nelson is well supplied with coal, but finds the labor problem a hard one.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, who are large bulb growers, have now received most of their bulbs and in good condition. To show the excessive cost of bulbs when freight, etc., is added, Chester Paine states that one case of Victoria narcissi, containing extra large bulbs, cost $6 per hundred delivered. Some splendid Bonnaffon mums are now being cut.

Abraham Glick, salesman for McAlpine Bros., at the Flower Exchange, left for Camp Lee, Va., November 10.

Recent visitors included George E. Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.

The National Association of Gardeners will hold a local conference at Horticultural hall, Boston, November 22. Several prominent speakers from a distance will be present.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is cutting some excellent flowers of Chieftain and Rager mums. Mr. Vose always does these varieties particularly well.

November has proved unusually mild. Many tender plants were still flowering in the open, November 12, while a number of hardy perennials were blooming. Hybrid tea roses continue to bloom profusely.

William H. Elliott is getting a fine lot of roses from his Madbury, N. H., range. Ophelia is the best of all, but Miller is fine. Among pot mums Chalfonte, Mrs. Frank Beu, the Caprices and some excellent singles are notable.

Do not forget the club meeting November 19. Nominations of officers for 1919 will take place and there will be an exhibition of late mums and vegetables.

Letters received from William G. Iliffe, son of Daniel Iliffe, show him to be at the American Aviation base at Queenstown, Ireland. He reports the Americans as making big aeroplane preparations and is charmed with the horticulture of Ireland as seen on some of the large estates.

At Philip L. Carbone's, on Boylston street, fall trade has been exceptionally good not only in plants and cut flowers, but in the many accessories which this enterprising firm carries in quantity.

C. B. Johnson, of Woburn, whose chief specialty is high-grade carnations, is cutting an average of 100 dozen fine Bonnaffon mums daily, which M. Liebman has no trouble in selling quickly.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market has been cleaning up nicely, although the big rush of funeral work of the last month has quieted down. Carnations are arriving in larger supply and bringing good prices for all grades. Roses are clearing well, with a good demand for all grades. Pompons and chrysanthemums also clear daily. Violets are coming in good condition and meet a good demand for both single and double varieties.

Various Notes.

When Cleveland was awakened the morning of November 11 by shrill whistles and clanging bells which announced the signing of the armistice, business throughout the city was at a standstill. Such work as had to be sent out was taken care of and then all joined the crowds in one of the biggest and noisiest celebrations the city ever has known.

Charles Bastian, formerly with the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, has taken a position with the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co.

The influenza ban has been lifted in Cleveland and the flower shops all have gone back to their regular hours again.

Harry Dow is gradually getting back into the traces, after the accident which resulted in an injury to his knee.

Charles R. Miller.

Charles R. Miller, for more than twenty years a salesman for Walter F. Sheridan, New York city, died suddenly at his home in Flushing, L. I., November 9. Mr. Miller was at the store the day before his death. On reaching home he was stricken with pneumonia and died within twenty-four hours. He was 50 years of age. Mr. Miller was generally known among the trade as "Tommy" and had a host of friends. The funeral was largely attended by members of the trade and the floral offerings were numerous. J. H. P.

Benjamin Connell.

Benjamin Connell, a widely known and popular florist and nurseryman, of Merchantville, N. J., died at his home in that place November 9. He leaves his wife.

Du Brutz English.

Du Brutz English, of Mount Olive, N. C., died November 4 from an attack of influenza followed by pneumonia. Mr. English was sick only ten days. Mr. English was well known to many in the seed trade of the United States, in that he was one of the largest growers of vegetables for market, having hundreds of acres under cultivation. He also was one of the largest shippers of holly to those who handle this commodity. His death is regretted by a wide circle of friends in the trade.

Louis E. Schmutz, Jr.

Louis E. Schmutz, Jr., whose death at his home in Flatbush, N. Y., October 8, was briefly noted in The Review for October 17, was born in Brooklyn in 1874. Mr. Schmutz's father, Louis E. Schmutz, Sr., was in the florists' business at Flatbush and practically all the son's life was spent growing flowers, he having helped his parent build up the large greenhouse range that was devoted to the growing of potted plants. For a short time Mr. Schmutz worked for Siebrecht & Son, at their establishment at New Rochelle.

Mr. Schmutz was taken ill with Bright's disease nearly a year before his death. He bore his suffering patiently and never lost his jovial nature and friendliness, which made him popular with the trade both in Brooklyn and New York. He left his wife, Mrs. Martha Peltz Schmutz; two daughters, Eloise, aged 18 years, and Martha, aged 12; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Emil Schmutz, and four brothers, Frederick, Alfred, Gustave and Harry Schmutz.

The funeral services were held October 11 from the home and were attended by a great number of friends from among the trade. The flowers were exceptionally numerous and beautiful. The burial was the following day in Evergreen cemetery, Flatbush.

Dominic Figone.

Dominic Figone, at one time prominently identified with the florists' business in San Francisco, died November 3 at the age of 54 years. He was a native of Italy, but had spent most of his life in the Golden Gate city. For many years he conducted a florists' establishment. At the time of the great fire in 1906 his establishment on Sutter street, near Stockton, was burned out. Later he started up again, but soon discontinued and engaged in another line of business. He is survived by his widow, Theresa Figone, and his son, Antone. Funeral services were held November 6. Among the friends and relatives attending were a number of florists. M. M.

Emil Ferrari.

Emil Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., whose greenhouses and nursery at 202 University street, San Francisco, constitute one of the largest establishments of the kind on the Pacific coast, died November 5, following a short illness. He was a native of Italy and came to California in 1881. He started in business with his brother, Peter, and they gradually added to their holdings, becoming widely recognized as expert growers of roses, orchids, gardenias and other flowers. Peter Ferrari was ill at the time of his brother's death, but is considered on the road to recovery. M. M.

Milton Morris.

The death of Milton Morris, son of O. M. Morris, of the Morris & Snow Seed Co., Los Angeles, Cal., came as a sad blow to the family this week and the sympathy of all in the trade and many other friends goes out to them in their bereavement. While he had not been strong for a long time, his death, which was due to an internal abscess, was not expected. H. R. R.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business for the last week has been more nearly normal, both as to volume and prices, than for two months. There is still an active demand for funeral work, but nothing in comparison with the call that has existed since the middle of September, because of the influenza epidemic. There have been a few weddings and social functions during the week and, although the social program has not yet opened formally, its influence already has made itself felt.

Chrysanthemums are coming into their own and command better prices, which probably will hold up well, as there is not so large a local cut as in previous years. They wholesale from $6 to $20 per hundred and clean up daily. Roses are good in quality and plentiful at 4 to 12 cents and carnations show general improvement and bring 2 to 5 cents.

Various Notes.

Lieutenant Colonel Alexander H. Johnson has been honorably discharged by the War Department. He was in service with the Coast Artillery in the Narragansett bay district. He is a member of the firm of George Johnson & Son, of the Elmwood avenue greenhouses and nurseries. For several years previous to entering the service, he was city forester. He will resume the duties of the latter office in a few days.

Peter Byrnes had the church decorations of palms and pink chrysanthemums for the Baker-Schneider wedding at Wickford November 5.

Edward Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., has been sick, but is now convalescing.

Arthur Macrae has been at home on sick leave.

A. J. Vose, of Woonsocket, has decided not to start up his greenhouses this winter.

W. A. Bowers, of Washington street, has purchased a new Buick delivery automobile.

Edward O'Brien is now in the employ of Miss Nellie O'Connor, of Thayer street.

Fred Hoffman has just completed the changing of the heating equipment in his greenhouses at Pawtucket to oil burners.

Vincent J. Baraducci, of Atwells avenue, has added a new auto truck to his delivery department.

Willett P. Carpenter, of the Union Depot flower stand, and his wife have returned from a summer trip to Winnipeg.

O. H. Williams, of Plainfield street, is preparing to go to Florida for the winter.

Lawrence Hay was reëlected a member of the East Providence school committee for two years November 5.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Smith's Flower Shop, at Orange N. J., is attractive in white, artistically decorated and well supplied with choice stock from its own greenhouses, and reports good business.

• • • •

"We were never better equipped for the winter season," observed George Burgevin, of Valentin Burgevin, Inc., Kingston, N. Y., "and from the present condition of things we look for our usual liberal share of business." Fine stock, well grown and attractively displayed, is bound to bring results. It is worthy of note that Landscape Architect Julius Burgevin is converting the famous "broad walk" on the mall in Central park, Manhattan, into what is described as a "veritable floral paradise." He possibly obtained the idea from the park-like surroundings at the Burgevin establishment.

• • • •

The Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., has a good trade in potted chrysanthemums, which, being plentiful and reasonable as compared with carnations at $2 and roses at $3.50 per dozen, find a ready sale at this time. Medium-sized blooms of mums are preferred this season. Proprietor Englehardt has been ill for some time. It is hoped he may soon recover and relieve his good wife, who has charge.

John C. Thatcher's flower shops, both at Schenectady and Amsterdam, N. Y., have had a heavy run of funeral work. The Thatcher greenhouses, at Hoffmans, N. Y., were taxed to the utmost and responded nobly. W. M.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

DON'T get the idea that the end of the war will cause an immediate return to the good old times.

THE general opinion is that the first effect of peace on the flower business will be to insure a record-breaking Thanksgiving and Christmas trade.

AT the recent meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society resolutions were adopted expressing the keen sense of loss in the passing of Admiral Ward.

AT the exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society and Providence Market Gardeners' Association, to be held this week, all premiums are to be paid in Thrift stamps.

THE trade certainly has reason for congratulation that it has emerged from the period of the war in such strong condition. Such losses as the trade as a whole has sustained will be quickly recovered.

AN immediate turn in the trend of commodity prices is expected with the return of peace. A turn in the labor market at certain points was reported as much as a fortnight ago, because of the discontinuance of special lines of war work.

IT is reported that last week, when the approach of peace was seen, traveling salesmen for coal companies, men who have not been out of their offices since early last spring, took to the road in full force. It shows clearly what the coal trade expects.

THE state fuel administrators, one by one, are canceling the orders for lightless nights. There is an abundance of bituminous coal, especially the steam-making grades.

AS one of the signs of changed conditions, The Review's increase in subscription receipts in October, as compared to the same month of the preceding year, was the largest so far noted.

THE WAR ENDS.

For the benefit of any readers who depend solely on this medium of intelligence and who may not have caught the meaning of the sounds which made November 7 and November 11 different from other days, let it here be recorded that the great war has ended.

The country has had two days of unrestrained jubilation over the great victory—the winning of the war. Now it is time to consider the future.

It is the consensus that the return to prewar conditions will begin at once, but that it will be gradual, with the probability that it will be several years before general business in the United States gets back to where it was in 1913, if, indeed, that status ever is reached. The best judgment seems to be that the top prices of most commodities have been passed, but that the decline in prices will not be rapid, due to the continued large demand for food which will keep the cost of labor relatively high in spite of an increasing supply as workers are released from war tasks. If there is to be a period of depression following the war, it will not come at once and every effort evidently will be made to enlist government agencies to restrain the downward swing of the pendulum.

In the florists' business the first effect of the return of peace probably will be felt through the resumption of social activities calling for the use of flowers. It is thought the Thanksgiving and Christmas demands will exceed all records and that a splendid season's business is assured. The wealthy will resume their usual scale of living and the workers have acquired an appreciation of flowers which will be of lasting benefit to the trade and to the nation.

QUICK WORK.

A market that has snap to it, a steady demand, with firm prices, these are the reports coming in from the trade from every quarter. There is call for every item of stock that the grower can supply, if one is to judge from the response to offers made through the Classified ad columns of The Review. Stock is said to be short of requirements everywhere and progressive growers are disposing of their plants "in double quick time," as one of them puts it:

That little geranium ad took all our cuttings in double quick time. I have booked orders up to December 1. It pays to advertise in The Review.—Quaker Hill Greenhouses, Sebring, O., November 2, 1918.

Please take out the cineraria ad in the classified section. This was the quickest sale we ever had.—Furst Floral Co., Dayton, O., November 4, 1918.

Please take out my ad in The Review of Wurtembergia pelargoniums, as I am out of stock. Am enclosing check to cover another ad and subscription to The Review. One cannot get along without The Review, especially in these uncertain times.—R. B. Hayes, Shelby, O., November 2, 1918.

Cut out our rose ad, also the 5-inch and 6-inch ad of Jerusalem cherries. The Review surely does get the business.—C. W. Espy & Son, Brookville, Pa., November 4, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain that he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WORKERS NOT SAVING.

"The prospects of saving and economy on the part of the public at large do not appear as encouraging as is to be wished," says the Bulletin of the Federal Reserve Bank. "While there have been enforced economies, due to the absence of certain classes of goods from the markets, and while it is expected that the operations of the War Industries Board and its system of rationing will compel a further extension of this involuntary economy, it would appear that many classes of the population are still spending their current incomes as freely as ever (notwithstanding the fact that prices are today at record figures), because they have not yet embraced the national duty to save as a personal obligation."

CONTINUING U. S. CONTROL.

One of the questions that have been raised at Washington and in other parts of the country since the beginning of the collapse of the Central Empires and growing prospects of an early peace is that of the need of extending the life of the war boards for at least six months or a year after the cessation of hostilities. Indications now point to the making of such a request of Congress within the near future, especially so in the case of the War Industries Board.

Although the transition of American industry from the individual peace basis to that of strict war manufacture was accomplished under government direction and supervision with only negligible disturbance, fears are entertained in many quarters that the sudden withdrawal of industrial war restrictions might have serious results.

Regardless of divergent views as to what the near future holds for the country, it is agreed that the reversion of industry from a war basis to that of peace should be made under the same direction which previously changed the status to war machinery. This gradual reversion of industry back to its normal status, it is pointed out, does not necessarily mean the maintenance of government industrial control as long as possible. On the contrary, it is agreed that the reversion should be made as speedily as possible, but under government direction, to prevent the industrial disturbance which might occur if such a step were trusted to the natural laws.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The excitements of the last week have been almost too much for the market. For the first time in months stock accumulated at the end of last week, perhaps as the result of the virtual suspension of business the day of the premature report of the signing of the armistice. The market cleaned up fairly well November 9, but November 11, when the great war actually ended, city business came almost to a standstill. Shipping on that day was badly interrupted, owing to the cutting off of wagon service by the express companies a little before noon, both for incoming and outgoing shipments, it being impossible to maintain service through the loop district because of the wildly celebrating crowds. However, the wholesale houses turned their attention to getting out all the orders possible in the morning and in the afternoon some of them continued to do a little business by delivering by their own automobiles to the depots. The retailers found around the market could be counted on the fingers of one hand and there was no city business. Most of the retail stores closed at noon.

Since the great celebration business has been quiet compared to what it has been recently. Shipping has been better than city trade, but there has been no snap to the demand. It probably will take two or three days to get going again. Excitements never are good for the flower business of the moment.

Chrysanthemums are the market's leader and are coming in large quantities. For the fancy stock the demand still exceeds the supply and it nearly equals that of other grades. Prices have weakened only a little. Pompons continue abundant and still are the cheapest flower on the market. The quality of the stock arriving continues excellent and the better grades go quickly, but the common yellow stock is not so easily disposed of. The rose situation is somewhat changed. Long-stemmed stock in all varieties is arriving in quantities a trifle larger than the demand, while medium and short lengths are short of the demand. Prices have dropped a little.

Calendulas still are in good supply and are of excellent quality. There remains a steady call for pansies, but, while the call for these has increased, it does not absorb all the flowers coming into the market. The same is true of both single and double violets. Gladioli and asters have made their final bow. Carnations of good quality are arriving in increased quantities, but, as in previous weeks, the demand increases with the supply. The long-stemmed stock has not yet made its appearance. Pompons continue to make up for the shortage.

There is sufficient valley to answer immediate needs. It is the same old story with Easter lilies—a big demand and not enough stock to meet it. This also is true of orchids. Rubrum lilies, however, remain plentiful, but do not make up for the shortage of Easter lilies. Callas are arriving more plentifully, but meet with practically no call, and this condition exists with sweet peas.

Ferns continue to hold up in price. Everything else in greens, however, is plentiful.

The thoughts of wholesalers and retailers are centered on Thanksgiving, and it is the consensus that business will be far larger this year than it has been at any Thanksgiving in the history of the flower business and that flowers will be seen in every home in the city, in every village and on every newly blazed trail, in palace or hut, no matter how far isolated. It will be a Thanksgiving that will be a celebration of peace on earth and how better can the spirit of

From present indications there will be plenty of stock for all needs; no shortages are looked for, although it is said by many growers that they have cut some varieties of mums earlier than usual.

Club Meeting.

The feature of the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, held November 7 at the Randolph hotel, was the nomination of officers for the coming year. The election will be held at the December meeting. The nominations were as follows:

President—George C. Weiland; A. J. Zech.

Vice-president—Walter Amling.

Secretary—A. T. Pyfer.

Treasurer—Otto H. Amling.

Trustee—Fred Lautenschlager, to fill the vacancy of outgoing trustee, H. N. Bruns.

Arthur A. Craig, who was appointed by President Lautenschlager at the September meeting of the club to work out a proposed plan to bring about a better understanding between wholesalers and retailers, read a paper in which he gave in detail a plan for a committee to settle all grievances between wholesalers and retailers, the main object being to to do away with "red violet" business. The paper was so excellent that President Lautenschlager will have it read again at the December meeting, when a larger attendance is looked for.

Otto H. Amling read a paper on the cost of production of roses, which appears elsewhere in this issue of The Review. A communication was read, coming from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, asking for a war service committee of florists of the United States to meet at Washington to deal with the government on the question of fuel supply, etc., the committee to represent the entire florists' trade. The letter stated that copies had been sent to members of the trade in every city. It did not occur to anyone until afterward that the Chamber of Commerce either was starting something antagonistic to the S. A. F. or that the letter was merely the evidence of lack of knowledge of what has been done by the trade's regularly authorized representatives, so the club voted to name a representative. But that's over now.

Reports were made by several of the committees, the most important of them being from T. E. Waters, chairman of the good-of-the-club committee, who gave a review of the work accomplished by the committee during the year. Mr. Waters, while at Cleveland recently, saw the club film showing all branches of the florists' trade, and on behalf of the Chicago Florists' Club Mr. Waters asked that the film be sent here, to be shown at the next meeting. The club gave its hearty approval.

A "Victory" banquet was suggested to be held during December for all members of the club and their friends and to be also a ladies' night. An exhibition of Christmas novelties from all branches of the trade also was suggested in conjunction with the banquet. This was put to a vote, passed and turned over to the sports and pastimes committee for action, it being understood that expenses were not to be defrayed by the club but by those attending.

Applications were received from Harry E. Neve, Grant Wiffin and X. Wojtkiewicz, all from Des Plaines, Ill. Albert Berlin was elected a member.

President Lautenschlager, due to his good work during the Fourth Liberty Loan drive as chairman of Division 19-B, was asked by the officials of the National War Work Campaign to act as chairman of the entire division, but felt obliged to decline. The club appointed Secretary Zech to act for the florists and allied trades.

Various Notes.

It is reported that Anton Then has sold his greenhouses to the American House Wrecking Co., for removal from the property.

Chrysanthemum pot plants never sold out so early in the season as they have done this year, according to Frank Oechslin. Mr. Oechslin is looking for a record Christmas business this year and had begun his preparations for it long before peace was in prospect. He has received a quantity of the Pacific coast azalea plants, but not his full order.

C. J. Michelsen spent November 13 at Richmond, Ind., looking over the Hills' stock for Thanksgiving.

Joy again reigns in the home of Edmund Misiewicz, the Milwaukee avenue florist, as a gold service star has turned back to blue. Zygmund Misiewicz, his son, was among the first of the boys of the A. E. F. to arrive in France and was wounded July 26, according to a letter received from an army chaplain, who stated that he had died and was buried August 6. This report reached his parents October 10, but some mistake evidently was made, as the regular government notice was received by his parents last week, with the information that the boy is in a hospital in France. He is well known throughout the market.

A prosperous looking gentleman entered the store of W. J. Smyth one day last week with the remark that he owed a little bill and that it had occurred to him to save a stamp by paying it in person. Imagine the cashier's surprise when it proved to be A. J. Burt, of Spokane, Wash. It was a telegraph delivery order from Mr. Smyth's card in the Pink Part of The Review. The errand which called Mr. Burt to Chicago was the consummation of a wedding.

His bride was Mrs. Clara Phillips Cathey, whose home is at Memphis, Tenn., but who is known in musical circles throughout America. The ceremony was performed in Chicago November 6. While here Mr. Burt visited many points of trade interest. He has one of the largest stores on the Pacific coast.

W. H. Noble, who has a greenhouse establishment at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., has been in town for several days. He says he has leased a room on Sixty-third street just east of Cottage Grove avenue and that he will open a retail store there. He says he also plans to open a store in Milwaukee.

Ed Vilter, well known throughout the market before going to Idaho, has returned to Chicago and entered the employment of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

H. C. Wendland celebrated Victory day at Wellington, Kan., where he went last week on business.

Fred N. Dubois, who, before enlisting in the ordnance department of the regular army, was with George Wienhoeber, called on his friends in the market the early part of the week, being home on a furlough from Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, N. Y. Mr. Dubois, although not having served in France, came home with his left arm almost helpless from shrapnel wounds. He was in Morgan, N. J., at the time of the ten-million-dollar munition plant explosion and his arm was injured by a bursting shell. Mr. Dubois is a Spanish-American war veteran and wears the color bars of that war on his coat, as well as a medal for marksmanship.

August Juergens left for Ridgeland, Miss., November 7, to look after his business interests there.

Thousands of passers-by on Randolph street during the Victory celebration November 11, paused and looked up at the stars and stripes that were flying from one of the windows of Poehlmann Bros. Co., with a large white peace dove with spread wings mounted on the end of the pole.

Frank McCabe, traveler for the A. L. Randall Co., is in Chicago with the report that the florists' business in the south is better now than in many years and backs this up by saying that his last trip was the most successful he ever has made.

R. J. Mohr has resigned his position with the A. L. Randall Co. He will go into business for himself.

CINCINNATI.

The florists' business as well as every other business in this city was at a standstill November 11. Everyone closed up as quickly as possible and all joined in the celebration of the cessation of hostilities.

The market is fairly well supplied with stock of all kinds. Business continues to be fairly good, although it is not so brisk as it was for a time. Shipping business, however, holds up well.

The rose supply is good and sufficient for immediate requirements. Carnations are more plentiful than for several weeks. Easter lilies may be had. Chrysanthemums and pompons are in heavy supply. All sizes and all seasonable varieties may be had in this line. Among other offerings are single violets, lily of the valley and a few sweet peas.

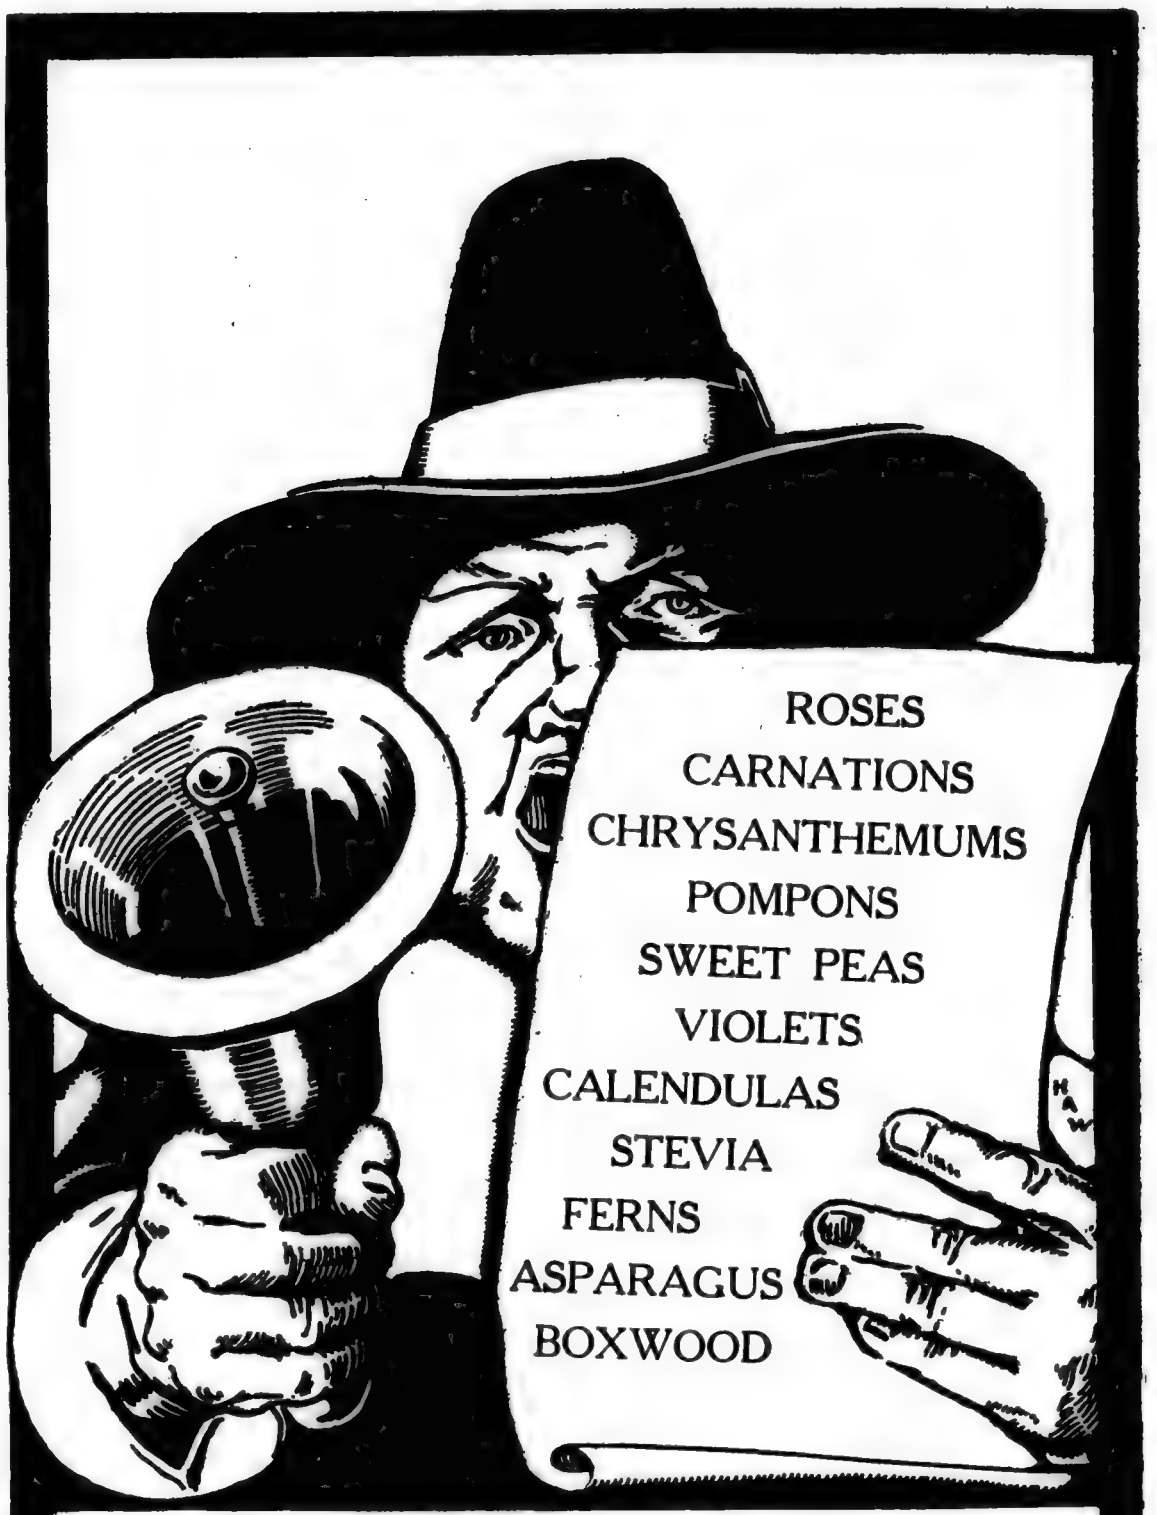
C. H. H.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business conditions continue satisfactory now, with just enough flowers to meet the demand. This applies especially to chrysanthemums, the glut expected on account of the coal situation having been precluded through the excessive demand, due to the high death rate. Likewise the supply of all grades and varieties of roses parallels the demand. Carnations are coming in more freely, but lilies continue scarce. Greens are more plentiful, with the exception of ferns, which have been ruined by the combination of the warm weather and delayed shipments. Prices have descended to normal.



Coal Abundant.

Dr. Garfield's modification of the coal regulations for western Pennsylvania, the coal center of the United States, already has proved of the greatest advantage to our growers. The coal dealers hereabouts are now hunting markets for their product. Secretary Theodore P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., speaking November 8 of the recent marked change in conditions, said that within two days three dealers had telephoned him soliciting orders, something which has been unheard-of for at least eighteen months past. He said that if the local florists did not have enough fuel during the coming winter, it would be entirely their own fault.

Various Notes.

Following the rescinding of the ban on public gatherings, an exceptionally interesting session of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held November 5 in the auditorium of the North Side Carnegie Library. "Chrysanthemums" was the subject of the program contributed by extemporaneous speakers. There was also a beautiful display of blooms from private sources, including probably the largest seedling ever shown in Pittsburgh, the property of Manus Curren, head gardener at the Sewickley Heights country place of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Horne, of Lakewood, N. J. The bloom measured thirty-four inches in circumference. Splendid specimens of mums also were shown by William Thompson, Jr., of Sewickley Heights, and Herman Rapp, superintendent of the late David T. Watson's Leetsdale country place, Sunny Ledge.

Several members of the club recently have severed their connections with private estates to take up work more essential. Superintendent Anthony Aloysius Leach, of Greenlawn, estate of Henry J. Heinz, has resigned, to enter one of the Westinghouse concerns. Mr. Leach remained at Greenlawn to usher in the annual chrysanthemum show, which, notwithstanding the shortage of labor, was the finest in the history of this semi-public benefaction. His first assistant, Frank Hasslinger, is temporarily in charge of the greenhouse, together with Michael Jacobs, who some time ago returned from Camp Lee on Considering the adverse conditions in the way of shortage of both stock and labor, Foreman John W. FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The market is in a highly satisfactory condition at present, owing to the great crop of chrysanthemums which have been forced into bloom by the sunshiny, warm weather of the last few days. The big run on funeral work continued throughout last week. A large number of new cases of influenza having developed, the Board of Health decided to keep the lid on public meetings for an indefinite period.

Some extremely fine chrysanthemums are being offered, including Golden Wedding, Chrysolora, Odessa, Chieftain, Dr. Enguehard and Major Bonnaffon. Pompons are arriving in numberless varieties and they sell on sight. The rose supply is amply sufficient to meet all demands and prices have dropped. There is a good crop of fine carnations. Single violets and sweet peas are coming in larger quantities and there are some exceedingly fine orchids, principally cattleyas, which bring $1 and $1.25 each.

Club Meeting.

The Fort Wayne Florists' Club held its November meeting at the store of the Flick Floral Co. November 8, with President Edgar Wenninghoff presiding. Among matters of business discussed, that of the city greenhouses selling flowers and plants through the 5 and 10-cent stores and the department stores, at only a little above wholesale prices, was brought up. It was decided to write a letter to the Board of Park Commissioners, asking them that the surplus flowers from the city greenhouses be sold at market prices, the letter to be signed by all the florists. It was decided by the club not to hold the annual flower show this fall, on account of war-time conditions.

Various Notes.

This city participated in the great celebration which took place over the signing of peace terms. The first celebration, November 7, brought out a big call for flowers, especially chrysanthemums, which were used in the local parade. Most of the florists kept their doors open all day. However, all the stores, including the florists, closed at noon, or before, November 11. Many of the florists are lending their services for the success of the United War Drive, November 11 to 18.

Two more sons of a Fort Wayne florist have gone into military service, Dick and David Vesey, sons of Judge W. J. Vesey. Dick Vesey has joined the motor transport corps, reporting for duty at Washington, D. C., whence he will be transferred to a training camp. David Vesey will be permanently located in Washington, in the hardware and metals department. Both of the boys are married and each is the father of two children. They volunteered their services to the government some weeks ago, but only recently received their calls.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

All last week the market was in splendid condition. There was plenty of stock and the demand was large. The quality of the flowers coming in is excellent and all the fancy stock is quickly disposed of at good prices. Shipping business also has been large with all the wholesale houses. Chrysanthemums in all varieties have the call and are of excellent quality. The leading varieties in the market are Major Bonnaffon, Eaton, Colonel Appleton, Golden Wedding, Dr. Enguehard, Charles Rager, Chrysolora and Seidewitz. All of them sell well. Carnations are showing improvement in quality, but the consignments received are not heavy. Fancy stock is up to $6 per hundred, while the common flowers bring $4 per hundred. These prices are unusual at this time of the year. Roses are of exceptionally good quality and meet a good demand. The leaders are Columbia, Russell and the Ophelias. There are plenty of them. Violets are better each week in color and stems and they clean up at fairly good prices. Local growers say the supply will not be heavy this season. Extra good valley is selling well at $6 per hundred. While Easter lilies and orchids are scarce, there is an extra good demand for them. All greens cleaned up last week. The demand for smilax, asparagus and galax was heavy and the supply is large.

Various Notes.

The regular meetings of the St. Louis County Growers' Association and the Lady Florists' Club were not held last week, because of the ban on such gatherings on account of the influenza epidemic. Unless the restriction is lifted there will be no meeting of the Florists' Club November 14. For four days, commencing November 9, the health authorities ordered all stores not essential to close.

The florists' publicity committee held a meeting November 5 and, while there was not a large attendance of the members, considerable advertising was placed in the daily newspapers for Thanksgiving. A large advertisement featuring the S. A. F. slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and the chrysanthemum will be inserted in the newspapers to stimulate Thanksgiving sales. No names are signed to the advertisement, which urges the readers to "see your nearest florist." The advertisement is attractive and will undoubtedly create considerable business for the holiday.

Luther Armstrong, of Kirkwood, celebrated his eighty-first birthday October 28. Mr. Armstrong, who was the first secretary of the St. Louis Florists' Club when it was organized thirty-two years ago, is in excellent health. He received many congratulations from his friends in the trade.

Mrs. Julius Koenig, widow of the late Julius Koenig, a charter member of the St. Louis Florists' Club, and the mother of Otto G. and John L. Koenig, of the Koenig Floral Co., and Julius Koenig, city forester, died at her home here, November 4, at the age of 73 years. The funeral services were held November 6 and were attended by many members of the trade. The floral offerings were numerous and elaborate. The sons have the sympathy of their many friends among the florists.

Charles Wolfsberger, of Kirkwood, died last week. He was a brother of Robert Wolfsberger and Mrs. W. J. Pilcher. The funeral was held November 6.

The report November 7 that peace had been declared created considerable business for the florists and those in the downtown district cleaned up their supplies of stock. Members of the publicity committee were on the job with cards bearing the S. A. F. slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and distributed them to the crowds that thronged the streets.

Edwin Guntly, of Windler's Flowers, celebrated his sixth wedding anniversary at his home on Virginia avenue, November 5.

The window decorations of the west-end florists are veritable mum shows these days. Fred C. Weber, Joseph Witek and F. H. Weber had notable displays last week.

Albert F. Kopp, of Kirkwood, is consigning to this market the finest Eaton mums seen in a number of years. Special blooms brought as high as $5 per dozen, wholesale.

Speaking of high prices for dahlias this season, Henry Jenneman, of Webster Groves, reports that he received as high as $1 per flower for some of his fancy stock. He has several new varieties for next season.

Mrs. George Madsen, of the Alton Floral Co., Alton, Ill., has received word that her son, Leo Willis, has been severely wounded in battle in France. The young man enlisted in 1917. He has many friends in the trade in St. Louis.

Joseph Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was expected in St. Louis November 14, to exhibit his new rose, Premier, for the benefit of the local rose growers.

Word has been received by friends of Morris Le Vine, of New York city, that he has been wounded in battle in France. He has many friends among the trade here.

Mrs. Louis Krite closed her flower store at Jefferson street and Cass avenue last week, owing to the death of her sister, at Beaumont, Tex. Mrs. Krite will make her home in Beaumont.

Arthur Ellison, who is now at the Grand avenue store of the Mullanphy Florists, is the buyer for both the Mullanphy stores.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

The Market.

George Aeugle's terse comment on the situation, "Chrysanthemums are selling and nothing else," gives a pretty clear idea of conditions for election week.

Perhaps it is a bit strong to say that nothing else is selling, but it really is true. The other flowers drag. They must be pushed. They do not bring good average prices.

Chrysanthemums have been good stock. They moved steadily at good figures throughout the week. They are probably in the height of their season now, with perhaps one more week of plenty. Then the chrysanthemum will begin to decline. The supply for Thanksgiving will depend on the weather, with one fact to be considered, however, that they are a week ahead of their usual blooming season so far.

It is asserted that over three-quarters of the business for the current week is for departures and for the sick. This is offered as an explanation of the fact that pink and white pompons have been in demand, while yellow and bronze have not, the bright colors being used chiefly for table decorations and for home adornment.

The daintiest flower in the market is Bouvardia Humboldtii. It is an exquisite bloom, with grace, fragrance and purity charmingly combined.

While valley still can be obtained, its use is steadily declining. White sweet peas, Swainsona galegifolia alba, white orchids and occasionally Bouvardia Humboldtii are being used as substitutes.

The group of flowers classed as miscellaneous that usually make their appearance at this season have not come. Whether this is due to the fuel restrictions or to lateness is not certain.

Beauties, for the first time this season, have been in oversupply. The reduced quantity of violets has sold better.

The market may be described as in fine shape for the season, usually a period of marked overproduction.

Bulbs.

A steamer said to contain the balance of the Dutch bulbs so anxiously expected in this country sailed from a British port October 27. It should, therefore, be in an American port before this paragraph appears in print and, if wind and tide favor, the bulbs should now be on their way to their respective destinations.

The Greenhouse Situation.

The lifting of the coal embargo October 26, when the Fuel Administration withdrew its order of April 24 limiting greenhouses to fifty per cent of their normal supply of fuel for the current year, comes too late to affect materially the winter's supply of cut flowers and plants. However, it will greatly increase the spring production. While florists have cheerfully gone without half their coal to help win the war, it seems unfortunate that the sacrifice should have been necessary. It is, however, perfectly possible that for many of us this sacrifice may prove a good thing. For no one will dispute that one greenhouse well run is much more profitable than two greenhouses poorly run, and labor is scarce. In fact, with most of us, labor has been a far more serious problem than coal. The street believes that the rose growers and some of the plant growers will operate their entire places this winter and that the carnation growers and some of the plant growers and the general florists will operate part of their places during the winter and start the rest up in the spring, when they can work up stock, provided the necessary help is obtainable.

WM. J. BAKER, WHOLESALE FLORIST 12 South Mole Street Philadelphia, Pa.

The Florists' Club.

Vice-President Edmund A. Harvey occupied the chair at the November meeting of the Florists' Club. There was a fair attendance. The feature of the evening was the address of Robert Craig, called upon at a moment's notice to fill the place of the essayist, who was prevented from attending the meeting. Mr. Craig delivered a brilliant address on "Our Business." He sketched the past history of floriculture, depicted its present and predicted its future in glowing terms that stimulated his hearers to renewed efforts.

Clarence U. Liggit exhibited for the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind., a handsome vase of their beautiful new rose, Premier, a cross of Ophelia and Mrs. Charles Russell. Edward Schwartz, of Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., exhibited a collection of rose seedlings of promise, one a cross of Ophelia and his Aaron Ward. It has been planted in quantity.

A Peace Window.

There were wild scenes of excitement in this city November 7, when the report that peace terms had been signed by Germany and the allies was received. Immediately Harry and Edward Berger, who trade as William Berger Sons, retail florists, at 5522 Germantown avenue, arranged a beautiful "Peace" window. The background was of broad white chiffon, gracefully draped. In front were American flags and red, white and blue streamers, relieved by ferns. The effect was striking and highly artistic in its conception and execution. Harry Berger has often said that ours will be a great business after the war. This window was his firm's way of imparting their confidence to the public.

Christmas Plants.

With the possibilities of a shortage in good Christmas blooming and bright-colored foliage plants, it is interesting to know what the wide-awakes are doing to meet the emergency. So Robert A. Craig, who so ably manages the affairs of the Robert Craig Co., was seen and interviewed.

"I am urging preparedness," Mr. Craig said. "Some of our out-of-town customers already have bought their Christmas plants. They have asked us to ship them early. They have arranged with their local florist, who has some spare room, to care for these plants until Christmas. This will insure their having fine plants and having them when they want them. I have mentioned this plan to several florists, who thought so well of it that they are adopting it."

Dreer, Inc., is still busily engaged filling bulb orders behind closed doors.

William J. Baker is working with great energy distributing the fine chrysanthemums that are coming into his commission house.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held in the Library building of Vernon park in the afternoon and evening of November 11. There was a good attendance and display. George B. Kaiser was the speaker of the occasion.

Emil H. Geschick's showhouse is a magnificent sight, with its wealth of well grown chrysanthemums.

Edward Reid is handling a large amount of business that calls for choice material.

A. M. Lawson found the Red Cross sales of outdoor flowers hard on the aster business in the summer, but now mums are going well.

Frank R. Hastings turned out some fine work during the recent sorrowful rush. Mr. Hastings takes proper pride in his window display.

Leo Niessen comments on the increasing usefulness of the parcel post to florists.

Raymond Brunswick, secretary and treasurer of the M. Rice Co., believes that while the next six months will bring big problems to many industries, they will be a time of great prosperity to florists.

Edwin J. Fancourt, second vice-president of the S. S. Pennock Co., comments on the active demand for carnation plants, unusual so late in the season.

This column would not be complete and would be lacking in patriotism without a word on Peace, that means so much to us all.

The scenes in Philadelphia November 7, when the mistake occurred, and again November 11, were extraordinary in their enthusiasm. Harry Bayersdorfer said that everybody in his place rushed into the street, leaving members of the firm to lock up the place. That was the story everywhere in the city. Little business was done. Everybody celebrated the great victory that closed the world war. Phil.

The Market.

This week the market is normal in the better grades of stock. There is still a good deal of inferior outdoor stock on the market. Especially is this true of low-grade chrysanthemums. Cosmos is still to be had, but it will soon be over. There are still plenty of good mums and roses are in good crop. The demand for funeral work has fallen off, owing to

GLOEKLER FLOWER STORE REFRIGERATORS

Gloekler Fixtures in Store of A. W. Smith Co, Pittsburgh.

THE essential feature of a refrigerator for cut flowers is a cold, dry circulation of air. That is the fundamental principle of Gloekler Flower Refrigerators. The stock keeps to its full limit, and at the same time results in a saving of ice. It requires perfect insulation to produce this condition, and the Gloekler method of reinforced cork insulation has been proven by test the only practical way of producing such a result.

And then, the selling quality of the refrigerator—that is a big point for consideration. These refrigerators display flowers so attractively that the flowers almost sell themselves. They are as valuable as an extra salesman in your store. They present an insistent argument to the customer to buy, but in an unobjectionable way. And, after all, the first aim of the florist is to sell.

Gloekler Refrigerators are made of selected materials, finished to exactly harmonize with your store interior, and completed with our own heavy, attractive hardware.

Many splendid styles and sizes in stock for quick shipment. We build any size or style to order. Any finish.

conditions having improved decidedly. The public is getting back to natural conditions and is beginning to think more of the natural mode of living. For over a month the people have thought of flowers only in connection with funerals, but things are beginning to right themselves and the brighter side of life is again uppermost. And now that the terms of the armistice have been accepted by Germany and the war is over, the public will, no doubt, throw off the suspense under which it has been living for the last year and a half and business soon will come into its own again. Let us hope that by the first of the year things will be in such a condition that the Fuel Administration will see its way to lift the ban on coal entirely and the growers be allowed to run their ranges at full capacity.

The Fruits of Experience.

The last year has been one that has tried the staying qualities of everyone in the trade, but I am glad to be able to say that everyone hereabouts has weathered the storm. It has been, moreover, one of the most valuable experiences they possibly could have had. I do not believe there is a single one in the trade who has not been benefited by the lessons learned in the strenuous times through which all have passed. Of course, a readjustment of business conditions is bound to follow the war, just as when the war started, but everyone met this as in the natural course of events. While it may be early to discuss this subject, we feel sure that as the people met the changes in the beginning of the war, they will measure up to whatever the future may have in store. One thing is certain, the florists' business is on a firmer foundation today than it has ever been in its history. This was demonstrated to the writer November 3 while on a trip out by way of the Annapolis boulevard past Cedar Hill and Holy Cross cemeteries, where All Souls' day was being celebrated. Thousands of people were to be seen, each with an armful of flowers, journeying to these two burying grounds. As my readers will realize, these were the poorer classes of our citizens. It is true that in most cases the flowers they carried were dahlias or outdoor chrysanthemums, yet every one of them had to be procured from the stores or the markets. One commission man told me that they could not get enough of the cheaper varieties of flowers to meet the demand on this occasion. In many of the better stores they told me that never in their experience had they done such a business as on this occasion. This is really the first flower day of the season, yet it is one that, until a short time ago, was not taken much notice of in our city. This only goes to show what may be expected of our established flower days in the future.

The time is past for thinking of flowers as nonessential. The business of everyone in the trade from this time on is to think only of supplying the demand which is sure to come. The public will have flowers. They demanded them when conditions were such that even those of us who deal in them could not have blamed them had they economized and passed flowers up. But in these times the demand was even greater than in normal times. Tate.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Bulbs from Holland are coming in more freely and are in considerable demand, though some growers are putting off buying stock until the weather becomes cooler. Chrysanthemums are in their prime. Carnations are coming into the local market and, while the stems are short, the quality of the blooms is good. They are high-priced, however. There has been a scarcity of galax leaves and autumn foliage has been used as a substitute by some of the florists.

Various Notes.

George Penek, of Broad street, has been so busy with funeral work as a result of the epidemic that he has had to put on additional help. He has had to work nights repeatedly.

SERVICE:—Selling a customer is not so difficult, nor so important, as satisfying him. Disposing of goods and getting the money does not always end a transaction. Service is the deciding factor and time determines the quality of service. That is why it is safe and real economy to do business with an institution that handles only what is actually good. Then there is no disappointment and service is assured.

FULL SUPPLY CUT FLOWERS AT ALL TIMES

feet of piping, are to be dismantled by order of the receiver, Judge Herbert W. Rathbun. This business went into the hands of a receiver several months ago and a fortnight ago the estate was offered in five parcels at auction. At that time the greenhouses were bid in by the Washington County Trust Co., one of the heaviest creditors.

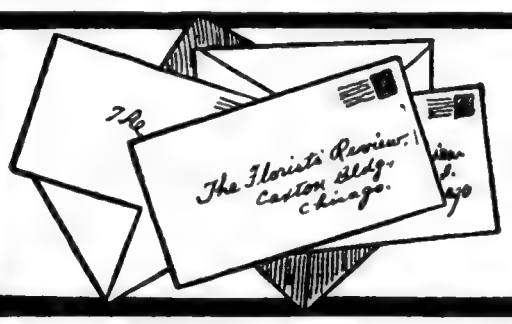
The annual chrysanthemum show at Hazard Memorial hall, South Kingstown, November 7, was successful. The exhibits were well arranged and some fine specimens were shown. There was a large attendance. W. H. M.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Market conditions are normal again. The regular supply of all seasonable stock is coming in and is fairly well taken. Chrysanthemums are plentiful, but there is not an oversupply. The chrysanthemum season is somewhat mixed this year. The warm weather is bringing the late varieties in with the mid-season varieties. White and yellow Turner predominate at present. There are also white and pink Chieftain and white Rager. Bonnaffon and Marigold are the most attractive yellows at present. The outdoor pompon chrysanthemums are about out. They escaped the frost entirely this year. Diana is the most popular of indoor pompons.

The demand for roses is not so great, though they have not been better any time this season. Unusually fine Russell are to be had, also Hoosier Beauty and Hadley, Russell bringing from $2 to $4 per dozen, and Hadley from $8 to $20 per hundred. Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland and Ophelia can be had at from $4 to $10 per hundred. Aaron Ward and Golden Gem have both been popular this fall. White roses can be had in any quantity and are going begging. Cattleyas sold well all the week at $9 per dozen. Sweet peas are more plentiful and have longer stems. They can be had at from $1 to $2 per hundred. Easter lilies find little sale.



Various Notes.

The annual mum show of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has not been opened to the public this year, the first time in fifteen years. The district health officer ruled that the show could not be held on account of the influenza epidemic. Superintendent Byrnes entertained some friends and officials of the department at a private view.

At the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, held Tuesday, November 5, at the store of Gude Bros. Co., 1214 F street, it was suggested by the president, Z. D. Blackistone, that the florists in Washington and throughout the country put a victory corsage bouquet on the market as soon as the armistice terms with Germany were signed, or as soon as peace is declared. When the false rumors that the armistice had been signed came, a number of the stores made displays in the windows of victory corsage bouquets. The most attractive ones contained a white chrysanthemum and some red roses, tied with blue ribbon; some were made with various flowers and tied with the national colors; others with a small American flag in the bouquet. The victory bouquet is undoubtedly a good suggestion.

Bessie Stuart Campbell gave her famous lecture on "Roses in Alexandria," Monday, November 11. M. S. O.

"Say It with Flowers"—At the end of 30 days "Say It with a Check"

Florists Everywhere

Members of the F. T. D. and Others: Whenever you receive an order for flowers from another florist, fill the order. Give your customers and the other fellow's customers Service. Send something, even if only a letter, or call up the people to whom the flowers are to go and tell them that you have a message from their friends to deliver; tell them, if you must, that at the moment you are out of flowers, but will have some later and will send them then. Do business in a businesslike way.

Use the Slogan.

Judging from the clippings of advertisements coming into our promotion bureau, the trade is not using our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," to the extent expected. A little thought to the fact that this slogan is featured in all our magazine advertisements should determine the advisability of using it as widely as possible—in all advertising, on stationery, boxes, parcels and wherever it can be intruded. While it is not absolutely necessary that the line conform to the design of the one used in all bureau publicity, printers, of course, being able to provide a bold setting for any purpose, still, as the public is now quite accustomed to seeing it in our own style, it would be better to get a line electrotype from the bureau, or have one made especially. We can supply electrotypes of the line one and one-half inches, two inches, six inches and nine inches long, carrying all these sizes

In addition to the magazine advertising already arranged for November and December, the program for January and February embraces a list of twenty-seven national magazines, which are to carry a series of advertisements featuring the slogan in connection with special days and seasons. In eighteen of these magazines an advertisement will appear twice, and in nine of them three times. The combined circulation of these magazines is roughly estimated to be in the neighborhood of 10,000,000 copies, and it must be remembered that this field is to be gone over twice, and forty per cent of it three times. With all this publicity our slogan as a trademark will have a value almost incalculable, and florists may and should use it as much as possible.

The Magazines Selected.

The list of magazines is as follows:

Atlantic, Red Book, American Magazine, Century, Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, Harper's Magazine, Hearst's Magazine, Metropolitan, Munsey's Magazine, Popular Science Monthly, Review of Reviews, Scribner's Magazine, Vanity Fair, Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, World's Work, Sunset,

It is now almost a year since our publicity campaign started with an appeal for subscriptions. We aimed to raise a fund of $50,000, but if our object is to be attained we must raise about $5,000 more before the close of the year. Will we do it? If the florists who have not yet subscribed will give our project the consideration it deserves, we will. As has been said many times before, this is not work for the benefit of any one florist; it is for all in the trade, collectively. One man cannot get more than another, our policy of using journals of national circulation insuring against this. The larger the city, the larger the number of florists, of course, so the benefit is most equitably distributed. And it may be said, without fear of contradiction, that the campaign for the year 1918 has resulted in a complete stabilization of business despite most adverse conditions. It has increased the demand for flowers considerably; it has built up business for special flower days; and has caused the public largely to look upon flowers and plants in a new light, as subjects highly suitable for gifts.

As "drives" for the attainment of important objects are the fashion today, why not start one by yourself, sending in a subscription to the fund if you have not already done so? In your own community you have brother florists. Why not make a little drive and send in a community subscription? You would feel the better for it.

Remember, all subscriptions are published. John Young, Sec'y.

We have had a year of reflection on our publicity work, which has had a wonderful effect for the small amount of money expended in our campaign, in a business way, as well as in creating renewed interest in those connected with the florists' business who were more or less pessimistic as to the outcome.

Now, what has been the result of this movement of all-for-one and one-for-all, to which each one has contributed financially his or her part, large or small, towards making our campaign successful to the extent that all might share in the general benefit created by the good

Has it not been inspiring to some of us who have been for a long time waiting for people to "Say It with Flowers," instead of any other way? And has it not had a beneficial effect also in causing some of our friends in the trade to lay aside some of their funds to be expended in their local newspapers, which was a means of tying up with the campaign as well as of making new business?

Now, to those who have participated by contributing funds, the feeling of satisfaction is worth many times the money itself, because it means breadth of view and unselfishness as compared with the attitude of those who fail to respond to an appeal for the general welfare, but who enjoy the benefits nevertheless. Now that the spirit of giving for all that is good is in the air, may we not expect to create that same spirit among the florists? Let us call it the "brotherhood-of-man spirit," each and everyone contributing to the general campaign fund for 1919, so that we can go on with this good work that will carry our profession to a higher plane, where we may all benefit by the energy of those who show a disposition to help their neighbors. I know of no better way than by continuing along the lines laid down, making our slogan a household word in every home in the land.

The Market.

A calm has settled over the market and the hustle and bustle of October is now but a memory. Roses are plentiful and most of the time slightly in excess of demand. twixt-and-between condition, so to speak, so far as large-bloom varieties are concerned. The large-flowered early and mid-season varieties are cut out and the late varieties not fully matured. A plentiful supply of small mums is available and meets a satisfactory demand. Prices range from $1 per dozen for culls up to $4 per dozen for the best. Carnations are improving both in quality and quantity and a daily clean-up is effected at $6 per hundred. Lilies are scarce and no dependency can be placed on daily supplies. varieties of flowers for Thanksgiving is assured, but it seems safe to assume that it will be only fifty per cent of the demand, especially in the case of mums. Inquiries relative to concessions on large-quantity orders are coming in with increasing frequency, but they are not acknowledged with the enthusiasm of former years. Booking orders in excess of ability to supply will be avoided if possible this year and the word in wholesale circles seems to be, "Dozen rate flat and half of what you want." Of course there are the favored few who have earned the right to preferred service by prompt payment of accounts and steady patronage who will be booked for their total requirements.

Various Notes.

O. S. Magnuson, of Kane, Pa., reports business continuing as briskly as during October. "When the local demand subsides temporarily," he says, "the demand from the outskirts of our trade area makes up the deficiency and an easy hour has not been seen for a long time." Mr. Magnuson's development of the potential demand for flowers in Kane and near-by towns during the last five years is nothing short of phenomenal. A stranger in a strange community, with a few greenhouses in a deplorable state of disrepair, was his lot when he made his debut in Kane. By untiring energy and carefully directed toil, backed by an ineradicable smile, he rapidly developed a business that, in output and revenue, rivals that of many a fair-sized city store. Mr. Magnuson's mums and carnations are looking well and yield a daily cut of satisfactory proportions.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, 'It might have been.'" This little aphorism has received the sincere confirmation of the executive force of the Lakeview Rose Gardens. When the fuel restriction order was promulgated, plans were decided upon that called for the discontinuance of seventeen 300-foot rose houses. The labor employed in operating these houses was transferred to other sections. The result was the drying up and dying off of the stock. October, with its unprecedented demand for roses, came and went its way, leaving pleasant thoughts of the additional revenue that might have been had if the average October production of the abandoned section had been available at the prices that obtained. Consolation was derived from the fact that war is war and no sacrifice too great that assists, even in a trifling degree, the consummation of its aims. At any rate, it would have been foolish to heat the section during September and October and by so doing jeopardize the winter prospects of the balance of the place. But when the morning mail November 4 contained a notice from the fuel administrator for the district granting permission to burn bituminous coal to 100 per cent of normal requirements, what a difference it made! The ease with which the section could have been operated accentuated the poignancy of thought regarding the loss in revenue. But it was realized that the most important part of most men's lives may be "what might have been," so attention is concentrated on business as usual.

Sherm Offerle, of Warren, Pa., reports the biggest October in the history of the business in that section, both in output and profit. The "flu" hit Mr. Offerle hard, for an edict was promulgated by the local board of health that closed the doors of every place of business, with the exception of drug stores,

The Market.

The cut flower market has resumed its normal condition and business is somewhat quiet for this time of the year. Funeral work is not so much in demand, but it is the greater part of the business at this time. So far this season little is being done in receptions and parties. After being under quarantine for the last five weeks, the ban in this city was lifted on most places November 5, and on all places, including the schools and colleges, the following day. Little business was done November 7, when the "peace" news came. After the orders were safely out of the way, most of the stores closed for the remainder of the day. The people were most excited over the news, only to be sadly disappointed when it was denied. November 8 and 9 business was more brisk, which cleaned up most of the stock. The prevailing flower at this time is the chrysanthemum, which is seen in many varieties, including white and yellow Turner, Bonnaffon, Chrysolora, Chieftain, Harvard, Dorner's Pink, Smith's Ideal, Unaka and Rager. They are bringing from $8 to $25 per hundred, according to quality. There are quantities of pompons on the market in many varieties. Yellows, pinks and whites sell in preference to the darker shades. Outdoor pompons sell fairly well. They are of good quality this year, although there is a scarcity of yellow varieties. Since the heavy demand for flowers stopped, prices have lowered in proportion. The supply of carnations meets all present demands. Fairly good stock is seen. Only a few asters arrived last week and no more are expected this year. For some unknown reason the sale of violets is small, and only about half as many are being sold as in the last season. Some good cosmos, mignonette and snapdragons are seen; also a little Gypsophila elegans. There is a good supply of roses on hand. The demand is not overlarge, but they move fairly well. Ophelia, September Morn and Columbia are mostly in demand. Orchids and bouvardia are on hand, but they do not meet a large demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Begonia, pompon, primrose, cyclamen and lily plants are seen and sell well.

Various Notes.

Robert H. Link, an able seaman who was gassed in the battle of Chateau Thierry and invalided home and who worked in Rochester during the first week of the recent Liberty Loan campaign, has made application for entrance into the officers' training camp, at Camp Fremont, Cal. Before his enlistment in the regular army Mr. Link was in the employ of James Vick's Sons.

Fred Peartree, who for several years has been in the employ of his cousin, G. T. Boucher, has accepted the position as manager of the Rosery Flower Shop, on Clinton avenue, now owned by E. Kendig, of Oswego, N. Y.

Ransford W. Wilson made an automobile trip to Alton, N. Y., November 8.

George Cramer has been working on the remodeling of the greenhouses of the late Frank Obrien, of Fairport, now owned by George B. Hart.

Visitors this week include H. S. Baker, of Warsaw, N. Y., and H. Kurth, of Reed & Keller, New York. Owing to the new ruling of the Fuel Administrator, Mr. Baker is planning to run the whole of his range this winter.

A fine chrysanthemum display is now on at the Lamberton conservatories,

FRAT-M

FRATERNAL EMBLEMS.

What are they?

They are 4-inch reproductions of Fraternal Emblems embossed in gold and the colors demanded by each Fraternal Order

How are they used?

They are attached to the ribbon or chiffon of any floral offering.

Why are they of such help to the Florist?

They save flowers, as the colors demanded by each Order are embossed on the Frat-M. They save wire designs; for instance, any plain spray with a Frat-M attached becomes a fraternal piece. Think of what this means, with a shortage of wire and flowers as scarce and high as they will be the coming winter. They save lettering. Think of that. If attached to door badges alone, they are worth many times their cost.

What do they cost?

They cost 20c each, or $2.00 a dozen cash, and should retail for 50c each, or $6.00 per dozen. An order of two dozen ($4.00 cash) gets the exclusive use of Frat-M's for one year in cities of 25,000 or less. They can be bought from your wholesale supply house, or the a specialty of pompons in all shades. He finds there is good money in them. Not only are a great many sold as cut flowers, but the demand for potted pompons is steadily increasing and many are disposed of in this way. His stock is in good shape and will be ready for cutting shortly.

Many of the local growers who have been unable to procure enough coal to last them through the winter months have been growing lettuce and other vegetables of quick growth. This has saved their houses from lying idle, but since the new ruling of the Fuel Administrator it is probable that several may change their minds and run the whole of their greenhouse ranges.

SALT LAKE CITY.

The Market.

The first heavy snowfall, November 5, has practically destroyed outdoor flowers of every description, which have been utilized by the retailers to good advantage for funeral work for the last eight weeks. Scarcity of flowers in this territory and shortened supplies from California will make the market situation uncertain from now on. There is still a fairly good supply of mums from California and Giant violets are starting to come in quantity. Greens have been a scarce item for the last month, but will be ample from now on. A fair supply of California roses has been coming into this city at reasonable prices and were useful for funeral work. Scarcity of flowers in Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Nevada forced retailers in the small towns in these states to send in their orders to the florists in this city and those catering to the out-of-town trade have enjoyed an immense business. The wave of influenza seems well under control in this city, but it is working havoc in the state of Idaho, and northbound express trains are loaded with flowers every day. The primary election day, November 5, has been one of the dullest days in the floral calendar in years past, but every florist in the city was rushed to death that day and the florists' cash registers were heavily loaded with coins.

The florists are now making preparations for Christmas stock. Considerable stock is being ordered in the flowering-plant line.

Various Notes.

Fortunately, none of the florists in this city has been afflicted with "flu" so far.

Bailey & Sons Co. reports the arrival of aquarium and bird supplies from the east and is featuring displays of high-grade bird cages, Victory singing canaries and ornamental aquariums with Japanese fantail goldfishes artistically arranged among blooming chrysanthemum plants and ferns.

Florists in Pocatello, Id., report an unprecedented demand for funeral flowers. Miss Mabel G. Atkin, of Pocatello, who recently started in the business, was perhaps the busiest florist there this fall.

The B. C. Morris Floral Co. and the Huddart Floral Co. were heavy shippers of funeral flowers recently. The forces of these concerns have had scarcely time to breathe for several weeks. The Huddart Floral Co. is keeping up its window display in its usual artistic manner. A recent attractive display was of baskets of chrysanthemum plants, pompon baskets and numerous novelty bouquets, arranged by the city's only lady floral artist, Mrs. Harford.

The Lambourne Floral Co. has had an immense business in funeral work. Its large window was much admired last week for a decoration of exceptional beauty.

The Miller Floral Co., of Farmington, reports the arrival of Holland bulbs. The outlook for poinsettias for this Christmas is unusually fine.

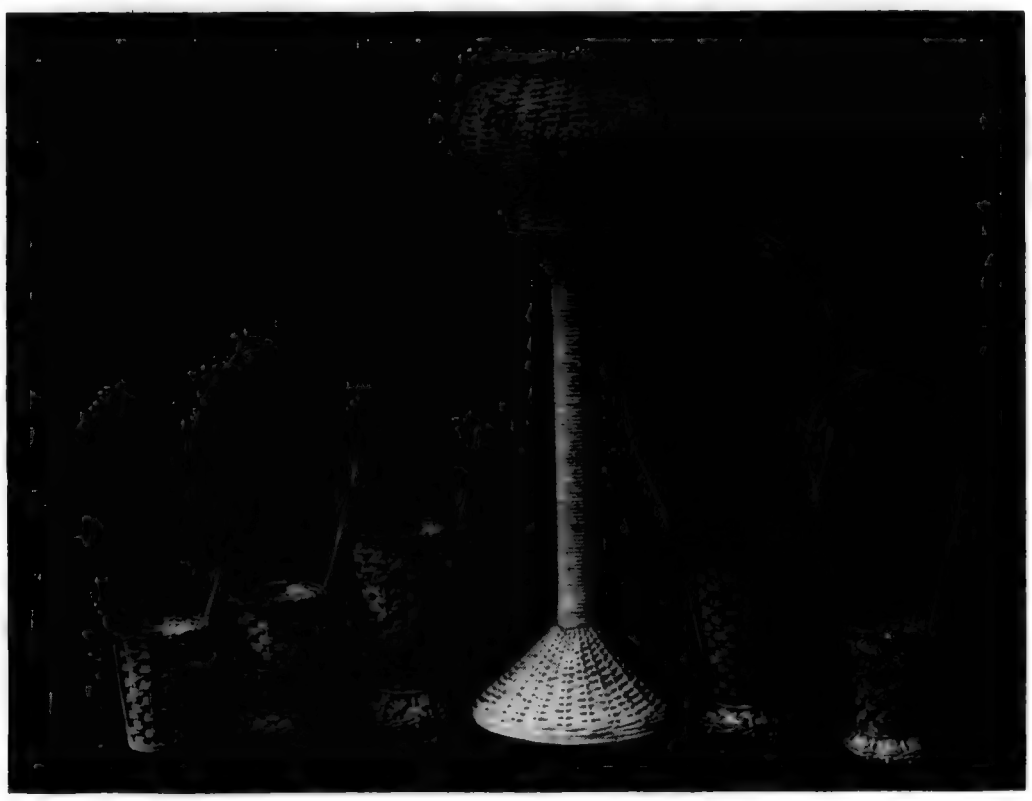
great this fall that its entire stock is sold out.



The Lawrence Floral Co., of Idaho Falls, Id., also reports a demand beyond the capacity of supply. G. K. U.

"I note with considerable interest the item in The Review regarding the shortage of greens and while it seems to have covered the subject quite thoroughly, no mention was made of the green famine which existed for a short time on the west coast," says Robert Newcomb, of the Miller Floral Co. "We were ten days without a bit of green, due to shortage of help, sickness of employees of the green pickers, and an overwhelming demand for greens caused by so much funeral work." Another shortage was of wire frames, which gave rise to such items as this, from an Ogden newspaper:

"Allegation that certain florists of Ogden are removing floral pieces from the graves of those recently deceased and placing them on sale again was the substance of a report received by the city commission yesterday. An investigation will be made by the police department."

East St. Louis, Ill.—Miss L. Doussard had a window display calling attention to the Fourth Liberty Loan by a representation of the dash for Metz, showing the mountains and woods, with soldiers, machine guns, cannon and tanks. General Pershing was shown leading his victorious army toward Berlin.

Columbus, Miss.—T. G. Owen says the efforts of the local branch of the United States Employment Service to recruit unskilled labor have unsettled labor conditions for the nonwar industries even though that labor be such as is classed as skilled. Greenhouse employees, he says, fail to appreciate that they are skilled workers in this trade and unskilled common labor when they change to another line. Under normal conditions Mr. Owen employs about thirty men in his greenhouses; now he has only eighteen.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

HOWARD M. EARL is the "Who's Who" this week.

THE Dutch bulbs are cleaning up even faster than the most enthusiastic expected.

THE Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan., surprised the Red Cross agency there, when, in response to the appeal for peach pits, it donated fifty-two sacks, weighing more than two tons. The pits originally were purchased for seed.

ADOLPH KRUHM, who November 1 became secretary of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, enjoys a large acquaintance in the trade and brings to this connection a wide and varied experience. His former affiliations were with the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, and the Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, O., and as manager of the horticultural department of Country Life and the Garden Magazine.

THE new home of A. C. Kendel, Cleveland, occupies an advantageous site on the southeast corner of Prospect avenue and North Second street. It is a modern, 4-story, fireproof structure, of reinforced concrete construction, with facade of white terra cotta. The location is easily accessible from the market house district. With the exception of space leased in the west store room to a clothing house, the entire building will be occupied by the seed store. The first three stories are high enough to permit the installation of balconies for storage purposes. The house of Kendel is said to be one of the two or three oldest firms in the city of Cleveland.

SEEDS IN FIRST CLASS.

Reclassification on Priorities List.

The Priorities Division of the War Industries Board November 6 placed seeds in Class 1 on the priorities list.

This announcement was made to the members of the American Seed Trade Association by President F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C. It was received with great satisfaction, as this change in classification places seeds on a par with munitions, food and other highly essential things. But the greatest advantage the order brings to the trade is that seeds now will be given preference by the railroads when in transit, partially solving the problem of transportation at this time, when conditions are far from satisfactory.

The change in classification was brought about by a special committee of the association, which has been urging that seeds be placed in Class 1 ever since the Priorities Division made its classification last summer. President Bolgiano, together with the war service committee of the association, consisting of Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit; John L. Hunt, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; William G. Scarlett, of W. G. Scarlett & Co., Baltimore; C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, and Howard M. Earl, now associated with F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Washington, represented the association.

Committee Wins Out.

This committee has had a number of conferences with the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board and President Bolgiano, being in Washington, has watched the situation closely. Consequently, when the reclassification was made, President Bolgiano was at once informed and wired leaders in the trade everywhere to spread the good news.

A. H. Smith, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, said that the change means a great deal to the trade, especially as it comes at a time when shipping conditions are bad and undoubtedly will become worse as the weather becomes colder. This order, Mr. Smith declared, will eliminate many of the shipping problems of the seedsmen this winter.

Wethersfield will be down to twenty-five or thirty per cent, and some of the yellows eighty to ninety per cent. The lettuce crop was fairly good with me, and I shall make practically a full delivery, although I will say that much of the lettuce that was out in our September rains was discolored. The vitality of such, though, is good.

"Table beet was fairly good and the leading varieties will probably be filled in full or nearly so, while on some of the minor varieties the pro rata delivery will be forty to fifty per cent. Carrot was fair and will be filled practically in full. Radish was filled in full by me, with the exception of the white and long red varieties. I did fill in full on all globe and turnip shapes. Parsley was poor, with the exception of Champion Moss Curled. On Hamburg Rooted I made a fair showing, plain parsley good, and Champion Moss Curled about five per cent. Parsnip is not yet cleaned, but I hope to make at least a seventy to seventy-five per cent delivery. Sweet peas were poor, many of them being entirely destroyed by the September rains. Salsify was poor and deliveries ran about thirty per cent."

DUTCH BULB ACREAGE.

The approach of the end of the war lends interest to the situation in which the Holland bulb growers find themselves, for an early return to unrestricted intercourse is in prospect. The growers of bulbs have had to meet adverse conditions for the last five crop years. In addition to increased cost and restricted foreign markets and shipping facilities, their government has taken a hand by prescribing the uses of land. The result has been a steady reduction in acreage and in stocks of bulbs carried over for planting.

One well informed Hollander puts the stock of bulbs in Holland at planting time this year at about forty per cent of the quantity on hand when the 1914 crop was planted in the autumn of 1913. The stock consists principally of the varieties that command the higher prices, the stocks disposed of being, for obvious reasons, the cheap sorts which returned little money for the space occupied.

The exporters are not looking for lower prices for the 1919 crop. They figure that the English, German and

A. F. J. Baur, of Baur & Steinkamp, Wholesale Florists and noted Carnation Breeders, well known to REVIEW readers, Indianapolis, writes:

"Please quote us on BERTREX and EVELYN KIRTLAND in various quantities. EVELYN KIRTLAND turned out to be what the writer thought. It is the FINEST PINK in EXISTENCE. BERTREX is an unusually good white. Both should become leaders."

James F. Rychlik, Florist and Grower, Painesville, Ohio, writes:

"Please let me know if you can let me have 2500 GRETCHEN ZANG. I had spikes of GRETCHEN ZANG over five feet high and with eighteen to twenty-six blossoms."

Brief Descriptions and prices:

GRETCHEN ZANG. Beautiful, soft, melting shade of pink, blending into deep salmon. Large bulbs, $5.00 per 100; ½-1 in. diam., $2.50 per 100.

EVELYN KIRTLAND. Difficult to describe in words the beauty of this variety. Beautiful shade of rosy pink, darker at the edges, fading to shell pink at the center. Spikes GIANT in height. $8.00 per 100; ½-1 in. diam., $4.00 per 100.

French markets will reopen to them, and probably the Russian. If these countries do not call for a quantity of bulbs comparable with the years before 1914, which, indeed, it would be impossible to supply, they will take enough to strengthen the market. There will be, in addition, a home demand to compete with the export demand. In Holland before the war there were many hundreds of small growers who sold their crops to exporters. Numbers of these farmers sold out of bulbs in 1916 and 1917. Now they are buying stock to get back into the bulb business, and by next year will be in the market for quantities of planting stock which will represent an appreciable percentage of the available supply. Consequently the exporters expect rising rather than falling prices, and it is figured there will be not more than twenty or possibly thirty travelers sent to the United States this winter, where there were about 125 in the first part of the years up to 1916.

per cent of the entire production of canned tomatoes in the United States. This is based upon estimates of the pack being from 18,500,000 to 20,000,000 cases of No. 3 tomatoes, two dozen cans to the case. The government will require about 8,500 carloads of a thousand cases each. It would take a freight train nearly sixty miles long to move this quantity.

The chief interest from a trade standpoint in the foregoing dispatch from the Committee on Information will be the statement of the government as to its ideas of the total pack of this year. The pack last year has been officially computed at 15,076,074 cases, not including 1,023,474 cases packed in pulp. Not since 1914 had there been any such pack as last year, that of 1914 being 15,222,000 cases, the highest on record. It is thus evident that the effort to secure a large tomato crop this year was successful.

THE NATION'S SEED SUPPLY.

[This is the sixth installment of an extract from the monograph on "The Seed Supply of the Nation," by R. A. Oakley, agronomist in charge of seed distribution, Bureau of Plant Industry. The first installment appeared October 3. The next installment will appear in an early issue.]

Denmark and Holland have grown most of our cabbage seed in the past, but now domestic production is being extended, especially in the Puget Sound country and on Long Island. The possibilities of cabbage seed production in the former section are great. This might also be said of cauliflower, kale and rape.

Kale seed is grown in considerable quantities in our southern states. Rape, which is more of a forage crop than a human food, is grown extensively in Japan, as well as in Europe, and just now most of the seed which we are importing comes from that country. The Japanese varieties of winter rape appear to be much the same as the European varieties. For the fiscal year 1917, 2,285,700 pounds of rape seed were imported.

Much spinach seed is required for home gardens, market gardens and canneries. Formerly it has been secured without difficulty from Holland, Italy and Greece. On account of embargoes and transportation difficulties, it recently has not been possible to get seed from Europe as freely as desired. In 1917 the spinach seed acreage in California was greatly increased over previous plantings; likewise that in the Pacific northwest; but the California crop was short and the increased acreage failed to produce enough seed to relieve the situation caused by the difficulties surrounding importations from Europe. The canners and market gardeners are taking active interest in the possibilities of the much increased production of spinach seed along the Atlantic coast and in the Puget Sound country, as well as in California, with a view of making this country independent of foreign countries for its seed. An abundance of prickly spinach seed can be had from Japan, but this variety is not in favor here.

The growing of Bermuda onions in

Giant California Hybrid Amaryllis

With the shortage of many of the customary Easter Plants, these Giant-flowered Amaryllis, which are more easily grown in pots than Easter Lilies and are far more showy, should prove a valuable addition among flowering plants for late winter, early spring and Easter use.

We have been familiar with and have watched this particular strain for a number of years. We have not only seen it growing with the originators, but tried it out in pot culture in our own houses. The flowers are of enormous size. Flowers with full, rounded, broad petals, 10 inches in diameter, are not unusual, and 5 to 6 flowers to a stem, frequently two stems being pushed to the bulb. In color there are selfs and stripes, ranging from the purest white ground color with rose or red markings to rich orange-scarlet, cherry, crimson and maroon, and all with a satin-like luster which, in the deeper shades, shines as if burnished.

Give these a trial, as we feel certain you will be pleased with the results southern Texas and the southwest is now an important industry. The seed for this crop comes mostly from the Canary islands and nearly 75,000 pounds are now required annually for planting. In the spring of 1917 some apprehension was felt by the growers regarding the arrival of seed from Teneriffe in time for planting, but it arrived without undue delay. Investigations have shown that Bermuda onion seed of high quality can be produced in Arizona and New Mexico. This seed gives highly satisfactory results in the United States and also in the Bermuda islands. The seed of other varieties of onion is produced abundantly and its production can be as greatly increased as needs warrant.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business continues heavy, though not equal in volume to that of the last three or four weeks. Mums are at the height of their season and roses and carnations are plentiful and of good quality. There are quantities of pompons of many varieties, which find a ready sale. The weather is ideal, making it possible to conserve fuel supplies. The "flu" ban has been lifted, but there are still many deaths from the disease and from pneumonia.

The outdoor crop of flowers has been cut down by frost, so that, if it were not for mums, there would be a scarcity of flowers.

Various Notes.

A visit to the Oak Hill greenhouses formerly conducted by Miss Nellie Goodge, finds improvements. The range is now under the management of M. H. Lockyear and is known as the Lockyear Floral Co. Mrs. Lockyear is a sister of Miss Goodge and, since taking charge, Mr. Lockyear has come to like the business. He is also proprietor of the Lockyear Business College, of this city. He says that the business college is all right for a young man, but that the florists' business is better for an older man. He has torn down an old stable and built a fine new one farther in the rear. He has put up a new front to the office, with a sign showing the name and underneath it the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Next year he intends to tear down two houses and build a large new house. The business is increasing rapidly.

Letters received recently from the United States Chamber of Commerce by the florists stated that representatives probably would be asked to meet in Washington to confer on the coal question in the near future. Replies were requested by November 10. The Evansville Florists' Club held a special meeting at the store of the William Blackman Floral Co. November 7 and selected George Blackman as its representative, with C. L. Niednagel as substitute.

The florists are pleased with the new coal orders, because it will be helpful to the florists who are situated less fortunately. The florists of this city, by the use of screenings, have had all the coal needed, without the new order, as screenings are plentiful here. E. L. F.

Hart, Mich.—Otto Kuehnel, who closed his greenhouse last year on account of the fuel situation, is uncertain whether he will reopen or accept a post offered him in Chicago.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The last two weeks the local trade has been a whirlwind for the florists. Funeral work has kept them busy long after closing time each day and flowers have been scarce, though local stock is coming into the market more freely than heretofore. California flowers have helped a great deal to relieve the situation.

Roses are of good quality and bring good prices. Carnations are also good, as well as mums, most of the latter being of the White Turner variety. Orchids, gardenias and bouvardia are plentiful. California violets are poor.

Various Notes.

The recent order issued by the local board of health closing all stores, both wholesale and retail, before 10 a. m. and after 3 p. m. daily has affected counter sales to a great extent.

Mr. Desmond, of Hollywood Gardens, and Mr. Poolman, of the Woodland Park Floral Co., went on a three days' fishing trip last week. They report poor fishing, but luck did not desert them entirely as they brought back a good brace of wild duck.

Rosaia Bros. are cutting a quantity of good orchids.

The Woodland Flower Shop is getting some fine Ophelia roses from the Beall Greenhouse Co., at Vashon.

Stuber & Richardson are cutting a large crop of Cecile Brunner roses and carnations. W. S. G.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There has been no let-up in funeral work and the retailers have been making money, but this is practically the only outlet for flowers. Looking over the mum season, it is noted that there probably never has been a season when more money was made by wholesalers and retailers, while the growers also got their share. There has been no glut and indeed a scarcity of good stock for shipping has been noted all through the season so far. If this continues during the season of late mums, there probably will be more grown next year. The scarcity of brake fern has been a serious one, with the price so high as to be almost prohibitive. Substitutes are found in Boston and sword fern fronds, while leptospermum is used in place of huckleberry. Roses are better than for some time and more plentiful. The outdoor stock is particularly good, owing to the open weather. Carnations are higher in price than usual at this time and equal to the demand. Orchids are more plentiful, but the demand is only fair. In plants, some fine cyclamens are being shown and good ferns.

A slight frost in some localities the morning of November 7 had its effect upon some of the outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

The death of Milton Morris, son of O. M. Morris, is reported in the obituary column.

D. Stathatos, proprietor of the Broadway Florists, has been sick for several days with influenza.

T. D. Robertson, of Fullerton, Cal., was in town this week. He reports business good in the floral line but slow in the nursery.

John Fincken was taken sick late in the evening of November 6 and has been in bed a couple of days with a serious cold and high temperature. We all hope he will soon be around again.

Tassano Bros. report a considerable shortage in some lines of greens, but they are busy with orders. Angelo is still sick and Tony is the only one on hand now. He seems to be fully recovered from his recent illness.

H. N. Gage is handling several exquisite varieties of pompons, which sell freely, owing to the big demand for funeral flowers.

Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., reports business far above normal. He has had to put on additional help in the new store. Frank Nelson, formerly of the Southern California Cut Flower Co., has joined the force here after a pleasant driving tour of the desert, from which he returned recently.

W. Armacost & Co. report shipping business keeping up well. An extra fine cut of roses is being taken. James Morris, foreman at the greenhouses, has been sick but has recovered. Mr. Williamson, the bookkeeper, says they have been singularly fortunate in having so few of their people sick during the epidemic.

All the sick people have returned to their work at the store of S. Murata & Co. and business is good with this concern. There has been a specially active call for orchids here of late.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

The demand for cut flowers has increased to such a point that the growers are unable to fill fifty per cent of the demand.

Chrysanthemums are coming in scarcely open and carnations are at a premium. Roses normally would be flooding the market, with the amount being cut, but, with the present demand, the retailers are unable to keep a respectable display in their refrigerators. Many florists are refusing to fill orders for large designs in funeral work, in order to divide their stock among their customers.

Various Notes.

A. J. Burt, a pioneer florist of Spokane, was married to Mrs. Clara Phillips Cathey, of Chicago, November 7. Mrs. Burt is well known in Chicago as a composer and concert singer. Mr. Burt will return November 15 with his bride to Spokane, where they intend to make their home.

The first shipment of Holland bulbs to arrive in the northwest this season was received by the Spokane Seed Co., October 30. The bulbs were in excellent condition. On account of their late arrival in New York and congested freight conditions, the entire shipment of fifteen cases was sent by express and arrived in Spokane in time to be planted before freezing weather set in. PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has been so good with the retailers that they have hardly been able to take care of it. Funeral work, caused by the influenza epidemic, has been unusually heavy. All stores have been closing early to prevent congestion on street car lines, and it is expected the epidemic will be under control soon. Flowers now are plentiful, with chrysanthemums in the largest supply. There are a few dahlias and carnations.

Various Notes.

The Nippon Florist Co. has built a new house and has it filled with mums. This concern is delivering excellent quality flowers, among them being Helen Lee, which is a beauty and sells for $4 and $5 per dozen. The balance of the company's houses will be planted to vegetables.

The Lalane Floral Shop has had to increase its force, having more business than Mr. Lalane and his wife could handle. Miss Fibich, of San Francisco, has been added to the force, while Fred Huserik is doing the delivering and packing for the out-of-town trade.

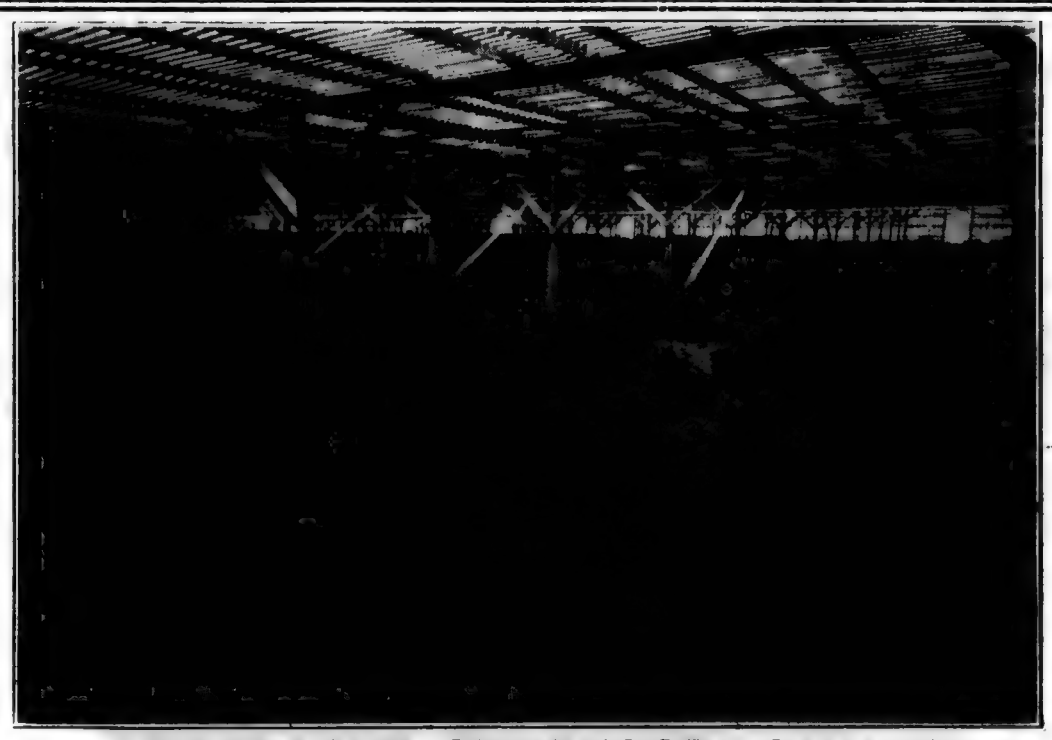
The Chappell Flower Shop reports that the call has been for the better-class stock, of which this store makes a specialty.

On account of the epidemic, stores have been forced to close at 3:30 p. m. and open at 9 a. m. While this has decreased the counter trade, it gives the florists a chance to get out the funeral orders. H. K.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.



Though the number of deaths from influenza is on the decline in this vicinity, it still runs enough above normal to continue the rush at the florists' establishments. From the florists' standpoint, it is interesting to note that the amount of funeral work for the victims of the influenza epidemic has averaged high, many funerals calling for expensive palls and elaborate floral pieces.

As far as stock is concerned, there is no acute shortage here, but more flowers could be disposed of to good advantage, were the supply larger. The shortening up of chrysanthemum arrivals has called a halt on the acceptance of shipping orders for this particular flower. Enough stock continues to reach the market each day, however, to supply the local demand fairly well. The mums now in evidence are not up to the high standard maintained a while back, when the Japanese growers were bringing in quantities of large, fancy varieties. Now practically all the chrysanthemums arriving are being brought in by the Chinese growers, who do not produce such perfect blooms as do the Japanese, one reason probably being that the Japanese grow their mums under cheesecloth, for the most part, while the Chinese stock is grown in the open. With little competition, the Chinese mums clean up without difficulty, regardless of their not showing the quality of the offerings of a fortnight ago. There was some rain during the week, but not enough to do much damage to the mums. On the other hand, it is expected to help the violets, the supply of which to date has been below requirements. Roses show improvement from week to week, almost from day to day. There is a fine cut of Russell, Ophelia, American Beauties and several other varieties. The shipping demand precludes the possibility of a surplus of roses in this market. Orchids are equal to the demand and the same may be said of gardenias. Greens are plentiful for the most part. As a result of the heavy demand for moss, the price has been raised to $1 per sack wholesale.

Various Notes.

The regular November meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was canceled on account of the suspension of public gatherings.

A nice wedding decoration for next week comes as a welcome relief from funeral work for Albert O. Stein's force. It is the wedding of Miss Braverman and Dr. Ebright and calls for a chapel as well as a home decoration. The bride's bouquet will be white Ostrich Plumes and phalænopsis. Among the large funeral orders for the last week was a replica of one of the new-type destroyers for the funeral of a high official of the Union Iron Works. It was nine feet long and was made almost entirely of pompons. For the same funeral Mr. Stein made a pall of maidenhair ferns and Ophelia roses, and ten other pieces.

ber and early November, she says, is to look forward to the holiday rush, whereas this year it is work from morning until late at night.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee and her force have been having a hard time to keep pace with the funeral rush. Working shorthanded, with members of the staff sick, Mrs. Darbee almost had a breakdown herself.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says funeral work continues exceptionally heavy, but the break is due now, it being ten days since the crest of new cases was reached. Mr. Rossi considers his firm particularly lucky; not only were none of the regular employees stricken with influenza, but they were able to get three or four experienced florists in addition to help out during the rush. Some of them had been retired from the business for some time, but they answered the S. O. S. signal; were drafted, in other words, according to Mr. Rossi.

The deaths of Emil Ferrari and Dominic Figone are noted in the obituary column.

Bart Filippelli, of the Western Evergreen Co., is on the sick list.

Adolph Holm has resigned as superintendent of the Golden Gate Park conservatory, preparatory to leaving for Honolulu at an early date to assume charge of forestry work in the Hawaiian Islands.

A visit to Podesta & Baldocchi November 5 found Mr. Baldocchi going over an accumulation of bills. It being election day, business had eased off a bit and he was taking advantage of the opportunity to pay out some money, he said, as the rush of orders had left no time for such work in several weeks.

A. Cuneo, manager of B. M. Joseph's store, in Grant avenue, was forced to remain at home early in the week on account of illness.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

H. VERZAAL, heretofore general manager of the Audubon Nursery, Wilmington, N. C., became sole owner of the establishment November 1.

UNDER the auspices of the State Council of Defense and promoted by the Illinois State Horticultural Society, the first Illinois apple show is to be held at the Morrison hotel, Chicago, during the week beginning November 18.

PERSONS who, like us, have recently been buying trees, will be interested in the following guarantee: "These trees are guaranteed to grow and any that fail will be replaced by others equally as good. This guarantee is for one year."—B. L. T. in Chicago Tribune.

BIG BUSINESS IN ALABAMA.

We are pleased to state that our opinion is this year's business will far exceed that of last year, reports H. B. Chase, president of the Chase Nursery Co., Chase, Ala. Anything that looks like a fruit tree is in brisk demand in this section, peach particularly so, and ornamental stock is going nicely. The ornamental stock, however, is in far greater supply than the fruit trees, and no doubt all ornamental orders for next spring will be filled all right. We believe, however, that there will be a big shortage of fruit trees, with the possible exception of cherry. Our October shipments, including October 25, are in excess of last year by about $8,800.

THE DEMAND IN THE WEST.

"The demand for nursery stock during the last month or six weeks has not been great," writes E. H. Smith, secretary and treasurer of the Harrison Nursery Co., York, Neb. "We attribute this more to the war activities, which are demanding people's time and money, than to any other reason. However, we believe that business will pick up from now on.

"So far this year the demand for fruit and shade trees has been greater than the demand for small fruits and ornamentals. We have no reason to complain, because our business so far is better than it was last year at this time.

"Our surplus stock is going to be in ornamentals. We have already been obliged to discontinue selling some items on account of the scarcity of stock, and before delivery time next spring we feel certain that there will be a shortage in fruit trees and small fruits."

"There is a growing demand for both fruit and ornamental stock. The supply, however, is much more limited than it has been for several months, especially in the fruit stock.

WATERBURY, CONN.

The influenza epidemic lasted six weeks in Waterbury and the death rate was large. During that time the florists were rushed with funeral work.

The supply of stock now is much better than it was three weeks ago, when there was such a demand that it was simply impossible to fill all orders. All the florists worked night and day and could have done more if they had been able to get the flowers.

The theaters and schools now have reopened and the ban has been removed from public gatherings.

At the Ryan & Powers store there were days during the epidemic when all the flowers received were made up into funeral designs and pieces, and several days many orders were refused.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Mr. De Neve, with F. C. Jaeger & Son, has been off duty for two weeks, but is expected back shortly.

The influenza has gone the rounds of the Art Floral Co., on Powell street, but even with the full force back at work, P. V. Matraia, head of the firm, and some of his men, have had to work until midnight and later almost every night for some time getting out funeral orders.

Roses are replacing chrysanthemums as the center of attention at the flower depot of the E. W. McLellan Co., in Bush street. Manager J. A. Axell says orders for roses are coming in freely from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and east to Salt Lake City. Russell roses are the principal variety used for shipping by this company. In fact, this rose, according to Mr. Axell, constitutes the staple of their business.

The United Flower & Supply Co., Inc., has been handicapped in filling violet orders, but the rain this week is expected to increase the supply sufficiently so November shipments will show a big increase.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., reports the best shipping season in the history of his business.

Lester Morse, head of C. C. Morse & Co., has returned from the east. T. C. Holmes, manager of the retail store on lower Market street, has just resumed his duties after two weeks at home with the "flu." He expects shipments of Holland bulbs by November 15. Already many inquiries are being received at the store, indicating that the demand will be brisk.

The New Geary Florists have opened for business at 5447 Geary street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenues. M. M.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—L. H. Reams, who grows indoor vegetables exclusively, reports that while prices are about the same as a year ago, sales are one-third less. Coal is plentiful and florists can get all they want. Mr. Reams has in about one-quarter of his supply.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

KENTUCKY FLORISTS GET FUEL.

W. B. Bryan, Federal Fuel Administrator for Kentucky, has given the florists of that state blanket permission to burn all the bituminous mine-run coal or bituminous screenings they need without having them apply on their quota of fifty per cent under the fuel restriction order. The action was taken as the result of a request by O. S. Honaker, of Lexington, to whom the Fuel Administrator wrote as follows:

"Confirming telephone conversation, your attention is directed to the following order issued by the United States Fuel Administration:

Until further notice state fuel administrators may permit florists to receive and burn bituminous coal, steam anthracite or coke breeze without having such fuel apply on their fifty per cent quota, as defined by Fuel Administration curtailment order of April 24, 1918, whenever there is a surplus of such fuel which in the opinion of the state administrator can be spared for such purpose.

"Pursuant to the authority granted by the above order, the florists of Kentucky are authorized, until further notice, to burn bituminous screenings, bituminous mine-run or coke breeze without having such fuel apply on their fifty per cent quota.

"It is suggested that you give publicity to this order among the members of your association and florists generally."

FUEL CONSERVATION.

7,000,000 Tons of Coal Saved.

Through the coöperation of the industrial power plants, which have thus far put into force the standard recommendations of the United States Fuel Administration to promote efficiency in the use of fuel in power plants, a saving of 7,000,000 tons annually has been effected. That is to say, in the first six months from the announcement of the national program 3,500,000 tons have been conserved, at the same time maintaining maximum production in the factories. The largest savings have been in the following states: Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Illinois, New York, Missouri, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Some industrial plants, which have adopted the standard recommendations and kept systematic records, report a fuel saving as high as twenty-five per cent, and the average is estimated between ten per cent and fifteen per cent. This large economy is effected at practically no expense to the plant owner, since the recommendations treat primarily of proper methods of firing and management in power plants.

One manufacturing plant in Abbeville, S. C., writes the Fuel Administration that as a result of the installation of the improvements and records recommended, "we show for the first eight months of this year a fuel saving of Neither in the East or West, nor the North or South has any other make of boiler ever equaled the performance of the Kroeschell—installed for 3,974,605 square feet of glass in 1916-1917. Every customer immensely satisfied. The high efficiency and low cost of operation make the Kroeschell the best of all boilers for Florists' use.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have satisfactorily and permanently solved the effective burning of screenings. They will burn the worst grades of coal, even the dirtiest culm or sawdust and wood refuse.

Greenhouse owners like the KROESCHELL because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver, it pays its own way. The KROESCHELL will increase your heating plant efficiency 20 to 40%.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

Spreading the Gospel.

A Fuel Administration campaign comprehends voluntary service by engineer inspectors, lectures to fuel conservation classes in educational institutions, addresses before public meetings, explanations of the program to power plant owners, and various forms of printed matter and posters.

For the efficient execution of the program of industrial conservation, under the plan developed, the engineers of the country have been mobilized through the professional societies and operating engineers and firemen, and as a result there are today 1,500 volunteer engineer specialists and power plant men organized by states, inspecting power plants, classifying them according to their operating efficiency, and aiding the work of rapid development. As a direct result of the operation of this plan, it is estimated that the total annual saving throughout the country will be about 25,000,000 tons of coal without reducing the output of the factories. Special printed material, instructing on the proper use of fuel, has been prepared by the United States Fuel Administration and may be obtained free of cost upon application.

The campaign has been organized in consultation with the State Administrators, the Bureau of Mines and the Committee of Consulting Engineers of the Engineering Council, which represents the four national engineering societies. These four societies have contributed largely in supplying expert advice of engineering talent; special relations have been formed between the Fuel Administration and the National Association of Stationary Engineers, the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen and Oilers, the Laundry Owners' National Association, the Portland Cement Association, and other national bodies who have given full coöperation to this national plan.

some of their glass. Meanwhile an altogether unforeseen demand, springing up in the shape of extensive funeral work, has thrown the flower market into an abnormal state. There has been available hardly twenty-five per cent of the stock needed to meet the demands from other quarters, until the present week, when, fortunately, mums have come into full crop and are helping to save the situation. The mums are clean and large and command a ready sale at prices from 8 cents to 60 cents per bloom. Roses, including the new rose Columbia, are particularly good this season and are still in keen demand, at prices ranging from $7 to $20 per hundred, week-end sales being unheard-of this fall. Carnations are slow in coming into crop, but have every appearance of coming up to last year's high standard. Violets also are of excellent quality and sell easily at $1.25 and $1.50 per hundred.

The trade will feel the absence of tulips when their season arrives, as few have been imported this year, none, in fact, coming to this neighborhood. A few French daffodils, Romans and Paper Whites are just to hand, but the cost of freight, running as it does to almost $20 per case, will make these flowers unprofitable to those who force them. However, we all hope for better luck in this connection next season.

A month from now will bring us into the middle of the busy Christmas rush and, judging by all the signs and portents that so far have shown themselves, including the peace negotiations and the success of the recent Victory Loan, it is safe to prophesy a large holiday trade.

Various Notes.

Cold weather has not yet set in, but the coal deliveries have been kept up so well that the season's risk has been minimized and it is altogether probable that part of the range of six houses of the Dale Estate that were to be pulled down will be allowed to remain standing. Unfortunately, however, it has been impossible to avoid a fire in the large coal shed, which has been burning for over a fortnight, without efforts to extinguish it proving successful.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor here last week

It is a curious commentary that, despite the fact that the war is in its fifth year and conditions correspondingly adverse, there has not been grown on the Dale Estate for many years better stock than that which is now being cut. W. G. P.

A wise business man figures costs by the year, right down the line, and especially so if his business has to do with greenhouses. He knows, either by experience or from a close study of the subject, that the only businesslike method of determining material costs in greenhouse building is by the year—first cost and up-keep cost.

CYPRESS, "the wood eternal" for greenhouse construction, is positively the cheapest wood to use, figured by its years on the job, without repairs or replacements.

All good constructors in these days are insisting on genuine "Tide-Water" Cypress, "The Wood Eternal"—every board and bundle bearing the famous Cypress Trade-mark.

Vol. 8, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is a little book filled with a big bunch of facts and figures about greenhouse construction—profitable reading. There are 48 books in the "Library," all of which give useful facts and plans about HOW, WHEN and WHERE to use CYPRESS, "The Wood Eternal," AND WHY. Which one shall we send you?

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The fourteenth annual mum show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, October 31 and November 1. Competition was strong in all the forty-one classes. The mums, as usual, were of the largest size and finest quality. The vegetables exhibited were exceptionally fine, as were the roses, carnations, violets, decorative work and fruit. Particularly deserving of notice were the large specimen bush and standard Hooper Pierson mums and an unusually fine collection of foliage plants exhibited by Robert Marshall, gardener to Captain J. R. De Lamar. This group was awarded the medal of the National Association of Gardeners for the most meritorious exhibit in the show. Special mention is due also to Robert Jones, gardener to Mrs. Percy Chubb, for a fine display in the cut chrysanthemum classes; to George Ferguson, gardener to Mrs. Payne Whitney, for a beautiful display of carnations; to William Churchill, gardener to F. W. Woolworth, for roses; to F. O. Johnson, gardener to Mrs. Harold I. Pratt, for violets; to Frank Petroccia, gardener to Irving Cox, for a fine collection of vegetables; to Alex. McKenzie, gardener to A. V. Davis, for a collection of six varieties of apples; to William Noonan, gardener to C. F. Cartledge, for a group of chrysanthemums; to John W. Everitt, gardener to Mrs. John F. Pratt, for an extensive display of hardy chrysanthemums, which was awarded the Mrs. F. B. Pratt silver cup.

Other prize-winners were Frank Sargent, gardener to W. J. Jennings; Thomas Twigg, gardener to J. E. Aldred; Ben Sutherland, gardener to Mrs. W. Gibb; Angus B. MacGregor, gardener to J. P. Morgan; Harry Goodband, gardener to Mrs. F. B. Pratt; E. Harris, gardener to Andrew Fletcher; Charles Stango, gardener to Mrs. M. Daball.

The table decorations were one of the features of the show the second day. The judges awarded the Mrs. H. L. Pratt silver cup as first prize to George Ferguson. A cultural certificate was awarded to Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J., for a beautiful display of Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ; special mention to John Dombrowski for a display of seedling mums, also to Frank Petroccia.

James Gladstone, Arthur Smith and Ben Sutherland were the efficient managers. The judges were Alex. McKenzie, George Ashworth and Thomas Proctor.

Why It Is a Good Time to Buy Glass

THE Government has restricted the output to 50%.

France and Belgium are not making a light and haven't for some time.

It will be long after the war is over before they can again make it.

After the war there is bound to be a big boom in all kinds of building operations.

This means a lively demand for glass, with no chance of the price being lower.

Frankly, it looks as if after the war prices would actually be higher.

That's why now is a good time to buy glass.

The Market.

Compared with the business done during the latter part of October and the first days of November, the market has been slow this week. The sales amount to an apparently satisfactory total, but this is not a good gauge to go by in these times. Stock is high-priced, which makes the investment greater than ever before. Sales, therefore, should show a decided increase over those of a year ago. But is the increase great enough? Almost everyone reports that sales are better than a year ago. But the important point to note is whether the difference between the sales and the stock investment is proportionate to that of a year ago. In the last months the growers have been better off than the retailers. Their returns have been good for everything brought in and fancy stock still brings fancy prices. A local grower brings in pompons, tied twelve sprays to the bunch, and gets $1.50 per bunch. Ordinary stock sells for 75 cents per bunch, and good mums bring $4 per dozen. These prices are 100 per cent higher than the prices for the same grade of stock a year ago. Roses are not bringing an increase in proportion to lilies, mums and carnations.

There is one condition the retailers will have to contend with this winter. That is a shortage of carnations. Several of the carnation growers planted mums, with the intention of closing their houses later. They made no preparations for changed conditions. Some of them have no coal and it is doubtful whether they could get any now, if they should decide to run their houses. At any rate, it is now too late to do much for this winter.

Various Notes.

F. P. Adams is the happy father of a seven-pound girl, born November 8, which is the mother's birthday.

Walbridge & Co., a hardware firm, have had a bulb sale all the week. Some department stores are more fortunate than the florists in getting their stock.

Scott Bros. have put in a good part of their bulbs. F. P. A.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION—Is a mixture of more than 50 distinct thoroughbred varieties of giant show and fancy pansies, some new and not found in any other mixture. It contains a good percentage of red, bronze and brown in many shades, and fancy varieties in a wide range of rich and rare colors and markings. All colors are in the right proportions for the retail trade. I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years and have received thousands of testimonials from amateurs and florists in all sections of the country, many of whom say that my pansies are the best in all respects that they ever had. A sample: "The pansy plants arrived in best possible condition and were strong, sturdy, well rooted. I used to buy the very best seeds and plants possible. Have bought from you for the past 8 years and have never been able to produce anything to equal yours. I have never seen such a variety of colors. C. C. Wonneman, The Florist, Mexico, Mo." Strong hardy field grown plants from August sown seed, $4.50 per 1000; 500, $2.50. Medium size plants with 5 to 7 leaves, good stock for frames, $4.00 per 1000; 500, $2.00. Cash.
L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight P. O., Mass.

We have as fine a lot of pansies as we ever had, strong and well rooted, and are shipping by parcel post prepaid as it is much better. I ship insured so there is no chance for you to lose. Our prices are net. We pay all charges and give you as good plants as you get anywhere. The parent of these plants had thousands of blooms 3 in. across. Steele's Greenhouse Special, at $4.50 per 1000; Ozark Mammoth Strain, at $4.00 per 1000; Steele's Private Strain, $4.00 per 1000. Compare these prices and you will find they are as cheap as others are selling Trimardeau. You don't run any risk; if the postoffice does not deliver the goods in good shape notify me and you can get your money back, as I let the postoffice do my worrying.
These terms only when a postoffice money order accompanies your order. We have 500,000 of these plants, so if you will need any for spring, order this month, as these prices are only for November.
Ozark Pansy Gardens, West Plains, Mo.

RUST ON SNAPDRAGONS.

Will you please tell me what is the matter with the spike of snapdragon enclosed and what is the remedy for the trouble? Also what is the cause?

W. G. T.—Ill.

This is a common disease of snapdragons. Its cause is problematical, but it undoubtedly is spread by too much atmospheric moisture. Damping of the stems and foliage when watering will increase it. Water on clear mornings only and damp the foliage as little as possible. Keep a dry atmosphere. Cut away badly affected shoots. It would be best to destroy badly affected plants. Select a fine, sunny morning and give the plants a spraying of Bordeaux mixture. Repeat this eight or ten days later and it will afford material relief. Rely on seedlings rather than cuttings, if you would have your snapdragons more nearly immune from disease.

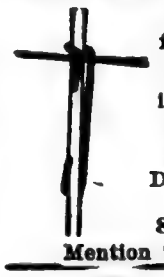
Great Saving in Preparing Land for Carnation Stock

Following is what Kretschmar Bros., of West Nyack, New York, say of the System:



"It has always been a great expense to prepare our land for the carnation stock before planting, as each day we would only plow enough for the day's planting so that we could work in moist soil. This also would be all hand raked to get it in the best condition. We can now plow the whole strip and harrow with a spiked tooth harrow and use the Skinner System after each day's planting to water them down."

WE sold over 100,000 plants this season with no other publicity than our ad in The Review.—The Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn.

How Long Does It Take You—to get the temperature up in your houses with the old hot water system?

Does the water in the boiler get boiling hot while the return stays cool for an hour or so?

Are the coils in your house sagging or not pitched enough to give good circulation in the system?

You need something to give a positive circulation to start the water moving in the pipes, to pass it over the hot water surface faster; in a sentence, to make it absorb the heat before it goes up the chimney.

The

will remedy these troubles without a great expense for labor and new material.

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS PAGES TWO AND THREE

You buy bread by the pound.

You insist that your bread be fresh and pay three times as much for fresh bread as for stale.

The only difference between the fresh and stale is moisture.

You buy Ruscus by the pound.

You should insist that your ruscus be "fresh" like your bread—in both cases freshness meaning moisture.

To buy dry ruscus is like purchasing stale bread—in each the important element "moisture" is missing.

The value to you of any quantity of ruscus is not its weight, or even its cost, but the profit it will bring you when made up and sold.

Randall Ruscus

is dyed a brilliant red from the finest white Italian raw stock, and is put through a preserving process to retain its pliability, shape, texture and foliage.

It is shipped moist, so that it may reach you with its leaves and branches in their natural state.

This moisture is preserving solution, made of dyes twenty times as costly by weight as the raw ruscus itself and of preserving chemicals fifty times as expensive.

Buy your Randall Ruscus now.

Write for prices, stating the quantity you can USE.

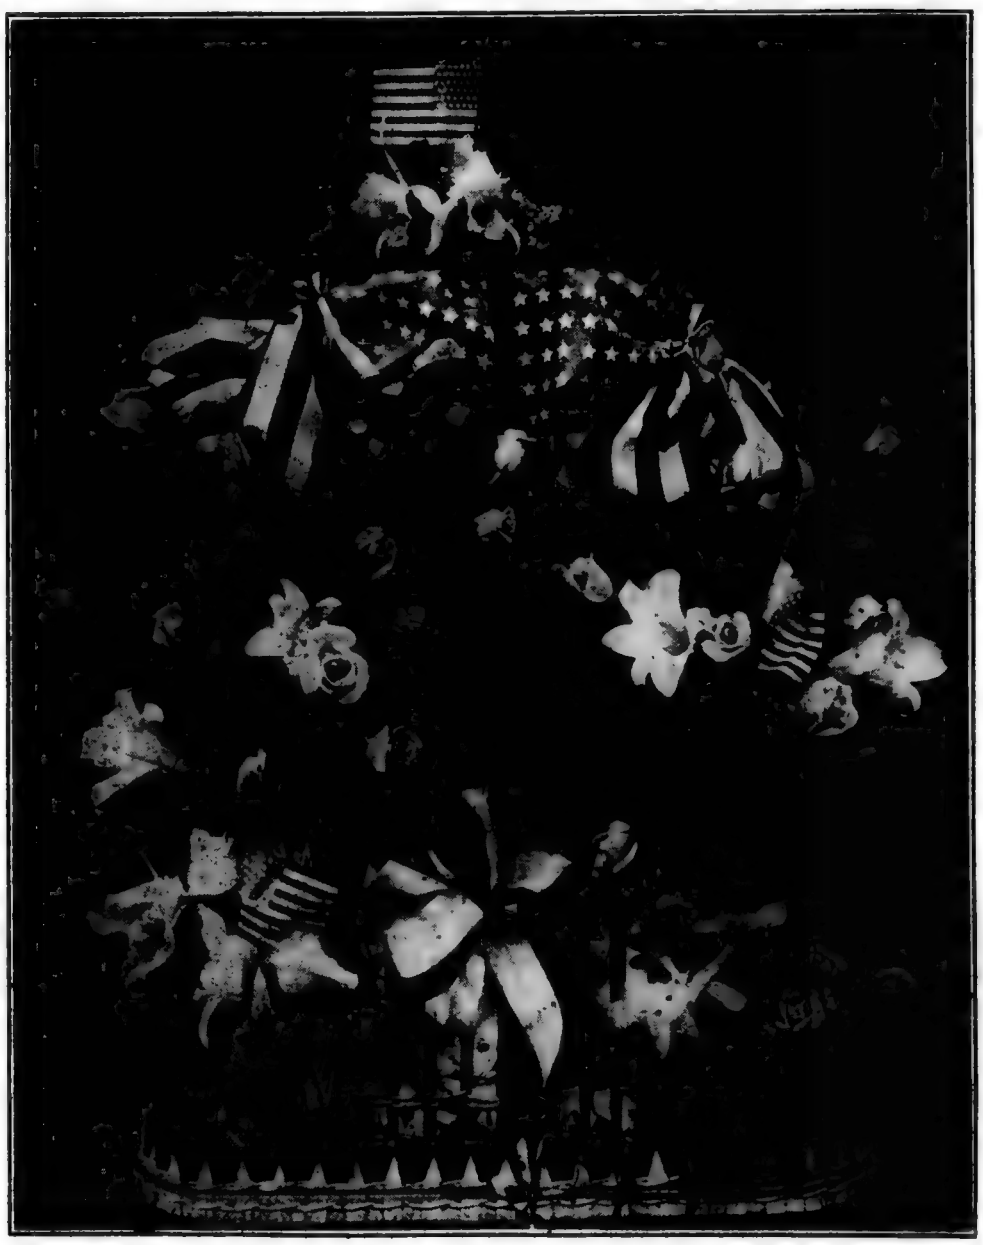
PATRIOTIC PIECES PRODUCE PROFITS

Now that the unprecedented rush of funeral work is over, designers again can turn out funeral work they can be proud of. And in so doing, they will be called on to furnish many with the so-called "patriotic touch." Here is told how some have satisfied this demand.

WHILE "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the retailers have been "fed up" on funeral work during the last five or six weeks, a great majority of them are glad the peak of the influenza epidemic has passed, even though it did mean many dollars in their pockets that otherwise would not now be there. Also, it gave to many of the pessimists in the trade a new feeling of confidence in their business, proving beyond any doubt that, no matter what the United States War Industries Board, the Fuel Administration and other government conservation agencies may hold, to the people of this country flowers must be classed with the so-called necessaries.

During the last six weeks the retailers in the trade everywhere, in cities large and small, have been busy with practically only one thing—funeral work. The call has been the largest in the history of the florists' business; it was so large that anything and everything in the shape of flowers was used.

We Made Good.



Some of the artistic touch that every florist likes to put into his funeral designs was lost for the simple reason the time could not be spared; neither was there much choice in the stock that was available. But all the retailers did the best they could to satisfy the demand and, with few exceptions, made good.

Now that conditions are more normal, the designers will get back in their stride. They will use the ingenuity that has given them the position they hold and will make the funeral work they turn out something more than a few flowers thrown together with green.

Ever since the United States got into the war and before, the call for the class of designs usually called patriotic has been good. All sorts of odd things, submarines, aeroplanes, officers' insignia and the other military and naval markings, have been given to the florists to reproduce in flowers. The Review from time to time during the last two years has reproduced many of these designs. They have conveyed to the trade ideas that have been used with the variations every designer likes to employ to give his work a personal touch.

Old Idea in New Dress.

Herewith is reproduced a design that is about as old as the florists' trade—the gates ajar. But it has been brought up to date; the old idea was used as the basis and the present-day patriotic idea was added. The design was made by the Pikes Peak Floral Co., Colorado Springs, Colo., for the funeral of an American soldier.

Gates Ajar Up to Date, by Pikes Peak Floral Co., Colorado Springs.

As will be seen by the illustration, no great amount of stock was used in the design. Roses, lilies and asparagus composed the stock, while an artistic arrangement of the United States colors completed the decoration of the design.

Displays of ingenuity on the part of the designer, such as was shown by the artist of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., in the more elaborate but out-of-the-ordinary funeral pieces, are what count with the customer. The person who wants something different, and has his own ideas of what that something different should be, and takes his conception of the funeral piece to the florist, ought to be given what he wants. Nothing is so undiplomatic, to say the least, as to shatter the pet idea of a customer.

Consequently, when friends or, as often has been the case in recent months, the comrades of a soldier come to the flower store and want the insignia of a regiment or company incorporated into a design, with guns crossed in the old-fashioned way, the order is taken, no matter what the designer's ideas of a fitting tribute may be. With the ideas of the customer or customers many things can be done by the skillful floral artist. He can do as the Pikes Peak company designer did—take the idea and make of it something out of the ordinary.

Trade's Foundation.

Returning to the subject of the recent rush of funeral work, let it be said that it demonstrated again what has been demonstrated during every summer—that funeral work is the real foundation of the florists' business. All retailers cater to it; in fact, some cater to it so strongly that there has come a campaign against the practice of giving commissions to undertakers who throw funeral work to this or that store.

With this fact in mind and while it is a great deal more interesting, perhaps, to decorate a home or a church for a wedding or to provide the flowers for some social occasion, the closest attention should be given to the class of business that provides the all-year-round income. By so doing there will be a steady inflow of the stuff that makes it possible to pay the bills regularly.

The increase in funeral work has been natural. The growth has come from the fact that those who always send a floral tribute of some kind to the homes of dead friends and relatives have had more money than ever before. With their increases in income their expenditures have increased, and the only thing that will stop them from continuing to spend for flowers will be the absence of money.

The Reconstruction Period.

With the reconstruction period in Europe ahead, for which the United States will be called on to supply a considerable part of the materials, and with the return to normal pursuits in this country, there is not likely to be any shortage of money among the workers for some time to come. This theory leads to the belief that the growth of funeral work is a healthy growth and that the call for flowers will continue good.

At any rate, we have come through the war in good shape; we have been taught to practice little economies that, it is hoped, have become habits, and altogether we are well prepared to face what the future holds.

WARD CHANGES HIS PLANS

WILL MOVE BULB FARMS NORTH.

To Columbia River Section.

Charles Willis Ward, whose operations on the Pacific coast have been the subject of many newspaper articles in the last two years, and of still more private discussion, especially in the last six months, announces that he will abandon the attempt to grow early tulips at Eureka, Cal., and will remove the main bulb growing establishment of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries to the Columbia river bottoms, some fifty miles down the river from Portland.

"I am so thoroughly convinced that the Columbia river bottoms are the logical place for the future development of the bulb industry in the United States," says Mr. Ward, "that I have decided to dispose of all of my interests in California, including my investment in timbered lands, as well as my interest in extensive oil properties in Louisiana and West Virginia, and invest my entire capital in the Cottage Gardens Nurseries business, which will be removed from California to the vicinity of Portland."

Experiences at Eureka.

"In planning the future growing of bulbs by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries," says Mr. Ward, "we have concluded to maintain one bulb farm of about 200 acres lying near the coast about twenty miles north of Eureka, Cal. The soil upon this farm is from two to six feet in depth and is a light, sandy loam, heavily impregnated with leaf-mold. The subsoil, which is thirty to forty feet in depth, is a clear, sharp sand, which retains considerable moisture during the dry season and gives it off gradually to the upper soil. The region is frost-free. Lying immediately upon the coast, it usually is blanketed with heavy fogs whenever freezing weather occurs in the mountain regions behind. Upon this farm hyacinths can be grown of superior quality, and also the Darwin tulips, the gladiolus and the crocus, but the early tulips are a failure, owing to the mildness of the winter month of December, when they are often forced into flower before the foliage has made sufficient growth to carry out the development and maturity of the new bulb."

The Columbia Bottoms.

"The main bulb growing establishment of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries will be located in the Columbia river bottoms, lying about fifty miles down the river from the city of Portland. These lands are identical with the bulb lands in the vicinity of Sassenheim, Haarlem and Leiden, Holland. The main formation, or subsoil, is a river silt from forty to fifty feet in depth. Upon certain portions of these lands this is overlaid with four to five feet of a clean, sandy loam, which is particularly adaptable for the growth of early tulips and hyacinths. Other sections are overlaid with a stratum of two to four feet of peat, which is highly impregnated with nitrogen and which rapidly rots away and mixes up with the subsoil as the lands are cultivated. In other sections the river silt comes to the surface and this soil is the richest and most productive of all of the soils on the Pacific coast. It is light and friable as soon as it dries out and, under cultivation, works up into a soft, smooth, silky loam. It produces all of the garden vegetables in the greatest profusion and of best quality. As there are approximately 200,000 acres of this land in the Columbia river bottoms, there is area enough to accommodate the entire bulb growing business of Holland. All of these lands must be diked and, as the winter rainfall ranges from forty-five to sixty inches, extensive pumping plants must be maintained to keep the water level five or six feet below the surface of the soil. The lands acquired by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries are surrounded with dikes twenty-three feet in height, with bases 100 feet through. They are furnished with powerful pumping plants throwing double streams of water, each individual stream thirty-six inches in diameter."

What of Forcing Plants?

Mr. Ward's announcement does not include information with regard to plans for the business of producing azaleas and other forcing plants, which he sought to establish at Eureka coincidentally with the starting of bulb growing on a large scale. Mr. Ward said, however:

"I would strongly advise any florists who contemplate entering either the business of growing bulbs on the Pacific coast, or the production of florists' forcing plants, to locate in the vicinity of Portland, Ore., and not to spend any time or fool away any money in investigating other sections of this coast."

That other changes are being made at Eureka was made apparent this week by the arrival of two letters from the general office of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, one announcing that Wm. P. Stark, the widely known nurseryman of Neosho, Mo., was on a visit there, and the other signed "Cottage Gardens Nurseries, W. P. Stark, Manager."

Florists know the deadly nature of the insecticides used in the trade and are cautious; it is the "innocent bystander" who pays the penalty of ignorance and carelessness.

This is the story of a double death at Morton Grove, Ill., involving persons not members of the trade:

"Two years ago I went to a florist and asked for some poison to spray on my plants," said Mrs. H. A. Scharenberg. "He sold it to me after pouring it into a whisky bottle. I hid the bottle on a rafter in the garage so that my child could not get it."

Mr. Scharenberg continued the story: "I found the bottle. It looked like whisky. Occasionally I had taken a half-pint flask with me on hunting trips. I thought it was a bottle I had left there and forgotten. I took it into the house and kept it a while.

"Last Friday morning at about 4 o'clock E. L. Nieman and Fred Pein, who were like brothers to me, rapped on our door. Everyone had been celebrating and we all were up. They asked if we had 'something hard to drink.' I thought of the bottle. I got it and poured out the drinks. Nieman and Pein lifted their glasses, touched them, and Pein gave the toast: 'Here's to peace on earth forever.'"

Both drank and both fell dead as if shot. Scharenberg did not drink. He just touched the bottle to his lips to test the contents. He fell beside the other two. For several days his life hung in the balance.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—Judge Knox has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed October 4 against Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., dealer in seeds and bulbs, at 128 Chambers street. It is reported that three creditors are in Germany and one in Belgium and that notices for them were sent to the Alien Property Custodian.

New York.—The receiver in the bankruptcy proceedings of Isadore A. Fight, individually, and John R. Walsh, copartners, trading as the Anglin & Walsh Co., Williamsbridge, N. Y., has filed his report and it has been referred to Seaman Miller, referee, 2 Rector street, New York, for testimony and report by Judge A. N. Hand, of the U. S. District court. Creditors of the bankrupts have been notified that the hearing will be held at Referee Miller's office November 26, at 1:15 p. m. The petition in bankruptcy was filed last February. At that time the assets and liabilities were given at something over $3,000, there being slight variation between the two amounts.

New York.—Peter Karadontes, retail florist at 3185 Broadway, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The liabilities are placed at $9,102 and the assets at $169. The largest creditors scheduled are the S. S. Pennock Co., New York, $1,131.90; Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., $824.25, and William P. Ford, New York, $776.75.

Knoxville, Tenn.—In the U. S. District court for the eastern division of Tennessee, Yancey Hill Shanklin was declared a bankrupt November 14. W. J. Donaldson, referee in bankruptcy, has issued a notice that there will be a meeting of the creditors of the bankrupt in the United States courtroom, Knoxville, at 9 a. m., December 5, at which time creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt and transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

Utica, N. Y.—William M. Stewart, receiver in bankruptcy for the Susquehanna Valley Greenhouses, Inc., made his final report to Judge George W. Ray, of the United States District court, November 9. Judge Ray has ordered that the bankrupt and its creditors appear before him in Utica at 11 a. m., December 3, and show cause why the report should not be approved and the assets of the concern be turned over to the trustee. The report asks that Arthur E. Fancher and V. Ben Waterman be allowed $40, and Clarence L. Chamberlin $50 for their services as appraisers of the bankrupt's property.

LADIES' S. A. F.

In the deaths of Mrs. George Kuhl and Mrs. Anders Rasmussen, the Ladies' S. A. F. has lost two of its most valued members. They were among the first to join and by their pleasing personalities helped to make the society a success. By kind words and encouragement bestowed at times of need, they have aided the efforts of other members, who will sadly miss them at the future meetings of the society.

Mrs. Charles H. Maynard.

MRS. E. SUDER.

THE age of a woman is a subject taboo—taboo, that is, until she has lived the allotted three score years and ten; then she likes to talk about it. Mrs. Suder is 76, probably the oldest woman actively at work in the flower business in the United States. For more than a half century, or to be exact, since April 12, 1868, the Suder establishment has been a factor in the business life of Toledo, O. It was founded by Ewald Suder, who died in 1881. Since that time Mrs. Suder has been engaged in the management of the greenhouses and store at 2741 Cherry street. The portrait above was made from a snapshot taken a few weeks ago in her greenhouses. Mr. Suder came to Toledo from Germany some sixty years ago. He first was employed at the Humboldt Nursery. Aided by Mrs. Suder, he accumulated some money and purchased the present place, which, with the growth of the city, has become extremely valuable. She is assisted in the management of the establishment by her son, A. A. Suder.

THE RETURN OF PEACE.

The return of peace is bound to bring to the florists' trade more normal conditions than those that have been faced during the last four, and especially during the last two years. The production of plants and flowers will get back to the prewar basis within a year, it is predicted, and there will be a return of the good old times. In the meantime the trade is "carrying on" in good shape and, as was said in The Review at the conclusion of the hostilities, it has come through the trying times hurt less than many others. The removal of various restrictions that have hampered the trade makes it possible now to get back into our stride. Many florists will be wanting to buy stock; many others will want to get rid of their surplus, so as to have a larger variety than was possible under the fuel restrictions. These florists can be brought together at the trade's clearing house, the Classified section of The Review. No one ever comes to this market and goes away disappointed. Here is the proof:

I wish to thank The Review for its far-reaching benefit to advertisers. I consider it one of the best, if not the best, business getter in the florists' line and I attribute whatever success I have had in the business to The Review.—The Northboro Dahlia and Gladioli Gardens, J. L. Moore, proprietor, Northboro, Mass., November 12, 1918.

Please discontinue my Classified ad, as one insertion cleaned me out. "Some results."—O. A. Stoll, Hillsdale, Mich., November 11, 1918.

Please discontinue my ad. It sure did the business, as we had to return orders for more than 900 plants.—The Hughes Greenhouse, Hillsdale, Mich., November 2, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

GROWERS AT GHENT

THE BELGIAN PLANT CENTER.

In Start and Finish of War.

Just as Ghent, horticultural center of Belgium, was one of the centers of action in the early days of the war, so was it the scene of one of the closing acts of the great drama. Invaded by the Germans in August, 1914, it was evacuated by them in November, 1918, just before the surrender.

The American trade has had possibly greater interest in the affairs of Ghent and its vicinity than in those of any other spot behind the battle lines, because there is no florist in the United States who has not handled stock grown at Ghent before the war and many enjoyed pleasant personal relations as well as business acquaintance with the exporters there. Ghent has furnished America with azaleas and has been the principal source of supply for bay trees, rhododendrons, aspidistras and many other important items of our plant stock.

City Escapes Destruction.

When the German army passed through Ghent in 1914 it was in such haste to reach the coast that the city and its environs suffered comparatively little damage. The invaders kept to the roads and the army passed through quickly. Under German administration exports at first went on via Holland, but in the last two years it has been impossible to maintain touch with business connections there, so no one today is able to say what condition the horticultural establishments are in or what has become of the men who ran them.

Press reports indicate that, just as the city escaped serious damage at the time of the invasion, so also did it escape destruction during the evacuation. The cable has brought a story that the Belgian population followed the advancing British army to see the show as the last Germans retired from the city. Prior to the evacuation, however, the British artillery and aircraft bombed the district west of Ghent in which, before the war, there were many hundreds of plant-growing establishments.

Many Plant Growers There.

Ghent was the capital of the province of East Flanders, situated on islands at the junction of the Lys with the Scheldt, and with a number of canals leading in all directions. Prior to the war the city had a population, with its suburbs of Ledeberg and Mont St. Amand, of close to 200,000. The city was a center for woolen manufacture and for the exportation of linen, cotton, lace and manufactures of leather, in addition to being famous as one of the most important of the medieval towns, with many notable examples of art and architecture, but in the florists' and nursery trade it was known as having more plant-growing establishments than any other one locality in Europe. It is said that before the war there were some 1,400 growers in the district around Ghent and westward to Bruges, a distance of some twenty-five miles. The latter place is widely known in the trade as the Belgian headquarters of Sander & Sons. Somergem, about eight miles northwest of Ghent, was the headquarters of the Haerens Co., one of the principal exporters of azaleas to the United States. In Ghent itself were such widely known firms as that of Arthur De Meyer, of Louis Van Houtte Pere, C. Petrick and De Smet Bros., names familiar to every florist who has noted the paper variety labels on his azaleas. There is no news as to how many of the growers had survived the German methods during the four years of occupation.

Trade Can Not Revive.

The custom in the trade at Ghent was similar to that of many other horticultural centers in Europe and America: Large numbers of small growers each produced a quantity of stock which was either grown for or sold to one of the large exporting firms.

At last accounts, via Holland, the stocks of the Belgian growers were seriously depleted; it is feared that though government restriction will shortly be removed from shipping, there can be no early resumption of exports, nor can the Ghent plant-growing industry expect a revival of the great trade done in America if the Federal Horticultural Board of the United States Department of Agriculture carries out its announced intention to prohibit the importation into the United States of all plants and nursery stock except certain minor classes for propagation. Unless plans are changed this quarantine will go into effect June 1, 1919.

CARNATIONS

BAUR'S NEW PINK CARNATION.

A. F. J. Baur's new pink carnation is not yet named—only numbered, but a name will be chosen for it soon. Probably it will proceed straightway, also, to make a name for itself. At least, if it fails to do so, the failure will not be due to lack of good credentials. It has an auspicious start. When a new carnation is offered by so experienced and well known a firm as Baur & Steinkamp, the trade can scarcely avoid taking notice. And when, besides, the carnation is the result of the best skill of such a specialist as Mr. Baur, and has his confident approval, what better recommendation could the new variety have?

Oh, yes, it is supposed that the majority of people have a natural tendency, in spite of modesty and strict honesty, to form a high opinion of their own products. But such a tendency, in the case of a thoroughly responsible firm or individual, is likely to be counterbalanced, is it not, by a wise conservatism and a desire to maintain a good reputation?

The new carnation is labeled No. 414. The illustrations show a house of it and also a separate bloom, as seen from three different points of view. In order to appreciate fully the prospect of a good crop of flowers, it is important to note that the photograph of the house was taken early—November 7, 1918.

"We believe," says Mr. Baur, "that this is the best variety we have yet produced and we feel confident that it will be added to the list of standard sorts after it is disseminated. In color it is similar to Gloriosa, but somewhat brighter, holding its color better. In size it is equal to the Enchantress varieties, and in freedom it compares favorably with the best of the standard sorts grown today. It seems to have all the earmarks of a high-grade commercial sort. We are growing about 5,000 this season and will have a large stock next season, when we propose to disseminate it.''

THE PROVIDENCE SHOW.

A Creditable Exhibition.

The annual fall exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the ballroom of the Narragansett hotel, at Providence, November 14 and 15 and was an excellent one. Pot chrysanthemums were missed, but cut blooms were numerous and of grand quality. Roses and carnations were both in fine form. Great credit is due to this society for keeping its exhibitions going as usual, while other and larger societies either have dropped shows entirely or so reduced them that they are mere shadows of those of former years.

The leading exhibitors and prize-winners in the mum classes were John S. Doig, gardener to F. S. Peck, Barrington, R. I., some of whose finest vases were William Turner, Yellow Turner, Glenview, Louisa Pockett and E. Seidewitz; the Warwick Neck Greenhouses, whose Glenview, Yellow Eaton, Yellow Turner and Supreme were noteworthy, and Fred Hoffman, whose finest varieties were Golden Age, President Everitt and William Turner.

T. J. Johnston & Co., Providence, took first and second for the best baskets of chrysanthemums. They also showed some excellent baskets of roses, a bride's bouquet of roses and a display of ferns. The carnation prizes were divided between John S. Doig and the Mount Pleasant Greenhouses. John Macrae had a fine table of carnations not for competition and had planned to show cut mums in quantity, but mistook the day of opening. John S. Doig had an excellent vase of Eucharis amazonica.

Things to Eat.

The Providence Market Gardeners' Association coöperated with the Horticultural Society in this show and its members showed some high-quality vegetables. Apples were more largely shown than usual, the boxes from L. K. Klarma being specially good. Displays of canned goods were large and canning competitions were given on the first evening of the show. The second day the show was in the hands of the allied war relief campaigners and a good sum was netted for our boys across the water. W. N. Craig, Brookline, Mass., officiated as judge. W. N. C.

HYDRANGEAS ARE POPULAR.

The popularity of the hydrangea as a pot plant for Christmas and Easter, which has been constantly growing since the importations of azaleas from Belgium were shut off by the war, promises to be greater this season. Already many growers have their stock for the Christmas demand and are preparing to have a good supply to bloom at Easter.

French hydrangeas are excellent pot plants for these two flower-selling days. They are propagated with the greatest ease, grow rapidly, force splendidly, bloom much earlier than the old H. otaksa, produce splendid heads of flowers and can be had in a fine range of colors.

While most florists grow more or less of these blooming plants, those who want to increase their supply should purchase either pot-grown or field-grown stock now. If they are wanted for Christmas and before, pot-grown plants in 5-inch, 6-inch or even larger sizes should be secured. Keep them in a cold-frame for a time and gradually reduce their water supply, not causing a complete drying up, but a gradual shrinkage. For plants to bloom at Easter and Memorial day, field-grown stock will answer just as well.

While primulas, cyclamens and begonias will be as popular as ever this year, it is well for variety's sake to have a supply of hydrangeas of the French varieties. Then the customer will have a good assortment to choose from.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

MICE KILL BUGS.

For a long time the soil in my rose benches has been infested with millions of sow bugs. Lately I have noticed the surface littered with the remains of the bugs and on investigation I find that mice are responsible for the deaths. I can hardly find a live bug now. As long as there is work for them to do, I certainly shall not try to exterminate the mice. J. L. Johnson.

STEM-ROT ON ASTERS.

Someone is always asking about stem-rot on asters. We have an old-fashioned remedy which we have used for ten years, since it was given us by an old lady at a time when we were losing seventy-five per cent of our asters. We have used it continuously ever since and we seldom lose an aster. We find, however, that the remedy must be applied every year.

In our town people burn the dead leaves in the autumn in the streets. We have made it a practice to go around and gather up the ashes from the bonfires and keep them in a dry place until spring. We scatter a liberal sprinkling of them on the soil and use them in the seed beds as well. When we transplant we use the ashes again in the beds. If anyone who is troubled with stem-rot will try this remedy I feel positive it will remove this trouble, as we have given it a ten-year trial and it never has failed. A. Gardner.

ROOTING GERANIUM CUTTINGS.

Regarding the trouble your correspondents are having in rooting geranium cuttings, I would like to suggest that they make the cuttings with a longer piece of the stem. The tips of the shoots of outdoor plants are usually soft in the autumn, so that if conditions are not just right for striking, many are lost by rot, if the cuttings are only three or four inches long. We find that we get them to root much better if the cut is made farther down the stem, where the wood is riper, even if it makes the cutting seven or eight inches long. We place the cuttings in 2-inch pots and fill around them with poor, sandy soil. They are then set in the full sunshine on a shallow bench covered with soil. Moderate amounts of water are given. I think the pots are better than the sand bench because there is one potting operation saved and, if the 2-inch pots are set close together, the cuttings are as thick as they should be to insure proper circulation of air around them.

THE INDIANA ASSOCIATION.

Meeting at Richmond.

An exceptionally large delegation of members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was present at its meeting November 12, in anticipation of the good time always enjoyed at Richmond. Over fifty members spent the morning and the early part of the afternoon visiting the various ranges around the city. Perhaps the most attractive item seen was the new rose, Premier, which was found in fine form at both of the Hill establishments. Orders for 150,000 plants of this new rose already have been booked. Columbia also looked fine and is selling better this year even than last. Other places visited were the East Haven Conservatories, George R. Gause & Co., the old range of Charles Knopf, which is now under the management of the Joseph Hill Co., Fred H. Lemon & Co., E. C. Ruch, J. A. Evans and the Jones place. The chrysanthemums at the various ranges were an unusually attractive sight. Dinner was served at the City cafe. The tables were artistically decorated by Fred H. Lemon & Co. After the business meeting a bowling contest and a social hour were enjoyed at the Elks' Club.

Post-Bellum Plans.

The business meeting was presided over by President Irwin Bertermann. The opening address was made by E. G. Hill, who told of his trip through the east. He is of the opinion that prospects are brighter for the florists' business now than ever before, especially in Indiana. He says the eastern tradesmen are looking to the western and middle-western florists for new introductions.

The association service flag was displayed, with its eleven stars. George Gause made the motion that the club welcome the soldier boys home with a jollification, which was carried by an enthusiastic, unanimous response. The stars represent the following members of the trade in the service: V. A. Blubaugh, Corporal Oscar Carlsteadt, Claude C. Griffith, Karl Hack, Sergeant R. E. Jones, Ernst Lutz, Morris Mayer, Lieutenant Colonel C. B. Sayre, Lieutenant William J. Vesey, Jr., and Captain S. H. Young.

The committee appointed to confer with the governor on appropriations for the benefit of floriculture in Indiana was increased from three to five members and consists of the following: Irwin Bertermann, O. E. Steinkamp, E. E. Temperley, E. G. Hill and W. W. Coles.

Paul Janisch, of Indianapolis, and Mr. Worth, of Purdue, were proposed for membership.

Baur & Steinkamp exhibited a vase of their new carnation No. 414, an exceptionally beautiful variety between flesh color and rose-pink, which called forth a great deal of admiration. E. E. T.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

WHOLESALERS TAKE ACTION.

The question of growing delivery expense, which has long agitated the minds of the wholesale florists of Cleveland, has been solved by the adoption of a zone-system charge, which undoubtedly will operate to the advantage of all concerned. Primarily, the object is a reduction of an outlay for delivery which had mounted to a figure out of proportion to the actual value of the business. It is also designed for the purpose of compelling the retailer to become interested by forcing him to bear a portion of the burden, the outcome of which will inevitably be the introduction of economy in the matter of delivery. Following is the letter that was mailed to each retailer:

To our patrons, the retail florists of Cleveland—Time changeth all things except the commission rate upon which the wholesale florist sells his goods. Talk about your time-honored institutions; for a quarter-century it has been fifteen per cent! Nor can it be increased at present, because the grower is laboring under the greatest handicaps in history. It must continue and, despite the fact that the cost of doing business has trebled, the wholesaler must operate within it. He simply must reduce his operating expenses.

The cost of delivery, as conducted at present, is entirely out of proportion to the value of the business. Its radical change is an economic necessity. There are two alternatives, namely, discontinuing delivery or making a nominal charge therefor. Due consideration of the interests of our patrons compels the belief that the doing away of deliveries altogether would cause an unmerited inconvenience to some, while the making of a small charge for the service would be eminently fair to all, inasmuch as the purchaser has the choice of calling for his goods if he desires.

After a careful analysis of the situation, we have decided to adopt a uniform zone-rate charge, the price in each instance being based upon actual delivery cost, as follows: Zone 1, covering the downtown section and extending to East Fourteenth street, 15 cents; zone 2, extending to Sixtieth street, on both the west and east side, 35 cents; zone 3, extending to 106th street on the east side and 117th street on the west side, 50 cents; zone 4, extending beyond 106th street on the east side and 117th street on the west side, and Brooklyn, 65 cents. This plan for handling our deliveries will be put into effect Monday, November 18, 1918.

Assuring our patrons that it is our earnest desire to maintain an efficient delivery system and to coöperate with them in every manner possible, on the theory that the interests of both are mutual, we are, etc.

If the plan has the expected result of causing more buyers to make their selections in person it will be of advantage to all. Mac.

THE BOYS WHO DID THE JOB

THERE'LL BE A HOT TIME

When Johnny Comes Marching Home.

The boys are coming home just as soon as the necessary transports can be provided. This is the good news announced by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board, on the eve of his departure for France to make the arrangements. The job of policing the Franco-German frontier will keep some of the men "over there" for a long time, undoubtedly, and it is not unlikely that some of those whose training has been finished in the camps here will go over to relieve those who have been doing the actual fighting. But it is certain that those members of our trade who came through the fighting in France will be back in time to help out with the preparations for the Easter rush. When they come let The Review know, so that it can spread the good news. In the meantime, any information regarding the boys "over there" or those in the camps here will be welcome at The Review office.

Walter Sambrook Dies in France.

Notice has been received of the death in France September 6, following a brief illness with pneumonia, of Walter L. Sambrook, eldest son of George T. Sambrook, of Sambrook Bros., Troy, N. Y. Only 25 years of age, the young man exhibited every sign of perfect manhood. He was a splendid help in the business and proved himself worthy in the service of his country. The numerous expressions of sympathy, including one from the commanding officer of his corps, will act as balm to the bereaved parents. "To live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die." The body was interred in a rural cemetery just outside Paris. M.

Walter Jensen.

George E. Terrell.

One Wound Follows Another.

Walter Jensen, of Jensen Bros., 3335 Lincoln avenue, Chicago, is in a hospital in France recovering from two wounds. The young man received a bullet wound in his left arm and was ordered back to the dressing station by his commanding officer, after first aid had been applied. While on his way to the rear, a piece of shrapnel struck him in the jaw. He had been in the hospital several weeks when his brother, G. W. Jensen, received the news. Mr. Jensen was one of the first florists in Chicago to be called in the draft. He has been in the service since September, 1917.

George E. Terrell Called.

Private George E. Terrell, of Company L, 68th Infantry, died October 23, 1918, of pneumonia, at Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Ala. Private Terrell was called to serve his country August 6, 1918, at the age of 31 years. He was a member of the firm of William Terrell & Son, of Warsaw, Ind.

Mr. Terrell sent The Review his portrait several weeks ago, but did not live to see it in print. At that time the following note was prepared for publication with the portrait:

George E. Terrell, of William Terrell & Son, Warsaw, Ind., was summoned to the training camp at Fort Thomas, Ky., August 6 and now is preparing for service with the American forces in France. Mr. Terrell is 31 years of age and, as he expresses it, "has always been in the greenhouse business, probably not working all the time in my younger days, but I'll bet they knew I was on the job." Two others from the Terrell establishment have joined the colors. Sergeant William Roberts, of the 137th Field Artillery, was formerly the florist with the firm and Oliver Roberts, a helper, was recently called.

Chicagoan Dies at Chateau-Thierry.

Corporal Howard R. Votaw, 97th Company, 6th United States Marines, was killed in action October 3. He was acting quartermaster at the battle of Chateau-Thierry and had been recommended for a commission. He made his home with his aunt, Mrs. F. B. Richardson, 7438 Indiana avenue, Chicago, and was engaged to marry Miss Florence Wood, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. R. Wood, 5440 Harper avenue.

Corporal Votaw was a member of the Chicago Florists' Club and was widely known in the trade in the Chicago territory as the manager of the florists' department of the fertilizer concern of Darling & Co., a position he held for some years prior to his enlistment in the marines in the summer of 1917.

William Sebel Dies at Sea.

The sad tidings reached Philadelphia November 14 that William Sebel died of influenza October 11 during the voyage to France, and that he was buried at sea the following day. William Sebel was one of the ablest cut flower salesmen in the City of Brotherly Love. His integrity, sound judgment and determination to succeed won him rapid promotion. His happy disposition gained him many friends, who deeply mourn his loss. He was only 24 years of age. John Welsh Young.

Florist Sent Home.

The war has released one young florist from the service, much to the delight of his father. November 7 Adolph Frost, Cortland, N. Y., reported that his son, Dan A. Frost, had been called to the service. November 10 Mr. Frost wrote: "I am in luck! My son has been sent home." Young Mr. Frost is connected with his father in business. He also is an enthusiast over the Boy Scout movement, being scout master at Cortland, and is a member of several lodges.

Paul Smith's Narrow Escape.

Paul C. Smith, son of M. S. Smith, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, had two narrow escapes from death recently during the heavy fighting just before the close of the war. A letter just received by the young man's father reports that the former was hit in the back by a piece of shell during the fighting, but he escaped with a big bruise on his back. Two days previously he had crawled back of an ammunition wagon during a heavy bombardment and a shell struck the other side of the conveyance, wrecked it and killed the mules, but Mr. Smith was unhurt. Some idea of how the allied airplanes controlled the air during the last days of the war is shown by this portion of the letter: "The enemy planes started in on us. One plane opened machine gun fire on us, but an American plane just behind brought him down. I saw five or six Hun planes brought down that day." Mr. Smith is a member of the 122nd Field Artillery, formerly the 1st Cavalry, Illinois National Guard. As his last letter said he was back in a rest camp after several weeks at the front, his parents believe that he was not in the actual fighting when the end came.

Lieutenant Boyd Killed.

First Lieutenant Gordon Boyd, stepson of Charles Dickinson, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, was killed in action in France November 5, only six days before the armistice brought the war to a close, his relatives in Chicago were informed November 16. Lieutenant Boyd formerly was a Chicago newspaper man and when he joined the army in 1917 was connected with the Popular Mechanics magazine. He joined the officers' training school at Plattsburg, N. Y., and received his commission in November, 1917, sailing for France in January of this year.

Lieutenant H. A. Hyde, Jr.

H. A. Hyde, grower and nurseryman of Watsonville, Cal., has just received notification from the government that his son, Harold Hyde, has received a commission as first lieutenant in the ambulance service. H. A. Hyde, Jr., has seen fourteen months of active service in France, his unit having been through two of the principal drives. It wintered last year near Verdun. It has been attached for nearly a year to one of the crack French regiments which has assisted in repelling the drives of the crown prince. One member of the unit has been killed, one blinded and a number gassed. Eight of the boys have received the Croix de Guerre and the unit, together with the regiment, has won a citation, entitling them to wear the red and green braid.

Operates Wireless in France.

Receiving wireless messages from the U. S. army aeroplanes as they flew over the German positions was the duty of James W. McPheron, son of R. A. McPheron, of the Cottage Greenhouses, Litchfield, Ill., and well known to the trade in Chicago and St. Louis, where he had been employed in retail stores. "Jimmie," as he was known, joined the signal corps and has been in France for some time. In his last letter to his father he said they were "betting that the war would be over in six weeks," and it had come to an end when his letter reached Litchfield. Mr. McPheron was employed by John T. Muir, Chicago, and Fred C. Weber, St. Louis, before he joined the army.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

Shakespeare a considerable number of years ago asked the question, "What's in a name?" and then proceeded to save a whole lot of brain work by answering it himself. "Nothing," was his solution of the problem and he proved the truth of his answer by citing the fact that "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

Names on The Review subscription list go to prove that Shakespeare was right; there is nothing in a name. At first one might be led to believe there is when it is discovered that in Pine Bluff, Ark., Mae Flowers sells 'em. But, on the other hand, when we consider that Perry Onion, East Las Vegas, N. M., also has a flower store and not a vegetable establishment, it would seem that the bard knew whereof he spoke. Having settled the question equally well with the above two names, we now find that at Iola, Kan., George F. Odor deals in blooms, one of the charms of which his name describes.

Making jokes out of names is the chief forte of many so-called humorists. But, as W. W. would say, may we not be pardoned for suggesting that if by any chance Mr. Onion and Mr. Odor should form a partnership?—Well, you say it.

Wenham, Mass.—B. Hammond Tracy, of Cedar Acres, has purchased the entire stock of J. L. Moore, Northboro, Mass., who traded as the Northboro Dahlia and Gladioli Gardens, one of the largest stocks in the United States.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

HERBACEOUS PERENNIALS.

It is time now to cut down all hardy herbaceous perennials and after doing so to clear away the weeds from about them and apply a top-dressing of barnyard manure, if it can be spared for the purpose. It is not too late to transplant many hardy perennials and any of this work is better done before the tops are cut away. Some herbaceous plants are not reliably hardy and in the colder states it is safer to lift and store such plants as Helianthus multiflorus plenus, phloxes, kniphofias, Anemone japonica, pompon chrysanthemums, Incarvillea Delavayi and rehmannias in a cold cellar or frame for the winter. If you want to increase your phloxes, dig up a number of clumps now and store in a coldframe. In February start these up in a cool greenhouse and you will get a big crop of cuttings, which will root readily and make splendid field plants by the following fall.

BROAD-LEAVED EVERGREENS.

Before the ground freezes up it will pay well to give rhododendrons a good soaking of water with a hose. The reason so many of these beautiful plants die each spring is not so much on account of severe frost as of a lack of moisture at the roots. Deciduous trees and shrubs will survive if the ground freezes up with their roots comparatively dry, but it is otherwise with evergreens, especially rhododendrons and other plants with broad leaves. If, however, they are well soaked just before winter shuts down on us and a generous mulch of leaves to exclude frost from the roots is applied, they are fairly certain to winter well. This applies to practically all evergreens, especially those planted within the last few years. The covering up of hybrid rhododendrons, which entails much labor and experience, is not necessary, as experience has proven. Windbreaks are helpful, but neither will avail if the ground freezes up while the roots of the plants are dry and no water can percolate the leaves for months. Such varieties as delicatissimum, Charles Dickens, Caractacus, C. S. Sargent, album elegans, album grandiflorum and roseum elegans have withstood minimums of 20 degrees below zero and maximums of below zero with no injury to the buds or foliage when treated as described.

PROTECTION FOR PANSIES.

If we could be certain of a covering of snow throughout the winter, there would be little need for artificial mulches for plants. Unfortunately, we cannot depend on this and great harm is done to unmulched plants as the sun rises higher in the heavens toward spring, when sudden thaws and bare ground are succeeded by keen frosts. The sun softens the ground daily and the warmth helps to sossle the uncovered plants. Mulch of some kind is therefore a necessity. For pansies it should not be applied until the ground is hard. Meadow hay, straw or leaves are any of them good, but whatever is used must be held in position in some way. I find that a light scattering of loam or old manure proves effective and is easier to apply than boards, brush or cornstalks. Such plants as myosotis, daisies, violas, digitalis, hollyhocks, Coreopsis grandiflora, sweet williams and sweet rockets can be similarly treated.

In severe climates where some of the plants named do not winter well outdoors, they should be lifted now and planted closely in coldframes. A coating of perfectly dry leaves, with sashes placed above to keep out moisture, will keep them safe. Some ventilation should be given during warm spells through the winter, otherwise many of the plants will sweat and damp off.

DOINGS IN DIXIE

THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., has not had a chance to put in an "idle hour" for many a moon and the prospect is not promising for an early surcease of activities. Mr. Horgan made a record as a member of the executive committee of the United War Work Campaign of Bibb county, an organization which set to work to "improve each shining hour" from the day it first undertook the patriotic duties it has discharged with such signal success. An account of the going over the top in the Fourth Liberty Loan drive of the city of Macon and the county of Bibb and Mr. Horgan's participation therein appeared in a recent issue of The Review. Business is rushing, meanwhile, at the Idle Hour Nurseries, to the extent that it taxes the working force of that busy establishment to the limit.

TICKLING TULSA.

Maxwell & Co. had their first annual chrysanthemum show November 9, and it was a great success. A page advertisement in a morning newspaper announced the exhibition, which was open from noon until 10 p. m. There were more than 2,000 mums of a number of varieties, all produced at the Maxwell greenhouses, and the crowds that filled the store were, as one enthusiastic woman expressed it, "tickled pink." The following day, Sunday, the flowers were placed on sale and cleaned up nicely. "Our sale netted us several hundreds of dollars and, besides, was a big boost for the business in general," reports Lloyd Maxwell.

The advertisement that announced the exhibition and sale was an attractive one. At the top, bottom and one side there were borders of flowers drawn in pen and ink, while the artist had sketched in scenes depicting the various uses of flowers.

The store of Maxwell & Co. is located at 816 North Elmwood avenue and is conducted by Lloyd Maxwell. The other member of the firm is John Maxwell, who now is in the government service. Both have had a long experience in the flower business and started a number of years ago the greenhouse establishment at Alva, which is now conducted by their father.

Recently the Maxwell brothers purchased a 40-acre tract of land and now that the restrictions on building have been removed by the War Industries Board will undoubtedly soon make good their announced intention of building a range of 50,000 feet of glass.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

The florists of Birmingham had their difficulties in September, but October business was immense. With the war clouds past and the sky clear, the prospect in all respects is improved and all are rejoicing.

Theo. Smith, of the Hillman Flower Shop, reports the finest business on record for the month of October and he says November is better still. He has secured the services of Miss Ethel Johnson, of New York.

A. J. Koenig does a rushing business, but finds time to go fishing once a week.

The G. B. McVay & Sons Seed Co. has all it can do with funeral and wedding work.

J. L. Parker is selling quantities of mums. T. S.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

We have been having an unusual fall, beautiful, sunny days, with crisp, clear nights. The fine weather certainly has effected a big saving in coal, as most of the local florists have burned little fuel this fall, and, unless we have severe weather later on, our fifty per cent quota of coal will be equal to at least seventy-five per cent, as last October and November we had severe weather. Practically all bulbs have arrived and are finding ready sale. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and the price has declined to some extent, the best varieties selling for $5 per dozen. Carnations are improving and clear daily at $1.50 per dozen. Roses are off crop and the demand is much greater than the supply. All the growers expect to bring in a bumper crop for Christmas.

Immortelle and Atlas wreaths appropriate for the holidays are being shown and are beginning to sell readily. Glass oak covers that have been used extensively by the florists in connection with the immortelle wreaths are scarce this year, there being less than three dozen in the city. In the past the trade demand has been for from 100 to 200.

Knoxville did herself proud in the huge demonstration November 11, celebrating the signing of the armistice. Stores were closed all day.

Various Notes.

A. H. Dailey has an attractive window featuring pictures of the Allied commanders and President Wilson, with a display of pompon chrysanthemums both in pots and cut.

A. J. McNutt has been busy, cleaning up almost every day. On account of the shortage of help, he has been forced to do part of the firing at his greenhouses.

C. S. Custer reports business good, with a shortage of stock.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Inc., has been busy for the last few days, but there was enough stock to go around. This firm has been handicapped on account of sickness in its force, the following having been away from a week to ten days: K. P. Baum, G. W. Chesney, Miss Mae Cartwright, Miss Lucy Manly, Mrs. Maud O'Neal. Charles L. Baum has been suffering with rheumatism, but has kept up. Newton Sterling, for fourteen years superintendent of Crouch's greenhouses, has charge of the rose range at Baum's. He promises to show something good for Christmas. C. L. Canup, who has had charge of the carnation range for the last seventeen years, has the finest crops on record, with reduced help, which speaks well for his management.

Baum's has just finished sowing twenty acres of wheat.

C. W. Henderson & Co., the W. W. Scarbrough Co., the J. S. Sample Co., D. R. Mayo and Kaiser Bros., local seedsmen, report the largest sale of fall seeds in the history of the business, especially wheat.

Robert Shoch, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor November 9 and 10. He reports business the best on record. In fact, Mr. Shoch sold up a great many items until January 1. Reports such as this show that the florists' business as a whole is prosperous. K. P. B.

IN FORT SMITH, ARK.

"Flu" Hits and Helps George Rye.

The "flu" hit this part of the country in the early part of October and the average number of deaths up to the present time was six a day. Flowers were few and far between. Moreover, such as could be obtained sold for the highest prices ever known, except for Christmas sales. The northern markets were unable to supply the demand here and ferns were unobtainable. I was ill from October 14 to October 30 with the "flu" and my wife ran the business. My book account was the largest I ever had in the business; even went beyond Christmas business. The other florists in town had all the business they could do and more. The crop of mums was late. There was no frost here until October 31, but the summer was so hot that the mums were not up to standard. Never in the history of the florists' business have such prices been obtained for funeral work, and never before has such a large amount of stock been used for this purpose.

The prospects for the winter are not so bright as could be wished, for the simple reason that northern market prices are so high that, outside of funeral work, the demand will not be so great as formerly.

Business for the last two months has been the best ever known in the history of the flower business, but, as stated, there was great difficulty on account of the shortage in the northern markets, upon which we depend for stock. Besides, the northern people would not wire back or let us know they could not fill orders, and their failure to do so got us into trouble.

But, all such difficulties aside, this has been the greatest year ever known in this section in amount of money spent for flowers. George Rye.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Flower Shop, Miss Kate Harris and Mrs. M. E. Irby proprietors, has been through a period of stress, due to the immense business brought by the epidemic at a time when there was illness in the families of both members of the firm.

OUR BUSINESS OBJECT

MAKE A PROFIT.

These three words, "Make a Profit," stand out conspicuously in a sign on the wall in the office of the head of a large department store in Philadelphia.

The sentence is short, but it means much. Yes, more than most of us in business stop to realize.

Many florists today are basing their selling prices of cut flowers and plants, and their charges for services rendered, on olden-time costs. But conditions have changed; the price of labor has advanced, hours have been shortened, delivery service by automobile in many cases has been forced upon us. Everything that enters into the conduct of our business, including everything we buy to sell again, such as seeds, bulbs, pots, supplies, etc., costs much more. Look at the price of coal! Wax paper costs now just double what it did twelve months ago. Cotton twine in three years has increased to five times its former value. In fact, one might go on in an endless citation of things like these.

Have you increased your selling prices for plants, cut flowers, funeral designs and labor performed for your customers? If not, why not?

Every florist knows the cost of everything he buys; he should also know the cost, and he can easily figure it, of everything he grows himself, and the cost of the labor he performs. He should add a fair profit for his services. The public does not want to be victimized, but it is willing to pay a fair price for anything it wants. In every line of business except the horticultural industry, unheard-of prosperity is being enjoyed and that same prosperity is right at hand for the florist.

A representative of a leading eastern supply house was recently in the retail store of a florist, when a prospective customer came in, asked the price of funeral designs and was informed that they ranged from $2.50 up to $5.00, and this was in a town that is doing an enormous volume of war work. The prospective customer walked out without leaving an order. Why?

The price quoted seemed to the buyer to be too low. He wanted something better than was offered and he was willing to pay for it, which he did elsewhere later in the same town. Imagine the folly of quoting such a price, with cut flowers at a premium for several weeks! The florist did not stop to think that tin foil costs double, wire costs three times its normal value, twine costs five times its normal value, and paper costs twice its normal value.

Some florists are still selling geraniums in 4-inch pots, and the flower pot goes with the plant, for 10 cents. They think they cannot get more than 12 cents or 15 cents for an Easter lily or a hyacinth.

Man, it costs you more than that to grow these items, so do not figure that you have made a profit. You actually have lost money, and the sooner you realize it the better.

Mr. Florist, this little reminder has been written in your interest. If you want to pay your bills when due, make a living and be able to lay something aside for a rainy day, which is your just due, charge fair prices, "Make a Profit." Start today—now.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

This week the market is in better condition than for some time. All first-class stock cleans up well. There are more first-grade roses than usual at this season and, although the supply of mums is large, they sell up well. The mums this year are as fine as I have ever seen them. Of course they grade all the way from the large specimen flowers to the small outdoor kind, but there seems to be a big supply of those that sell from $1 to $3 per dozen. There is a fair supply of all miscellaneous stock to be had. Prices hold good and supply and demand balance.

November 11, Peace day, all the wholesale houses, as well as many of the retail stores, like every other line of business, closed down for at least half a day. There was no business to be done, as the public could think of nothing but celebrating, and, as the celebrating was of the boisterous kind, flowers had no part in it.

However, the prospect is for a good season ahead for the florists. The public feels more at ease; especially the class that entertains feels more like resuming old conditions. As yet it has not been definitely settled whether the Monday cotillions will be resumed, but from the present indications it seems probable they will. If this be the case they, of themselves, will insure a great deal of entertaining.

Most of the growers have their ranges stocked to full capacity, intending to close down one-half at the first of the year. Now that it seems certain they will be allowed to use all the coal they wish, there should be no scarcity of stock, and, as a great deal of labor will be released, it should not be long before our business is again on a normal basis.

Club Meeting.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its regular meeting November 11, and although the city was in a state that bordered on frenzy, the Florists' Exchange hall was filled to capacity to hear the lecture by Robert Pyle on "Roses and Rose Gardens at Home and Abroad." Mr. Pyle's lecture is certainly well worth hearing and the illustrations are fine. Old rose growers who were present said it was one of the most practical lectures they ever had heard. Mr. Pyle took occasion to pay a glowing tribute to John Cook, classing him as one of the greatest rosarians of this or any other country, and congratulated Baltimore on having a florist of his ability for one of its citizens. A fine picture of Mr. Cook formed part of the illustrations.

Another visitor on this occasion was Samuel S. Pennock, well known in the trade for twenty years. Mr. Pennock made a happy speech and spent the evening greeting old friends.

J. E. Morichard, of New York city, was also a visitor. He was called upon for a speech and, being carried away by the spirit of the day, gave us a most stirring patriotic address. Mr. Morichard is the general representative of the S. S. Pennock Co. and travels all over the east. He is optimistic over the outlook for the florists' business during the coming winter and can see nothing but good times ahead for the florists. His argument is, as the boys begin to come home from "over there" and from the various cantonments, they will be lionized and entertained, all of which will take flowers.

A dinner was tendered our guests at Hotel Rennert before the meeting. Those at the table were Samuel S. Pennock, Robert Pyle, J. E. Morichard, Richard Vincent, Jr., R. A. Vincent, Isaac H. Moss, Fred Bauer, J. J. Perry, C. M. Wagner, Albert Fiedler and Robert T. Paterson.

Various Notes.

Robert L. Graham's uptown store had a most attractive window display last week. The idea that Robert, Jr., had worked out was a "harvest home" window. Autumn foliage and golden pumpkins were used in the display, together with fine specimen chrysanthemums. It was a piece of work he might well feel proud of and it attracted lots of attention.

George J. Muhly is busy these days getting ready to push, for all it is worth, his line of "Keystone Quality" florists' supplies. Mr. Muhly says that his new venture is bound to be a success, and there will be no rest for his Ford this winter, as he intends to go after the trade and, what is more, he intends to get it.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Business conditions during the last week continued good, with a fair amount of stock to meet the demand. Roses are arriving in good condition, all grades cleaning up daily. Carnations are in good demand. Chrysanthemums clear with little trouble and bring almost any price demanded. Pompons have had a ready market. A few good sweet peas have been coming into the market. Violets have had a good call, both single and double varieties. American Beauties have been cleaning up well. Calla lilies also have been in favor.

Various Notes.

Most of the florists called for their flowers when the wholesale houses issued an announcement that a charge would be made for deliveries. The first day it seemed good to see so many on hand for their supplies, whose voices one was accustomed to hear over the phone asking why their stock had not been delivered, or because on delivery they had found they had forgotten something and wanted it rushed out. The city has been mapped out in four zones, the charges being 15 cents for the first zone, 35 cents for the second, 50 cents for the third and 65 cents for the fourth.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Miss Wilhelm in the death of her brother.

R. E. Blackshaw, representing the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., called on the trade during the week.

Herbert and Guy Bate, of Newton Falls, were visitors last week.

W. F. B.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There has been little change in the local market since the last report. Weather conditions are favoring us, November continuing open and clear. The shipping demand continues brisk, with plenty of stock on hand. The health department reports that the epidemic of influenza is well under control and each day the reports of new victims are smaller. Funeral work has fallen off considerably and conditions are getting back to normal. The chrysanthemum season is now at its height and each store is almost a flower show in itself. Wonderful blooms are seen, including yellow and white Turner, Appleton, Bonnaffon, Golden Gleam, Maud Dean, Queen, Rager, Harvard and Chieftain. According to report, the trade expects to be well taken care of in mums for the Thanksgiving trade. The growers report heavy stocks and the later varieties will be plentiful by that time. The outlook for pompons is encouraging. Plenty of good stock continues to arrive daily. Prices are normal. The supply of carnations is increasing weekly and fairly good stock is seen. Violets are of splendid quality, but do not sell rapidly. They are bringing from 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred. Easter lilies are falling off in supply and they are cheaper. A few good callas are seen. All outdoor stock, except cosmos, was frozen several days ago. Thus we are relying entirely on inside-grown stock. The supply of roses is equivalent to the demand. Stock is good, with clean foliage. Short-stemmed stock is more plentiful and sells well. Red roses have been good sellers this week, both in bouquets and basket work. Tied with the tricolor ribbon, they have been popular indeed. Ophelia and Sunburst always find a ready sale. Orchids meet with only a small demand. Bouvardia in white and colors is seen, but the colored does not sell so readily. There is a noticeable demand for potted stock. Cyclamens, pompons, Primula obconica and begonias are most prominent. The demand for asparagus continues good. Smilax and other greens receive a fair demand. Supplies of all kinds are plentiful at the wholesalers' and a good amount of business along this line has been noticed of late.

Various Notes.

Lieutenant Sims, well known among the local florists, and a brother-in-law of Oliver Boucher, is reported killed in action in France recently. He was assigned to the 108th Infantry and had seen considerable service. He was well liked by his comrades and they enjoyed being under his command.

George Pantos, who for the last year or so has occupied the flower stand at the corner of Main and Clinton streets, has sold his business to Collatos Bros. and in the near future will open a flower store in Lynn, Mass.

Visitors to the trade last week were: Richard H. McKerr and daughter, of Canandaigua, N. Y.; Milton Selinka, of Schloss Bros., Ribbons, Inc., New York, and Morris Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York.

Hugo Teute is cutting some wonderful white and yellow Turner mums, which are bringing him real money. They are large and sell rapidly. His other varieties are also in fine shape and he is cutting heavily from these.

The chrysanthemum show which has been held at the store of George T. Boucher during the whole of this week has proved a great success. The store has recently been redecorated, and for this special occasion white lattice brackets have been placed close to the ceiling, from which are suspended branches of brown oak. Many bright-colored Japanese lanterns are hung in the store and also in the windows. The collection of chrysanthemums is interesting, ranging from miniature types to the largest specimen Turners. Beautiful baskets of fruit and flowers, as well as small gourds filled with strawflowers, are shown. The management is to be congratulated on such a splendid display.

Walter La Vigne, son of Frank La Vigne, who enlisted in the Aerial School of Photography at Kodak park and graduated recently, is stationed at Call Field, Texas. He writes home saying that he enjoys the life.

All the florists closed their stores at noon November 11, when the glorious news of the signing of the armistice was made known. Never in the history of the city has a bigger crowd collected or a bigger celebration taken place.

H. J. H.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is good. The supply has shortened up within the week and everything that comes into the wholesale houses finds a good market. As far as the supply is concerned, Thanksgiving prospects are not overbright. The supply of chrysanthemums will be below that of other years, for the reason that practically all varieties generally used for Thanksgiving will have been cut by the end of this week and sent to the market, as least so far as many local growers are concerned. Of course there will be many, but there will not be so many as in the past for that day.

Roses are plentiful and meet with a ready sale. The carnation supply is fair. Pompon chrysanthemums are in good supply and meet with a good market. Callas may be had. Easter lilies are scarce. Among other offerings are sweet peas and single violets. Greens are fairly plentiful. New bronze galax is here.

Various Notes.

Miss Laura Murphy, of the Christmas Fund committee for the boys in the service, reports that up to this time over $500 has been subscribed and paid into the fund. Forty-two names have been handed in up to this time. The money for the boys who are overseas will be mailed this week.

C. E. Critchell has just received a new stock of supplies for Christmas. During the last several weeks he cleaned out his entire stock of supplies which he expected to use for the early winter and Christmas demand.

William Mayhall has received honorable discharge from the Artillery Officers' Training School, which he was scheduled to enter November 21.

Miss Fannie D. White, of Lexington, Ky., when in town this week, reported that she had sold her place to L. A. Fennel, of Cynthiana, Ky., and that the latter already had taken possession.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kyrk have the sympathy of their friends in their bereavement in the death of F. W. Burchard, Mr. Kyrk's brother-in-law, formerly of Tiffin, O.

J. A. Peterson & Sons have an excellent lot of cyclamens and begonias ready for shipping. They expect to dispose of every one of them by the time the holidays come around.

Among recent visitors were Robert Shoch, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Barber, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O.; W. C. Johnson, Memphis, Tenn., and G. W. Frisch, Dayton, O.

C. H. H.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

With the waning of the epidemic the volume of funeral work has decreased, but there is still a good deal to be done in this line. Transient trade is fair at present, but not in comparison with pre-war conditions.

Mums are arriving in quantities sufficient for the demand and the quality of the stock is excellent. The number of varieties is larger than in former seasons. Cosmos is still good, but shows signs of being past its prime.

Various Notes.

J. A. Manda, of Valley road, West Orange, N. J., a grower of orchids, has developed a new type of this flower which he has named Sergeant Manda, after his son, Edward A. Manda, who is a sergeant in the service overseas and was recently reported wounded. The orchid is a small bloom of reddish brown color.

Now that peace seems at hand, Newark florists are looking forward to the steamboat basket trade again. Before the war some of the trade enjoyed a brisk business in baskets of flowers for people leaving New York for Europe.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business continues good, the number of funerals still being slightly above normal, causing stock of all kinds to clean up well at satisfactory prices. There are few novelties in the market, but everything finds a ready sale. Chrysanthemums are now at their zenith and are among the best features. They bring from 50 cents to $1 per dozen on sprays and $1 to $4 per dozen on single blooms; roses sell for 5 to 12 cents and carnations 2 to 5 cents. The demand for mums was considerably accelerated during the latter part of the week by the annual chrysanthemum exhibition at Narragansett hotel by the Rhode Island Horticultural Society.

Various Notes.

Charles Smith, of Washington street, was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Frederick Dietz, of French street, made a business trip to New York last week.

H. M. Robinson, Jr., of Boston, Mass.,

who is in the Naval Reserves, is editing "The Trigger," a lively paper published each week by the Naval Rifle Range Force, at Rumford.

At the financial town meeting of Barrington last week $1,000 was appropriated for the care of trees and destruction of tree pests.

F. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., was one of the leading workers in the United War Work campaign last week.

Lawrence Hay was reëlected keeper of the old cemetery and Everett W. Adams, tree warden, at the meeting of the East Providence town council last week, each for one year. W. H. M.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

The Market.

Demand for flowers of any variety was of negligible proportions during the last week. The equilibrium of the market was maintained, however, as supply in general is low. Mid-season mums are cut out and late varieties are just coming in. This feature rendered impossible even a temporary glut and late November demand will nicely take care of the heavy supply now maturing. Carnations and roses are improving in quality and crop conditions are such that the shifting of demand at the commencement of December occasioned by the elimination of mums in quantity from the general supply will not affect receipts appreciably. The attention of the trade is focused on Thanksgiving day and the consensus is that the last week in November will see the wholesaler demanding almost any price for good quality mums and getting it. Demand is expected to exceed anticipation and it is probable that eleventh-hour orders will result in price advances all around. This prognostication is not without logic, as passing events are of a character to inspire more than ordinary desire in the hearts of the people to observe Thanksgiving day with festivities befitting the great events of the last few weeks, giving thanks to Him who shaped those events. The joy of victory is causing the national pulse to beat fast and unstinted generosity in celebrating release from the rigors of war doubtless will bring a flood of gold to the florists. Advance orders placed by retailers of national prominence are greatly in excess of their purchases last year and, as their advance holiday orders are regarded as the gauge of trade conditions, it may be assumed that the holiday will be one to be remembered.

Various Notes.

N. E. Flyn, lessee of the store and greenhouses on West Eighteenth street, owned by the Schluraff Floral Co., reports his new venture as panning out more successfully than he anticipated. In addition to the culture of flowers, Mr. Flyn will devote a portion of the greenhouses to the growing of vegetables. The demand Erie holds for the latter assures a satisfactory market at all times for the entire production.

C. G. Locke, of Arkport, N. Y., is closing down his greenhouses for the winter after enjoying a splendid season's business in small cyclamens, primulas and cinerarias. Mr. Locke states that it is nothing short of wonderful, the demand that can be created for small plants through advertising in The Review. Plans are under consideration for a rooted-cutting and small-plant business on a large scale next year. With the painstaking care Mr. Locke gives his stock, success in the undertaking is assured.

J. C. Layton, of Olean, N. Y., is back on the job again, thoroughly recovered from influenza. Mr. Layton had a run of hard luck that would have broken a less sturdy spirit. During the epidemic his store manager, Mrs. Babinger, and his two brothers died of pneumonia and, being incapacitated himself, he was unable to supervise the work at his greenhouses, with the result that over 50,000 geranium cuttings were ruined and carnations and other stock seriously injured. Mr. Layton is working day and night in an effort to get things in first-class condition again.

Steve Kost, well known to the trade throughout the country as traveler for the Wm. F. Kasting Co., has severed his connection with that concern and accepted a position as southern representative of the Quality Brands Co., of Cleveland, O., manufacturers of Vitaplastic glazing compound. Mr. Kost passed through this territory last week, en route to Baltimore, where he will have his headquarters, saying good-bye to his many friends and incidentally adding a good word for the goods he is now exploiting. We are all sorry to lose Mr. Kost, as his bubbling good humor, sound philosophy and perennial optimism served as a tonic to our spirits for so long a time that it will be hard to reconcile ourselves to the fact that the tedium of business will no more be beguiled by his visits.

H. M. Girton, of the Mountain Park Greenhouses, Ridgeway, Pa., predicts the largest Thanksgiving-day business in the history of the trade. Mr. Girton bases his prophecy on the fact that the cessation of hostilities overseas gives the country an extraordinary cause for thanks and that relaxation of the ban on social entertainments will result in parties and celebrations to commemorate the occasion that will call for larger quantities of flowers than usual for Thanksgiving day. Mr. Girton's stock is in fine condition and, as he says, "everything is in order for the biggest winter's trade in our history."

Andrew C. Benson.

THIRTY YEARS ON THE JOB.

Thirty years is a considerable span of time, but that is the duration of the regime of Andrew C. Benson as superintendent of the Bassett & Washburn greenhouse range, Hinsdale, Ill. Mr. Benson completed his thirtieth year at the Hinsdale range November 14 and there was a considerable celebration. The accompanying portrait of Mr. Benson was taken some time ago and it is safe to guess that the carnations he holds in his arms are Belle Washburn, which was produced at the Bassett & Washburn range.

CYCLAMEN MITE.

I am sending you a couple of my cyclamen plants and would like to have you advise me what to do with them. I have been growing cyclamens for the last twenty years and have always had good success with them heretofore, but this year my plants are all like these which I am sending for your inspection.

W. H. J.—Minn.

The cyclamen plants have not come to hand, but I think they probably are attacked by cyclamen mite, which ruins many a fine batch of these beautiful winter-flowering plants. It usually is noticed first when the blooms make their appearance. These come deformed, streaky and darker-colored than normal. It is almost impossible to save a batch of plants after the mite is well established. Sprinkling the benches with fresh tobacco stems from time to time seems to act as a preventive, as does spraying with nicotine extracts all through the growing season. Some good growers insist that if nicotine liquid is used once a week and well sprayed into the centers of the plants, the pest can be overcome. Nevertheless, our most successful growers have been troubled by attacks of it from time to time.

Weak fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas has helped to exterminate the pest. This cannot be used with safety, however, during the warm weather, and I would have more faith in nicotine sprayings, using them while the sun shines brightly, which is the time the tiny pests crawl out from their hiding places in the flowers. C. W.

Dallas, Tex.—Owing to the death of Seth Miller, president of the Green Floral Co., the property of this concern may be sold.

Norwich, Conn.—Alfred Hunt, thinking it impossible to secure enough coal to operate his range, which was planted in roses, decided to dispose of his fifty per cent allotment to George Smith and to obtain his supplies of stock from the latter during the coming season. He will use the opportunity afforded to reconstruct and improve his establishment. Good business in Norwich continuing after the abatement of the flurry caused by the epidemic encourages the hope that the new equipment will prove an excellent investment.

OBITUARY

James Young.

James Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., and one of the best known florists in St. Louis, died November 12, at St. John's hospital, from blood poisoning, following an operation.

Mr. Young was born in England sixty-nine years ago. When a baby he came to this country with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Young. They landed in Canada, but came to St. Louis in 1860 and started in the florists' business in a small way at Belt and Waterman avenues. The place then was known as Young's Greenhouses. A few years later it had become the largest greenhouse establishment in St. Louis. When the sons had grown up, Mr. Young took them into partnership and formed the C. Young & Sons Co. At the death of William and John Young and the withdrawal from the business of Henry and Charles Young, all brothers, Mr. Young took into the concern his two sons, Charles and Walter, and in recent years took only a passive interest in the management, leaving it to the young men. Mr. Young was vice-president of the company at his death.

Mr. Young is survived by his wife and two sons; two brothers, Henry and Charles Young, and two sisters, Mrs. William Ellison and Mrs. H. Helwig.

Knowing Jim Young as I did, I can vouch that he was a true friend, a loving husband and father and an honorable business man. His many sterling qualities made him respected and liked by all in the trade.

The funeral services were held November 16 at 8:30 a. m. from the house and later from St. Roch's church. The interment was in Calvary cemetery. Members of the trade attended the funeral in a body and many beautiful floral offerings were sent by friends, that of the St. Louis Florists' Club being a wreath. The pallbearers were C. A. Kuehn, Henry G. Berning, John Hoolihan, Henry Helwig, M. Courtney and J. J. Beneke. J. J. B.

Henry Gaethje, Jr.

The sympathy of the trade is with the wife and parents of Henry Gaethje, Jr., Rock Island, Ill., whose death occurred November 8, after a long illness, at the age of 34 years. Members of the Tri-City Florists' Club, consisting of the florists of Davenport, Ia., Rock Island and Moline, Ill., attended the funeral services, which took place November 10.

Samuel Slack.

Samuel Slack, Balboa park rosarian, formerly rose grower for Boyle & Darnaud, and one of the best informed rose culturists on the west coast, passed away at his home in San Diego, Cal., October 19, of pneumonia.

Mr. Slack was in charge of the famous Balboa park rose gardens, of the San Diego park system, for nearly five years, and his kindly, ever-courteous treatment of visitors endeared him to the many thousands of tourists from all over the world, who came to view the varied and beautiful exhibit in his charge.

Mr. Slack was born in Nottinghamshire, England, sixty-five years ago and had spent the greater part of his life in acquiring his extensive knowledge of roses and their culture. Before coming to the United States, he was in the employ of the late Rev. Dean Hole, one of the world's noted rosarians, and his subsequent career in this country demonstrated that he was a worthy apprentice to his noted instructor.

Known and loved by San Diego professional and amateur horticulturists, Mr. Slack was always generous with his knowledge and experience, and many beautiful gardens contain roses that will serve to keep his memory green for years to come.

Superintendent John G. Morley, of Balboa park, expressed deep regret over the loss of Mr. Slack, whose services he valued highly and for whom he had the warmest personal regard. A. D.

Benjamin Connell.

Benjamin Connell was a well known figure in the florists' and nursery business of the eastern United States. An acquaintance of over fifty years among his associates left with them an impression of one who gave close attention to business, who possessed a rare understanding of business conditions, coupled with an ability to use his knowledge for the building of a considerable business. His strict integrity and faithful attention to duty as he saw it in family, civic and business life, constitute a creditable record sealed by his death November 9.

Mr. Connell was born in Ireland, December 7, 1845. He emigrated to this country when a boy of 13 and went to live with his parents and brother and sister at Jenningsville, Pa., they having preceded him by a year. He took a position with the Dingee & Conard Co., with which concern he was identified for thirty years. He then established himself in business which he conducted in West Grove, Pa., up to ten years ago, when he moved to Merchantville, N. J., where he married his second wife. He is survived by five sons and one daughter by the first union and his wife and a young daughter by the second. He was highly respected in the community in which he lived, as well as in his former home in Chester county. He was sick only eight days, the cause of death being influenza and pneumonia.

Conard & Jones Co.

Harry W. Shaw.

Harry W. Shaw, conducting the business of the Albuquerque Greenhouse Co., Albuquerque, N. M., died at a sanitarium there November 12, about six hours after being removed there from his home. He was stricken with Spanish influenza about two weeks ago, which turned into pneumonia and caused his death.

Mr. Shaw, who was born in Eaton, O., thirty years ago, removed to Albuquerque about five and one-half years ago from Trinidad, Colo., where he had been in the greenhouse business. In company with his father, Grant Shaw, he took over the business of the Albuquerque Greenhouse Co., which immediately began to prosper under their management.

Decedent was one of the most likable young business men of his city. He was a member of the Masons, a Shriner, a member of the I. O. O. F., M. W. A., and an Elk. He also belonged to the Rotary Club. In addition to his widow, he is survived by four children, his father, Grant Shaw, and a sister. The children were ill with influenza when the father died.

Pierre Guillot.

A distinguished French rosarian passed away recently in the person of Pierre Guillot, who was associated with a prominent French house of Lyons, which has given to the world many splendid types of the queen of flowers, including La France, Mme. Falcot, Mme. Hoste, Gloire Lyonnaise, Mme. Leon Pain and Comtesse d'Oxford. M. Guillot threw into his life work enthusiasm and devotion, being a great lover of roses. He was genial and kind-hearted and always accorded a hearty welcome to visitors.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"This season we changed from carnations to chrysanthemums," observed E. V. B. Felthousen, of Schenectady, N. Y. "One house, planted to early varieties, which was cleaned out at a good figure, now is planted to lettuce. Another house of late mums is expected to return equally well, prices keeping up as they do." This statement calls to mind a grower (name given on request) who, from one house 28x200, planted to early chrysanthemums, chiefly Unaka, cleared $1,600. He will succeed with lettuce for a cold crop. The cut of mums was handled by a wholesale house in Manhattan.

• • • • •

W. H. Showers, Schenectady, N. Y., wonders if business will continue to be as good as it has been. Schenectady has paid heavy toll to "Old Mortality," creating a big call for "tokens of sympathy."

• • • •

The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., is taking advantage of the opportunity in the lull of importing to increase as rapidly as possible its large stock of orchids, in view of the demand soon to come.

• • • •

"Too busy even to think," observed F. X. Dienst, of Middletown, N. Y., and when one stops to think how rapid is the flight of thought, one realizes how strenuously our worthy confrere has been employed of late.

• • • •

W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, N. Y., believes the demand for heather, cyclamens, poinsettias and pot plants generally will be active for the holidays, judging from the number of inquiries and orders received. Stock here is in fine shape and the shortage of labor seems hardly to be felt, an example of how one can accustom oneself to new conditions. Hydrangeas for Easter are promising and will be another strong item for spring sales.. W. M.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

ONE may no longer shrug his shoulders and excuse himself with, "C'est la guerre." La guerre est finié.

THE trade in the south never has enjoyed as high a state of prosperity as has been its good fortune this season.

THE florist who has no system of looking after collections always will have money on the books, but none in the bank.

NEXT season probably will establish a record for the number of novelties put on the market. There were a lot of new things awaiting the return of peace.

TWO classes of florists are retiring from the business under present conditions: Those who never have been able to make it pay and those who have made it pay so well they can afford to retire. There are numbers of each.

THE experience of the last few months has served to show many florists that they previously employed considerably more help than really was needed, both in stores and greenhouses. While a little more than the present number of workers are needed in most places, many never will put back all of the old crew.

THERE are few florists who have not cut off one or another of the costly little services rendered in the good old days that will be slow returning—the good old days will be slow, we mean; most florists like so well to spend their money they will be quick to put the frills on again when they can, even if they do not now seem to be missed.

THE DEMAND FOR PLANTS.

While the supply of plants is short this season there is no shortage in demand for them. No grower who has surplus stock to dispose of is having trouble in finding buyers; in fact, there are more customers than there are plants, providing, of course, the proper means are used to let the trade know what is for sale. The Classified section of The Review is bringing wonderful results to those who have plants for sale. The orders received as a result of these little ads are so numerous that in many cases the advertisers are having to return checks. Like this:

Kindly cut out my advertisement. I do not like to return checks.—L. Benson, Indianapolis, Ind., September 22, 1918.

Please discontinue our carnation ad. We are sold out and dislike to return so many checks.—Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., September 23, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

THE COAL MARKET.

The expectation of some florists that, now the war is over, the price of coal will be reduced will not be realized, at least during the winter of 1918-19, asserts a Chicago authority on the subject. The maximum prices fixed by the United States Fuel Administration will be maintained, because they were based on the cost of production, arrived at by an investigation of the Federal Trade Commission.

During the last two weeks there has been an oversupply of the poorer grades of bituminous coal in Chicago and other bituminous coal centers. For this reason coal has been offered at from 25 to 50 cents per ton under the government maximum prices. The better grades of coal, however, such as Franklin county in Illinois, are held at the maximum price and little can be bought. The cheaper coal comes from mines that were not worked before there was the great demand for fuel for war purposes because the quality is so poor and it is expected that their operation will cease as soon as conditions become more normal.

"Any florist who feels sorry for himself because he has a supply of the better grades of bituminous coal, bought at the government price, does not know the conditions," the coal man asserted. "Florists use the best class of bituminous coal, which will not be offered in the market at a lower price for some time to come, not during this winter, at least."

STILL TAKING THEM OVER.

Last week the United States government took over the American Railway Express Co., which heretofore had been outside government management, and placed the express service of the entire country under the control of Director General McAdoo, the same as the railroad service is.

The action was a surprise, coming, as it did, after the actual, if not the technical, close of the war, and it has aroused great opposition in political and economic circles. The American people have been willing to stand for anything the purpose of which was alleged to be the winning of the war, but there are many who cannot see why government control and operation should be extended after the war is won.

Almost the first act of the director general will be to raise express rates and the employees' salaries.

Florists heretofore have said little, not wishing to appear to be in the position of opposing anything the government considered desirable in prosecuting the war. But it is a matter of common knowledge in the trade that the government operation of railroads, telegraph and telephones and its acquiescence in the previous combination of express companies, all have resulted in a marked deterioration of service and a considerable average increase in the cost of that service.

Now that the war is won, the trade will not be satisfied with anything short of the quickest possible return to the private operation of public utilities.

GET YOUR ORDERS IN.

In a recent communication to The Review, John Wolf, of Savannah, Ga., says:

I must mention that the express service is the worst I have ever known. It is impossible to get things on time.

There are times, of course, when it is necessary for florists to send rush orders for stock; there also are times when florists receive orders for flowers or designs that depend on normal express service to reach their destinations in time. But many, many times failure to get shipments when they are needed is the fault of the florist himself.

Ever since the war began and the railroads were called upon to handle a greatly increased amount of traffic with the facilities that were taxed even before the speeding up of war work, The Review has urged the members of the trade to anticipate their wants and get their orders in as far in advance as possible. But the habit of years is hard to break, and they have gone along as in normal times—expecting pre-war service.

Outside of flowers, almost everything used in a retail store is staple. These things can be ordered now as well as next week—they will be used sometime.

This applies to what the retailer will need for the holidays—Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, St. Valentine's day and the other big flower-selling days of the season, ending with Memorial day.

Now is an excellent time to take an inventory—find out what things will be needed for these holidays and order them. An order placed now will mean that the goods will arrive well in advance of the time they are needed.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Business has been excellent; it has fully recovered the ground lost in the height of the mum season and is larger than ever before at this date. Shipping continues brisk and wholesalers report a large number of Thanksgiving orders on hand. It is the opinion of some that the first part of next week will see the biggest shipping in the history of the Chicago market. While the shipping is going along in such good shape, city trade is keeping pace with it and prices are much above normal. The retailers are also looking for a "grand and glorious" Thanksgiving and have made many preparations for handling a large volume of business. Corsage work has come to life again. The opening night of the opera, November 18, brought a big demand for them and the retailers say it looked like a before-the-war opera. Increased numbers of corsages also are being used for street wear, violets being a popular seller. Many large retailers report that during the latter part of last week they received orders for many table decorations, etc., work they had not received for a year or more, due to the war conditions.

Stock conditions, with a few exceptions, are almost like those of last week. Chrysanthemums continue to be the leader in the market, with large quantities arriving, but the end of their season is near. Some of the best growers will be cut out by the end of the week and will have none for Thanksgiving. The demand for fancy stock continues to be larger than the supply, while other grades also meet with a good call and clean up well. Prices remain good. Yellow pompons are most abundant and the cheapest flower on the market. White and pink bunch mums are not equal to the demand and bring excellent prices.

Long-stemmed roses are coming in good quantity and there are just about enough of them to take care of orders. It looks like a coming shortage for this class of stock. Other lengths, however, continue on the short side. Prices on roses have stiffened, the shorts most of all.

Carnations are arriving more plentifully and meet with their usual good demand, but it is the same story with them as in the last few weeks, more stock, more orders, which puts them on the short side, bringing a satisfactory price. Some long-stemmed stock has made its appearance, but the quantity is small. The better grade pompons continue to be used to make up for the carnation shortage.

There is a larger supply of orchids than there has been for some time, but there are not enough for present needs and prices have advanced. The usual demand for Easter lilies continues and these are not plentiful. Rubrum lilies have met with an unusual call, evidently due to the shortage of Easter lilies, and they bring a good price. A few callas arrive, but meet with little call. Valley is plentiful at this time. Calendulas are quite plentiful and of good quality, but there are not enough to meet the call for them. Pansies move steadily, but the supply exceeds the demand. Both double and single violets are arriving in good quantities and, while the call has increased, it is not large enough to absorb the stock coming in. Sweet peas had become plentiful, but the weather has not been in their favor and there is not a good call for them. There is enough mignonette for present needs. Paper Whites made their appearance on the market last week, but move slowly.

The greens situation, for the first time in many weeks, has changed. Everything moves rapidly and there is no oversupply of anything; there is just enough to go around.

Retailers Organize.

The organization of the Chicago Retail Florists' Association was completed at a meeting held at the Congress hotel November 19. Officers were elected as follows:

President—L. R. Bohannon.
Vice-president—A. Lange.
Secretary—William Wienhoeber.
Assistant Secretary—F. S. Webb, 168 North Michigan avenue.
Treasurer—W. J. Smyth.

The association starts off with twenty-four charter members, the membership fee being $25, and the list includes the recognized leaders in the business. It is planned to hold weekly meetings, probably during the luncheon hour, to discuss the general welfare of the retail florists' business in Chicago.

Various Notes.

August Juergens sent the first Paper Whites of the season to the market November 14. Their unusually early arrival, following so closely on the heels of the delivery of the French bulbs, attracted unusual attention. The explanation lies in the fact that the bulbs forced were grown on Mr. Juergens' own farm in Mississippi and reached Chicago months ago.

W. J. Smyth supplied 1,200 bouquets this week for an affair at Medinah Temple, 600 on Tuesday evening and the same number again on Thursday.

Miss O. A. Tonner, of the firm that bears her name, is of the opinion that out-of-town trade fears a shortage of supplies, which she says is evident by the large number of Christmas supply orders already received, for immediate shipment.

Fred Nichlas, Jr., formerly with Peter Reinberg, has gone into business for himself, opening a cut flower and supply house in the Atlas block.

Those former florists, Lubliner & Trinz, are still extending their moving picture interests. November 18 they took over the lease of the Lakeside theater, 4730 Sheridan road, for a term of five and one-half years at a reported annual rental of $12,100. The theater has a seating capacity of about 1,000 and is the eleventh in the Lubliner & Trinz string.

F. M. Johnson says he is looking forward to the greatest buying season the florists' supply trade ever has known. While business has been good during the autumn, buying has been mostly for immediate needs and Christmas and the winter have not been provided for on the usual scale. The arrival of peace, Mr. Johnson thinks, will result in florists everywhere preparing for the biggest Christmas and midwinter business ever known. He expects to see a scramble for merchandise, because stocks everywhere are lower than usual at this date.

After having spent the summer on his apple ranches in Idaho, Charles A. Samuelson has returned to the store on Michigan avenue. He has lost none of his enthusiasm for the outdoor life.

George Asmus was at Buffalo last week to attend the funeral of a sister, who died unexpectedly.

Nowhere in the flower trade has the return of peace been more welcome than at the store of the E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street. This establishment is in the center of the older aristocratic north side residence neighborhood and in ordinary times has depended less on funeral work than probably any other store in Chicago; consequently it was hardest hit by the suspension of social activities. It is stated that already a difference can be seen in the call for flowers; customers have visibly cheered up, are buying flowers more freely for their own use and sending them more generously to their friends. A resumption of social activities is expected in the near future.

Charles Grabig will celebrate his fifty-fifth birthday on Thanksgiving day. It will also be the anniversary of forty years in the trade. Mrs. Grabig, who has been in the hospital for many months, is home again and is speedily recovering from her long illness.

It was disappointing to A. J. Zech, chairman of the florists' division in the United War Work drive, likewise to others who gave their best efforts to assist Mr. Zech, to see the trade fall behind in this drive when it had gone over the top in everything of this kind heretofore.

H. C. Rowe had the family order for the funeral of Mrs. Lehman, November 13, one of the largest in recent trade history.

Carl Thomas, who has spent the summer on his farm at West Springfield, Pa., will rejoin the cut flower staff of the A. L. Randall Co., for the winter, probably about December 16.

J. B. Goetz Sons, Saginaw, Mich., sent the E. C. Amling Co., November 18, fifty blooms of their anemone-flowered seedling chrysanthemum called Sunshine. They sold at 8 cents each, perhaps a record price for flowers of that type.

The John C. Moninger Co. is about to start the erection of several houses, the orders for which were held up because of war conditions. R. E. Kurowski says that no trouble will be experienced, as they still have the main force they had before the war.

Louis Ancorala, with the A. T. Pyfer Co. before enlisting in Company A, 108th U. S. engineers, writes to his former employers that he has been slightly wounded in action during one of the Americans' big drives, but that he is getting along O. K. "Jack" Byers was in the same battle, he writes, but he had not learned whether Mr. Byers came through safely. It has been many weeks since a letter has been received from Mr. Byers and his friends in the market are beginning to fear for his safety.

One of the items developed in the recent political campaign which is worthy of more attention than it received relates to the county finances. When Peter Reinberg became president of the county board four years ago he found huge sums unpaid from previous administrations, but at the end of his first administration the county had cleared up all its bills. Mr. Reinberg has supervision of an organization which spends $16,000,000 of the public funds each year.

November 21 is the day on which John Kruchten celebrates his arrival in this world. He is 36 years of age.

H. Nichols has returned to the employment of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., as manager of its Chicago office. Now that the war is over, preparations are being made to handle a large volume of business. Mr. Nichols states that among the many orders they are working on is the building of three greenhouses at Wooster, O., for the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. They have nearly finished two large houses for George G. Schmitt, of Tuscola, Ill.

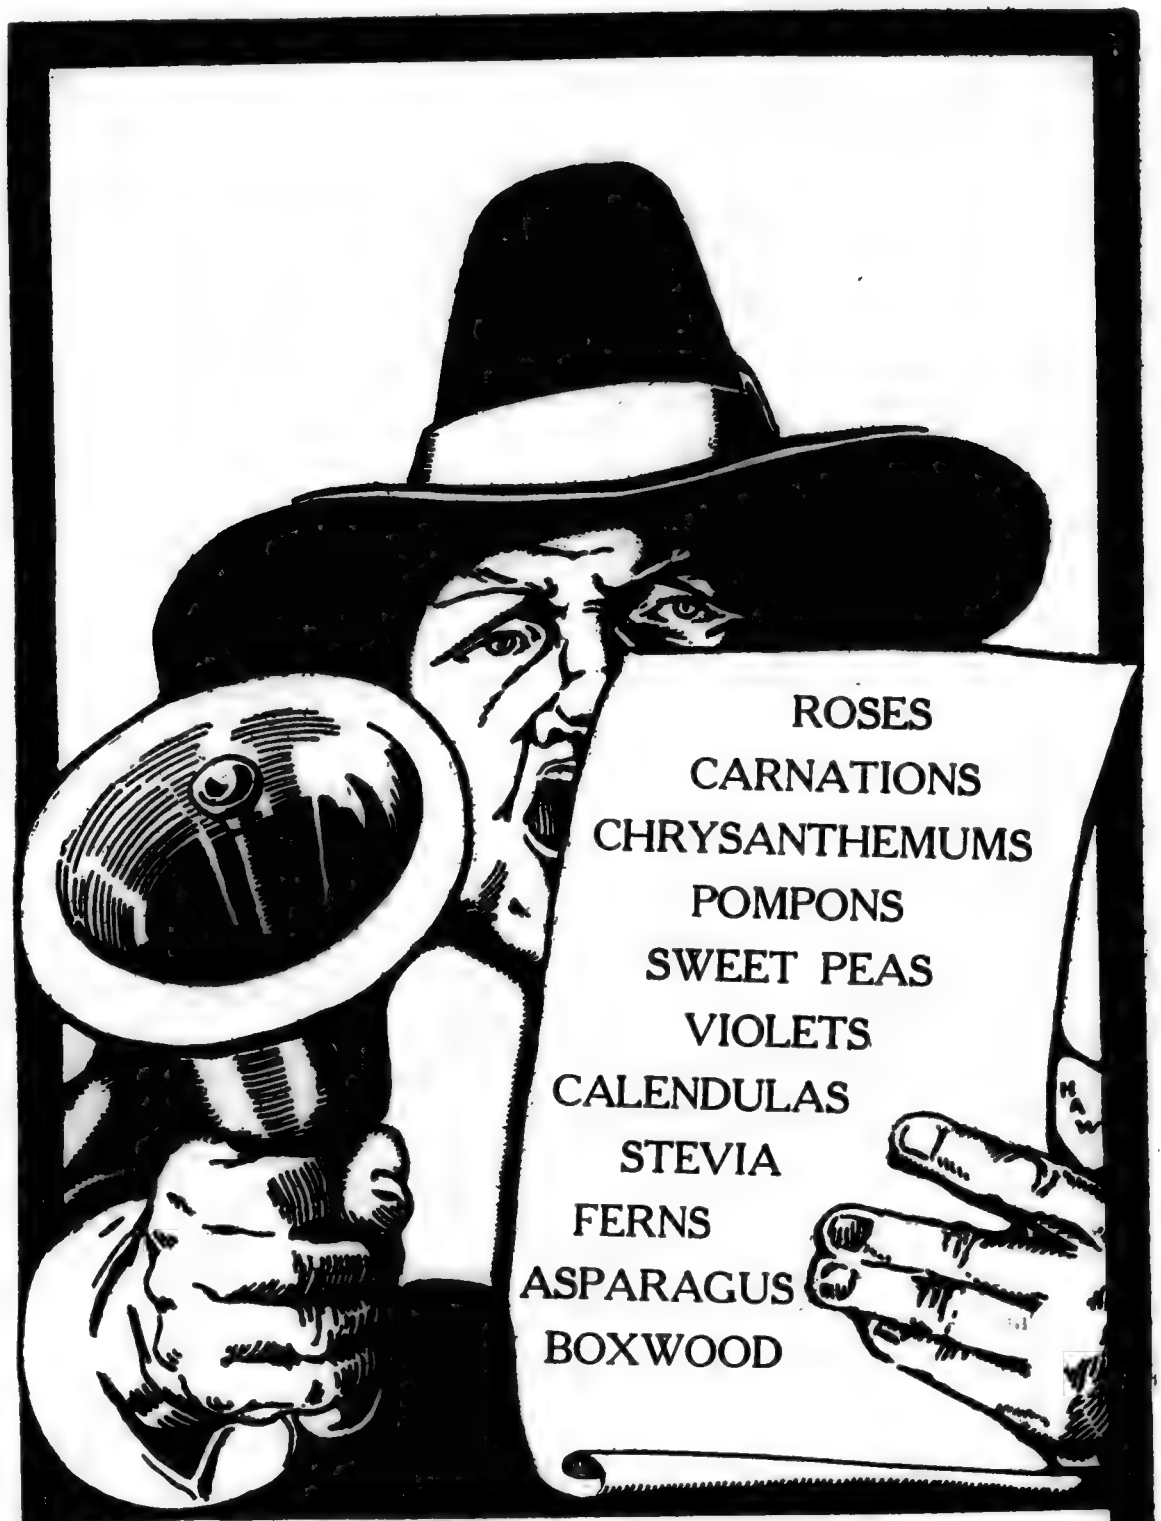
In last week's issue of The Review, in this column, was a note about Zygmund Misiewicz, who seemingly had come to life again in spite of previous reports from the government that he had died of wounds received in action in France. Another report since has been received from the government, stating that the boy has died of his wounds. Much sympathy is felt for the parents as the star that turned from gold to blue goes back to gold again.

R. J. Mohr is with the Harris Importing Co., a florists' and growers' supply house. Mr. Mohr goes with this concern as one of its partners.

Edward Mallinson, manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., reported an extra heavy demand for high-grade corsages of all kinds November 18, the opening night of the opera season. It was evident Mr. Mallinson had calculated for this, as he made large purchases of corsage flowers and ran a good-sized advertisement on opera corsages in the morning Tribune of that day.

W. C. Florentine has joined the A. L. Randall Co. as manager of the growers' supply department. Anton Then, Jr., has entered its employment as salesman.

Visitors.



Perhaps it is the arrival of peace, or perhaps it is the approach of Christmas, but in any event buyers are coming to market in greater number than at any time in the last year. Among those seen in the wholesale houses this week have been: Alfred Forder, Cincinnati, O.; Mr. Williams, of Williams & Clark, Muncie, Ind.; Carl Frick, of Tiedke Bros., Toledo, O.; Charles Frueh, Saginaw, Mich.; Fred Rentschler, Madison, Wis.; J. C. Steinhauser, Pittsburg, Kan.

Roy Currie, of the Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, and Mrs. Currie, were visitors November 18. Mr. Currie was seeking French and Dutch bulbs. They motored down from Milwaukee and found the roads all but impassable, being forced to make many detours.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market has settled down to a condition practically normal. The supply is plentiful and the demand is such as to make clearances possible. Chrysanthemums, of course, are the main feature of the supply, and arrivals are heavy. Yellow varieties are in the majority and appear to move more slowly than others. Many attribute this to a stupid prejudice, which has in the last few days been apparent, against the use of yellow flowers in the celebrations now common. Pompons and singles are still coming in quantity, the mild weather prolonging the cut of outside stock grown under muslin protection.

Roses are plentiful and the quality of the stock is generally fine, although the weather is warm. The supply of long-stemmed flowers is greater, but the increase seems to be pretty well absorbed. Mrs. Charles Russell, Ophelia and Hadley roses seem to be most in demand among the colored varieties, with Prima Donna and Sunburst next. American Beauty is shorter in supply than other varieties, but there are enough to go around. Every week now carnations are showing improvement in quality, and some excellent flowers are seen in the top grades, fancies bringing as much as $4 per hundred. The supply of orchids is not heavy, and the choicer grades of cattleyas move quickly. Dendrobium Phalænopsis is in good supply, and brings as much as $12 per hundred flowers. Ordinary Oncidium varicosum moves at $3 per hundred flowers. Gardenias are in rather short supply. The quality of arrivals is nothing to boast about, and $3 per dozen is a fair price.

A few sweet peas are coming in and find buyers, but no one is yearning for them. Small lots of snapdragons and bouvardia are in evidence, and move largely in collective sales. There are plenty of lilies for the demand, but some of the consignments are "green," a quality not always to be desired.

On the whole, the market is fairly strong and encouraging. The prospects for a good Thanksgiving demand are excellent. There is not likely to be a real shortage of flowers, but it is believed that clearances will be close.

the telephone. When boys were plentiful and cheap it was not much of a hardship, and in many commission houses errand boys were a part of the staff. Nowadays boys are hard to get, and wages high when they are secured. An advertisement for one a short time ago, with $10 mentioned as the weekly wage, failed to bring a single reply. The commission men say that they are frequently asked to send to a distant store twenty-five roses, a dozen chrysanthemums, or equally small quantities of other flowers, entailing car fares and time at the rate of about 20 cents per hour, in all an expense exceeding the commission made on the sale. And, worst of all, often the flowers are returned with the messenger as not being exactly up to requirements. The help problem is, of course, just as serious with the retailers, but the wholesalers do not think they should stand in the breach, especially as most retailers in these days have delivery cars and could just as well use them to pick up these small lots of flowers.

Various Notes.

Peter Karadontes, a retail florist of 3185 Broadway, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. The liabilities are said to be $9,102 and the assets $169. The largest creditors scheduled are S. S. Pennock Co., New York, $1,131.90; Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., $824.25, and William P. Ford, New York, $776.75.

The growers around New York are feeling a little more cheerful, due to the fact that there is a prospect of the speedy removal of all fuel restrictions. In many cases, however, little advantage would result, as preparation has been made for closing many greenhouses at different establishments, and it is now too late to plant stock in them. Outside of new roses, there is little stock available for bench planting, and some would not care to load up with bedding stock, or plants for Easter. Some have planted sweet peas, taking a chance on the lifting of the fuel embargo, and others are carrying a little cool stock, such as pansies, intending to cover the benches with sashes when cold weather comes. Bedding stock appeals to the majority, and it is believed that the demand for this material next spring will be abnormally large.

Henry Rohs, who for some time was manager of Trepel's Fulton street store, in Brooklyn, died at his home in Glendale, L. I., November 7. He was 34 years of age and is survived by his wife and two children.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to George Vocke, salesman for J. Chevalley and F. Abrams, of Blue Point, L. I., at the New York Cut Flower Co. establishment, whose wife died last week of pneumonia.

The judges at the recent show of the American Institute and the Chrysanthemum Society of America, together with a few other invited guests, were entertained the evening of the opening day of the shows at a dinner at Monza's restaurant, the American Institute playing the part of host. William Eagleson, the secretary of the institute, presided, and President Vert, of the Chrysanthemum Society, occupied the vice-chair.

It was the evening before the day of great, but false news, and the gathering gave vent to some pent-up patriotism through the singing of national songs—and they certainly knew how to sing. Judge John McNichol was the soloist, and it was interesting enough to induce many regular patrons of the restaurant to remain at table much longer than customary, at least the manager said so.

The forthcoming number of the Garden Magazine is awaited with interest by the trade. It is to be devoted largely to the S. A. F. national publicity campaign. The cover carries an appropriate illustration in the usual good style for which the magazine is noted, and the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is prominent in the design. As the magazine is displayed on most of the newsstands throughout the country, the slogan will get a tremendous amount of publicity.

Harry Hoffmeier, the florist at Broadway and Eighty-sixth street, has added a fruit department to his store. The store is now open until midnight or later.

Louis Wise, until August last a salesman in the store of John Young & Co., sailed for France last week as a member of a surgical unit, to be attached to one of the divisions in training there.

Harry A. Bunyard, who is now a Y. M. C. A. secretary, went overseas two weeks ago.

Charles H. Connors, of the horticultural research and investigation department of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, New Brunswick, N. J., was in the city last week. He had with him some fine blooms of a new carnation grown at the station, a variety thought to be worthy of dissemination. It is a cross between Princess Dagmar and Matchless, has a good calyx, stem and form of flower; is said to be easily propagated and has all the earmarks of a good commercial variety with one exception, color, which is a strong purplish crimson. It is thought, however, that used with white carnations it would be desirable in funeral work, just as was the variety, Governor Deneen, which was introduced ten or more years ago, but which, unfortunately, was so weak in the calyx that it disappeared from the market.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The first week of peace brought a pronounced calm to the cut flower market. Times of excitement generally do. As people became accustomed to the new conditions, business gradually resumed its former gait; flowers were bought and sold as before. Some persons were surprised that the return of peace did not immediately bring great social activity, with its usual demand for flowers, but those changes come slowly. There has been too much suffering; the sense of personal loss is too terrible in many homes for that yet, even in the hours of victory. It will take time.

Chrysanthemums continue to rule the market. Pompons are selling better. Violets are in demand, but the quantity offered is small. Good mignonette has come and some pansies. Snapdragon is improving. There are a few gardenias, but most of them are only fair in quality. Callas are in moderate supply. We have reached that part of the chrysanthemum season where the difference between the good and the poor is strongly marked. The well-grown stock that is clean and pleasing in appearance is in high favor, while poorly grown, diseased or bruised chrysanthemums find few friends. The bunches of side spray flowers are neglected in the wholesale houses. Indications point to a fair supply of chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving, with the possibility of a shortage. Some growers are nearly cut out now; others will have a good cut of late varieties.

A friend has asked whether the fact that No. 1 buckwheat coal is now open to florists has been clearly understood by all. "Because," he adds, "it is perfectly possible that the government may withdraw this permission at any time." Better buy all the No. 1 buckwheat you need now.

A Tour of Inspection.

Immediately after the announcement of peace, or, to be exact, bright and early Thursday morning, November 14, a party of fourteen gathered to spend a day visiting the greenhouse ranges of interest near Philadelphia. It was a party of notables, men who have made their mark in some special branch of our profession, men whose names are well and favorably known all over this broad land, wherever florists dwell. It was an annual affair, something of a club affair, that usually occurs early in October, but was postponed this year until—after the war.

To suit the number to the day of the month, there were just fourteen members present. Four represented that famous floricultural family, the Burtons, John, Alfred, George and Hughey. Three were distinguished out-of-town visitors,

John R. Andre, of Doylestown; Edmund A. Harvey, of Brandywine Summit, and William Lehr, of Baltimore. One was a scion of a noted Philadelphia family of florists, J. William Colflesh, Jr. The four great cities of Washington, Baltimore, New York and Philadelphia were represented in their cut flower distribution by three more, William E. McKissick, Arthur A. Niessen and Samuel S. Pennock, while last, but by no means least, came the three ablest horticultural writers in the city today, William H. Engler, Robert Kift and G. C. Watson.

They traveled in four touring cars, visiting the three Burton places, Myers & Samtman, George E. Campbell, John Savage, the Florex Gardens, the Joseph Heacock Co., Stephen Mortensen and Adolph Farenwald. More would have been accomplished had daylight permitted. The party lunched at Hatboro and dined at Chestnut Hill as the guests of Alfred Burton. They found the various greenhouse ranges in pretty good shape, though some showed the effects of the war in the labor and coal shortage. The day was a great success and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

A Visitor of Note.

Jesse A. Currey, of Portland, Ore., member of the executive committee of the American Rose Society and head of the state board in charge of the rose test gardens in that city, was here November 15. Mr. Currey came east on government business in relation to concrete. He stated that the Portland gardens, consisting of some four acres, were doing well. To meet Mr. Currey a little gathering of those closely identified with the American Rose Society was arranged to talk over matters informally. Those present were Robert G. Huey, Samuel S. Pennock and Robert Pyle. The American Rose Society now numbers 1,500 members, a splendid showing, giving much promise for the future of the queen of flowers in this country.

Various Notes.

The annual chrysanthemum show in Horticultural hall, Fairmount park, has been abandoned this year on account of the war.

Stephen Mortensen, of Southampton, Pa., visited Richmond, Ind., recently to see the new roses, Columbia and Premier, growing at the establishment of E. G. Hill, Joseph Hill and Frederick H. Lemon. He thought they were wonderful.

Robert Byron Bragg returned to Edward Reid's November 13, after an absence of six weeks. His illness was due to pneumonia and later to pleuropneumonia. Mr. Bragg suffered intensely, but that is past now and he is rapidly gaining strength.

Morris Shrolt is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his release by the draft board, owing to the ending of the war. Mr. Shrolt is putting his florists' business in good shape.

William Berger's Sons have put a handsome new Vim truck on the street. They had the decorations for a prominent out-of-the-city wedding November 16.

Henry M. Weiss & Sons have all their carnation houses planted except the old Eugene Weiss range. They have altered their methods of early planting and early cuttings and will do the same as last year, bringing in their first heavy crop at Thanksgiving.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer has been honorably released from the service, owing to the closing of the war.

M. J. Callahan has recovered sufficiently from his serious attack of influenza to be able to do the buying for his store. Mr. Callahan's two faithful assistants kept things moving in good style during the October rush. They report November business as excellent.

Robert A. Craig noted an immediate improvement in the demand for plants when peace was declared.

Charles E. Meehan and Mrs. Meehan spent the week-end at Ocean City, N. J.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons have had a good week at the Bellevue-Stratford. Curiously enough, Monday, Peace day, so dull in the wholesale market, was the most active day of the week in their beautiful shop, because people who came to town to see the sights lunched at the Bellevue and bought corsage bunches.

Joseph G. Neidinger is steadily improving after his recent operation in the hospital.

William J. Baker expects his steady supply of fine chrysanthemums to continue right up to Thanksgiving. He is getting Iva, a pretty bronze.

Alfred M. Campbell says the carna-

The Market.

Last week the wholesale cut flower market was in a splendid condition and the big demand cleaned up the supply almost daily. November 11, when the news came that the war had ended, there was a great rush for stock, the experience of November 7 having shown the retailers that the demand would be good. The wholesale houses closed at noon and by that hour the market had been cleaned up. A large business was reported by the downtown florists, notwithstanding the early closing order of the health department.

The weather all the week was fine, which brought increased shipments from the local growers. Mums already are in lighter supply, but all the late varieties should be in for Thanksgiving and bring better prices. Some extra fancy show blooms of Eaton, Golden Wedding, Chadwick and Jerome Jones chrysanthemums were seen last week, though Bonnaffon, white and yellow, seems supreme in this market. Pompons and spray mums, too, are in great variety and the demand for the light shades is large and at good prices.

Roses have been in better demand this year during the mum season than ever before and there is not the usual glut. The quality of the stock seems better this season, especially in the Russells, Columbias and Ophelias, the varieties that clean up daily. White Killarneys also are in demand. Mocks, Beauties, Wards and Hadleys are not plentiful at present. Carnations are slowly increasing in quantity. There was a large supply of reds in the market all the week, with a slow demand. The Enchantress varieties are still slow in coming. There is a big demand for white carnations at $6 per hundred for the fancies.

Violets were scarce all the week, the weather being too warm for them to bloom well, and it looks as if there will be no overproduction of these this season. Easter lilies, valley and orchids are in demand, but are scarce. Common flat ferns are up to $4 per thousand and there are not enough to supply the demand. Smilax and asparagus sell well; also all other greens.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was not held November 14, owing to the ban on public meetings, but takes place this week at the headquarters, 1316 Pine street. A mum show will be held in connection with the meeting.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained at the home of Mrs. George B. Windler, on Delore avenue, November 13. Mrs. F. W. Bruenig will entertain the circle next month.

Julius C. Steinhauser, of the Steinhauser Florist & Nursery Co., Pittsburg, Kan., spent the day in St. Louis September 14. While here Mr. Steinhauser placed a large order for plants of the new Hill rose, Premier. He reports that business this season has been splendid.

The Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney floral department has the decorations for the food show to be held at the Coliseum. Julius Schaeffer will have charge.

Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind., H. G. Berning and J. J. Beneke visited the county growers November 15 and found the places in fine shape for the winter season.

The officers of the Retail Florists' Association say they will call a meeting of that organization after Thanksgiving. Notices will be sent to the members of the time and place of the meeting, when efforts will be made to revive interest, so that monthly meetings may be held.

The trade extends its deepest sympathy to the family of James Young, who died November 12. More extended notice will be found in the obituary column of this issue.

The Foster Floral Co. arranged a most attractive window display November 11, the day the signing of the armistice was announced. Twelve flying white doves, large vases of white mums and the national colors were used.

Charles Fullgraf, a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club, writes from France that he has been made first lieutenant in the U. S. army and now has charge of the 323rd Labor Battalion, Forestry Division. He says that he is working near a chateau more than 400 years old, surrounded by woods through which the sun has not shone in twenty-five years.

Joseph H. Hill, of the Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., had a fine display of the new rose, Premier, in this city November 14 and 15. They were staged at the Henry G. Berning store and attracted many growers from nearby places. Among those who attended the exhibition were: J. F. Ammann, J. H. Blixen and Mr. Smith, Edwardsville, Ill.; Charles Johann, Collinsville, Ill.; Otto Bruenig, Hugo Werner, W. J.

The Market.

The market continues to hold a good tone, with no great change in prices. The clean-up is in marked contrast to the situation a year ago, when we were swamped with chrysanthemums and prices were absurdly low. There has been no glut of mums this season, and prices, compared with those of 1917, show a decided advance. Bonnaffon continues to be the leader, as it has been for twenty-five years. Chadwick and Golden Chadwick, Chieftain, Jerome Jones, Seidewitz, white Bonnaffon and Rager are other sorts seen in quantity. Of pompons there is a good supply and they sell well, as do such singles as Mensa and Golden Mensa. Carnations improve in quality weekly, and roses are arriving of fine quality, but in decreased numbers. A number of novelties in addition to Columbia are arriving, including Cleveland, Stotesbury, Martinette and Ophelia Supreme. Good clean-ups are made on all of these.

Violets are of fine quality. Callas are arriving more freely and take the place of lilies, which are scarce. Some fine gladioli from under glass are arriving, but do not sell well so late in the season. Cosmos is still coming in and stevia has appeared. Bouvardia is fine and sells well. There is a good supply

Snyder & Co. Move.

There have been some striking changes in Boston's cut flower business since Welch Bros. started the ball rolling and made a new center for the industry by moving to Devonshire. The entire wholesale cut flower industry is now centered in and around Winthrop square and each year sees at least one firm moving into new and improved quarters. B. A. Snyder & Co., who since they entered business have had basement quarters on Devonshire street, moved November 18 to new, commodious and up-to-date quarters at 23 and 25 Otis street. Here they have the finest wholesale cut flower quarters in the city, with a street floor of forty feet frontage and a roomy basement, giving them a total floor space of over 12,000 square feet, splendidly lighted by large-domed arc lights. The ice rooms are commodious and the clerical department could hardly be improved upon. The firm plans to carry an extensive line of all florists' supplies in its basement and nothing is being omitted to make the establishment the best of its kind in the city. There were crowds of visitors at the opening November 18 and well-wishers sent some handsome floral pieces.

Mensa and Golden Mensa are a fine sight. In carnations three benches of Belle Washburn are grand; so is one of White Benora. Albert Roper, thanks to careful selection, is coming much better than a year ago. Matchless, Benora and Pink Delight are other sorts grown in quantity. Godfrey callas are starting to flower nicely. About one-half the glass area will be closed down for the winter when mums are cut. During the late influenza wave, when carnations sold at $8 to $10 per hundred, large numbers of Matchless flowers were picked from 10,000 surplus plants outdoors.

The J. A. Budlong & Son Co., Auburn, R. I., has its entire establishment planted with roses this fall and hopes to find fuel to carry all through. Among the varieties there are Prima Donna, Ophelia Supreme, Mrs. W. R. Hearst, Montrose, Martinette, Cleveland, Mrs. Stotesbury and Columbia, in addition to a number of standard sorts. Columbia is well liked and finds a ready sale.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, by careful selection has secured a remarkably fine lot of Carnation Good Cheer, which realizes top market prices. Pink Delight, Laddie, Matchless, Benora and a glorified sport of Benora all look well. A batch of Lady Northcliffe is still grown. Only half the glass area has been planted this season by Mr. Pembroke.

In addition to fine carnations and chrysanthemums, C. B. Johnson, of Woburn, is sending in handsome spikes of greenhouse-grown gladioli.

Albert J. Wollrath, of Janiten & Wollrath Co., was called in the last draft, but has now been released from military service.

In the store of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. a vegetable display of splendid quality fills one window. In another window, plates of named apples, bulbs and decorative plants make a pleasing show.

Charles E. Holbrow, of Brighton, has a large planting this season of his pretty new seedling pink rose, which is a cross between Christie-Miller and Richmond. It sells remarkably well. Mr. Holbrow is cutting mums in quantity, his leader being Bonnaffon.

H. A. Sim, son of William Sim, of Cliftondale, was wounded in the arm during recent heavy fighting at Chateau Thierry, but was again in active service when last heard from.

One of Penn's big show windows was entirely devoted to a display of Golden

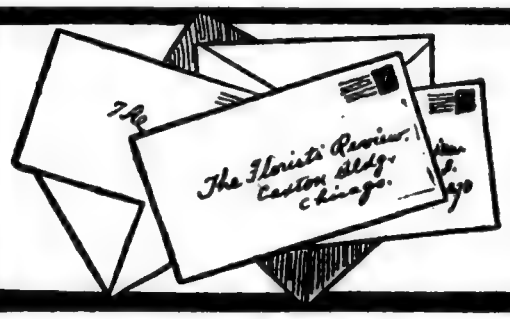
W. Z. PURNELL,

SNOW HILL, MD.

John McFarland, of North Easton, is one of the heaviest shippers of Bonnaffon mums to the wholesale markets. His flowers are large and of splendid quality. His house of poinsettias looks fine and bracts are well developed on some plants.



A feeling of optimism prevails in cut flower circles with the ending of the war and everyone looks for good business the coming winter. Prices for flowers are much better than a year ago. Two prominent rose growers state that their returns are now averaging double those of a year ago. It now looks as though coal would be available in greater abundance and the outlook is distinctly improved.

The Boston Floral Supply Co., Inc., joined in the nation-wide jubilation over the signing of the armistice, closing its doors early November 11 and granting a holiday to its employees November 12 as well. The democratic spirit which was everywhere manifest in the celebration of the joyful occasion was evidenced in the manner of commemorating the great day here. President Samuel Robinson accompanied the seventy-five employees and the office force to a performance at B. F. Keith's theater November 11, where all enjoyed together the entertainment which was one item in the program of festivities in which all participated in honor of the tidings of peace.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, has some fine benches of stevia which will be in full flower for Thanksgiving. He is cutting white and yellow marguerites in quantity. W. N. C.

Traverse City, Mich.—F. M. Paine, who has been in the florists' business here for more than twenty years, is dismantling his greenhouses.

Portsmouth, Va.—The W. P. Cotton Floral Co., with headquarters here, has opened a branch store at Norfolk. Proximity to the Norfolk Navy Yard, Berkeley and St. Helena Training Station and the naval hospital has made business good.

Telegraph Delivery Department

The florists whose cards appear on the pages carrying this head, are prepared to fill orders from other florists for local delivery on the usual basis.

To Non-F. T. D. Members

We intend to devote this space once a month to help develop new members for the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, by giving facts and figures of our telegraph delivery business sent out of Boston and received in Boston by us.

Our sole purpose is to strengthen the membership of the F. T. D. by showing our volume of business done through this channel, so that those who are not now members may realize what they are losing.

P. S.—In the next issue we will give our figures for the period of one month.

"Say It with Flowers"—At the end of 30 days "Say It with a Check"

Florists Everywhere

Members of the F. T. D. and Others: Whenever you receive an order for flowers from another florist, fill the order. Give your customers and the other fellow's customers Service. Send something, even if only a letter, or call up the people to whom the flowers are to go and tell them that you have a message from their friends to deliver; tell them, if you must, that at the moment you are out of flowers, but will have some later and will send them then. Do business in a businesslike way.

S. A. F. PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Some Advertising Results.

With the war practically ended, and a reduction in the demand upon the purses of the public for war charities in sight, the so-called patriotic economies, among them the general discontinuance of the use of flowers, which have for some time been in evidence in a majority of the homes of the nation, should gradually disappear.

If, as all who have followed the work of our publicity campaign and have been impressed with the beneficial results obtained through it are glad to admit, the movement of flowers has been greatly accelerated through the publicity gained in times when opposition to their use was everywhere painfully apparent, what should we expect when the people are free to enjoy the possession and use of flowers and plants without being subject to criticism for a supposed extravagance?

That our products are necessary and desirable in the home is a claim which we have vigorously supported in our magazine advertising, and it is the purpose of our committees to keep before the public continuously the suggestion that flowers and plants brighten and cheer homes which otherwise would be all too dreary and colorless. It will also be noticed that we are emphasizing the adaptability of our products for gift purposes, and as mediums for the expression of sentiment under any and all conditions. Our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," has, to use a common expression, caught on, evidence of this coming to us almost daily. Only yesterday we received from our Washington representative a cartoon sketch clipped from the Washington Star, depicting a cartoon hero nonplussed at the exorbitant prices a fruit dealer demanded for a hospital gift, and his ultimate decision to use flowers instead. The newspaper mentioned was only one of a large syndicate of papers using this cartoon.

Use the Slogan.

Florists who are not displaying our slogan are making a great mistake. A subscriber in Texas, ordering from our promotion bureau two additional glass signs, says, "We think they are fine and bring more business."

Who shall say that our Christmas advertisement, appearing in national magazines of enormous circulation, will not induce many who cannot make up their minds as to the nature of their anticipated Christmas offering to "say it with flowers"? And there is no doubt that were it possible, many recipients of presents more or less useless or unserviceable would willingly exchange them for a handsome basket of flowers. Hardly an occasion could be suggested when flowers might be declared unsuitable for gift purposes.

But it is necessary that the public be made to look upon our products in this light, and there is only one medium for the accomplishment of this—publicity, properly conducted. The magazine advertising the committees have arranged since the beginning of the year has proved conclusively that the results we are after are sure of attainment; not only is it conceded that the funds available have been well expended, but the committees are quite satisfied that it would be to our advantage to double or even treble our expenditures in the coming year, so great is the benefit sure to result.

It is, however, up to the trade to say whether the necessary fund will be forthcoming. We are still short of about $5,000 to complete our plans for 1918, and are relying on those who have not yet turned in a contribution to make up this sum. Is it possible that among the 10,000 or more florists who have not subscribed, and who would not miss the small amount expected of them, there is not sufficient interest in our movement to insure the speedy collection of the small sum required? The committees are waiting for an answer.

The following additional subscriptions, which are annually for four years except where otherwise noted, are recorded:

PSYCHOLOGY OF PUBLICITY.

Its Practical Application.

Under the caption, "Brown Raises Flowers—They Raise Trade," a Philadelphia contemporary analyzes the psychology of publicity as applied to flowers, using the methods of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., of which F. C. W. Brown is manager, to supply illuminating examples of the way to combine sentiment, pep and punch with the saving touch of humor, which Mr. Brown says should enter into all display of which the appeal is addressed to the general public.

In a discussion of the application of the principles of successful publicity the interviewer instances window displays of this concern which featured in one case a kewpie wedding to illustrate the mode in brides' bouquets and wedding decorations and a quaint representation of the means of transportation and communication by which F. T. D. publicity was made graphic. The various little models used in the latter display, which supplemented the legend, "We Deliver Flowers by Airplane, Motorcar, Railroad, Messenger, Telephone and Submarine," included turtles decorated with the symbols of the U-boat to represent submarines, a mimic airplane and railway coaches kept in motion by a concealed device.

This was one of the most successful pieces of window publicity ever prepared by this concern and attracted crowds. The F. T. D. service, in fact, offers wide scope for the imagination in developing symbols and motifs to elaborate this truly poetic idea of the exchange of sentiment at a distance by means of the delivery of flowers by tele-

Many clever devices have been used to bring home to the man in the street the idea that he may reach his distant friend or relative by a floral remembrance at a time of joy or sorrow and the response to these appeals to sentiment constitutes no inconsiderable item in the returns of many a well known concern.

Appeal to Sentiment.

The message conveyed by the journalist from Mr. Brown epitomizes the idea that the sentiment underlying the giving of flowers is the thing that should be emphasized by the advertising of the florist, rather than the flowers them-

Not that the florist should disregard sound business principles, but in his dealings with customers the commercial features should be subservient. The owner of the modern flower shop is selling a professional service in which the artistic and sentimental play a prominent part."

The use of flowers is always for the expression of sentiment. Whether it be an intimate domestic festivity to be celebrated, a time of sorrow to be brightened, a joyous occasion to be beautified, a religious festival or a patriotic pageant to be glorified, the message of the flowers always makes its appeal to the emotions. It is apparent, therefore, that the commercial aspect of the transac-

Not So Black As We're Painted.

The florist need have no apprehension that he will suffer financially by this policy. It is a well known fact in commercial calculations that to arouse the sentiments is the surest way to loosen up the purse strings, as witness the methods of Liberty Loan workers. The appeal to patriotism on the one hand and to consideration for "our boys" on the other were the pleas that got the billions, not the references to the interest on the bond.

Another example of the application of this principle was the issuing by the Gasser Co. of circular matter suggesting the use of flowers to commemorate domestic anniversaries which might be overlooked by the busy man of affairs. Lists of these occasions were included

The Dynamic of Commerce.

At this time, when the national publicity campaign is under way and the opening of the new era of peace marks an epoch in the development of our business as well as in many other lines, it is pertinent for the florist to ponder seriously on this question of publicity, for it is one of primary importance at all times, but especially now in building for the new and larger prosperity which is predicted for the flower business by those who note the signs of the times. The florist must come to regard his work more in the light of its function as ministering to the æsthetic tastes and less from the commercial standpoint, so far as publicity is concerned. For of course in regard to business methods, it is evident that in times past the florists have been too lax, too easy-going, and one-of the things the war-time stress has taught the trade is the necessity for better system and more logical methods of accounting and price-fixing. As it is apparent that the prices of flowers must be increased to meet the increasing scale of expenditures in all lines, it will be necessary that special publicity be adopted as a concomitant of this advancement in order to justify the ways of the trade to its clientele and to stimulate business as well, to take care of the stock that will be produced. Publicity is the dynamic of commerce and the florist must use it or yield to his competitor, who knows how to mix brains with elbow grease.

FUTURE OF THE BUSINESS.

"The close of the war brings with it a bright future for the flower business," said Irwin Bertermann, at Indianapolis, November 11. "The people of the United States will have more money at their command than ever before, social affairs will take on an unprecedented growth and the whole horizon for floriculture is and will be brighter than for several years in the past."

job earlier in the season, for the benefit of your tinsmith readers who can talk the porch-flower-box idea for the purpose of using up any old eave trough that may accumulate. In my experience the plan brought business, for, since putting up that section of flower box across the front of the porch, I have had several customers who were willing to pay the expense of new eave troughs rather than not have the pleasure of growing flowers along the front of their porches."

Fort Madison, Ia.—Carl Boll's greenhouses were damaged by fire early in the morning of November 5. The blaze is presumed to have been started by an overheated smoke flue, and the boiler house and a carnation house adjoining were the buildings of the range that suffered most.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

PAPER WHITES are proving good property.

WHAT effect will peace have on the demand for seeds for spring planting?

THE petition in bankruptcy filed October 4 against the A. T. Boddington Co., New York, was dismissed November 12, on application of the creditors who filed it.

THE Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., Los Angeles, Cal., has removed its wholesale and retail seed business from the old location on North Main street to 620 South Spring street.

THE catalogues for the southern trade will have to go on the press pretty soon; printers are not busy, but they are shorthanded and a job takes longer now than a year ago, as well as costing more.

APPARENTLY the United States government will do what it can to stimulate food production in 1919. The idea may be Mr. Wilson's beneficent one of feeding the conquered foe, but it will not hurt the seed business.

"THE Growing of Broccoli Seed" was the subject of an address by C. W. Kruse, a seed grower of Oswego, Ore., before the State Horticultural Society of Oregon at its meeting at Roseburg, Ore., November 5 to 7.

CHARLES DICKINSON, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, was notified November 16 that his stepson, First Lieut. Gordon Boyd, was killed in action in France November 5. Lieutenant Boyd had been in France since January.

THE Wholesale Seedsmen's League held its annual meeting in New York November 15. The secretary thinks nothing should be published regarding it, although the general impression is that the league's doings are not inimical to either the trade or the public interest.

IN the grass seed trade it is considered that peace is a bull card and there has been, in fact, some advance in prices on timothy and redtop since the armistice was signed. The price of clovers already had reached such altitudes that it is questionable if there is room for further ascension.

CANNERS SEE BIG YEAR.

With practically all restrictions removed from the canning industry, the government already placing orders for 1919 delivery and the probability that the United States will be called on to supply a large portion of the world's food supply for some time to come, there was a feeling of optimism at the semi-annual meeting of the Western Canners' Association, held at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, November 15 and 16. All the canners present reported a capacity season and expected that the same conditions would prevail next year.

Because of government restrictions, there were not the usual displays of seeds, but a number of seedsmen were on hand for the sessions. Among them were: Fred Lembke and H. A. Bertoli, representing the W. W. Barnard Co.,

SEEDSMEN PICK CHICAGO.

The executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association met at the Hotel Bristol, New York city, November 15 and selected Chicago as the place for the 1919 convention, the date to be announced later. There were present, besides the president and secretary, Howard M. Earl, Washington, D. C.; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y., and L. H. Vaughan, Chicago, of the committee; S. F. Willard, Charles Guelph and Lee and David Don by invitation.

A tentative program was arranged and the association finances discussed. It was decided to offer an amendment to the by-laws on the latter subject at the next convention.

C. E. Kendel, Sec'y.

NO SEED PROFITEERING.

Western Seedsmen Warned.

Profiteering in the seed business during the next few months will destroy the fine record the trade has made for loyalty to the government, the members of the Western Seedsmen's Association were warned by President H. A. Johns, at the conference held at Kansas City, November 9. President Johns opened the meeting with an appeal to all seedsmen to help the government increase food production during 1919. It was declared that peace will have the effect of creating a greater demand for foodstuffs, instead of lessening it; that as a consequence war-time prices of vegetables will be continued, and that there will be more war gardens next year than ever before.

The afternoon session of the conference was given over to those seedsmen who deal in field seeds and was presided over by Guy Purcell, of W. H. Small & Co., Evansville, Ind. Mr. Jackman, formerly with Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, who was a prisoner in Germany for many months, gave an account of his experiences.

Those at Conference.

The following seedsmen attended the conference:

J. G. Peppard, J. G. Peppard Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.

G. Harndon, Harndon Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.

Giant California Hybrid Amaryllis

With the shortage of many of the customary Easter Plants, these Giant-flowered Amaryllis, which are more easily grown in pots than Easter Lilies and are far more showy, should prove a valuable addition among flowering plants for late winter, early spring and Easter use.

We have been familiar with and have watched this particular strain for a number of years. We have not only seen it growing with the originators, but tried it out in pot culture in our own houses. The flowers are of enormous size. Flowers with full, rounded, broad petals, 10 inches in diameter, are not unusual, and 5 to 6 flowers to a stem, frequently two stems being pushed to the bulb. In color there are selfs and stripes, ranging from the purest white ground color with rose or red markings to rich orange-scarlet, cherry, crimson and maroon, and all with a satin-like luster which, in the deeper shades, shines as if burnished.

Give these a trial, as we feel certain you will be pleased with the results

"Please quote us on BERTREX and EVELYN KIRTLAND in various quantities. EVELYN KIRTLAND turned out to be what the writer thought. It is the FINEST PINK in EXISTENCE. BERTREX is an unusually good white. Both should become leaders."

James F. Rychlik, Florist and Grower, Painesville, Ohio, writes:

SEEDS : BULBS : PLANTS
98 Chambers Street, NEW YORK CITY

Teneriffe to the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, states that the onion-seed crop of the Canary Islands has been bought by seedsmen of the United States. The 1918 crop is the largest but one harvested in these islands. Final shipments have been moved and purchases by American buyers aggregate $98,458. Of this total $2,548 worth was consigned to Porto Rico, the rest, valued at $95,910, going to the United States proper. This is the second largest purchase by American buyers on record, the 1917 shipments having reached a total of $137,289 for onion seed bought by American seedsmen.

Commenting on the production for the years 1917 and 1918 of this crop in these islands and the volume of trade with the United States for the same period, Mr. Stiles recalls: "That the 1918 crop would be exceptionally good was forecasted in the report made by this consulate under date of April 12, 1918, wherein it was stated, 'The outlook is for a yield approximately fifteen per cent above the average and probably little, if any, below the record production of last year.' As a matter of fact the yield fully realized the estimate then made by this office, while orders placed by American buyers decreased approximately forty per cent, as compared with last year.

"This left an unusually large excess of seed on hand with the growers here, and ungraded seed was offered on this market as low as 20 cents per pound, without finding takers.

"As a result many growers are now figuring on decidedly reduced planting for 1919," he adds. "The last season showed exceptionally good results for the white or Crystal Wax variety of seed, while the yellow and red grades showed a yield which was hardly up to the average."

Regarding shipping difficulties Mr. Stiles says:

"The threatened delays in shipments, due to the uncertain conditions governing the movements of Spanish steamers, resulted in sailings sufficient to permit the shipment of approximately eighty per cent of the orders. The last shipment via Cuba, this being the preferred and more rapid route, was made August 4, 1918, since which time the Canary Island shipments to the United States, via Cuba or Porto Rico, have been completely suspended.

"Many inquiries have been received at this office from American onion-seed buyers as to the development in this trade during recent years. The following figures give the value of the shipments to the United States during the last five crop seasons: 1914, $43,293; 1915, $40,828; 1916, $84,387; 1917, $137,289, and 1918, $98,458."

IMPROVEMENTS AT FARIBAULT.

The Farmer Seed & Nursery Co., of Faribault, Minn., has completed improvements on the warehouse. A story has been added, giving an additional floor space of 740 square feet. New cleaning machinery, automatic scales and electric elevators are among the improvements. Special equipment for the curing of seed corn, in which the company specializes, has also been installed. A spacious new office now occupies the entire second floor.

In addition to the improvements at the warehouse, the company has erected a downtown seed store at the corner of

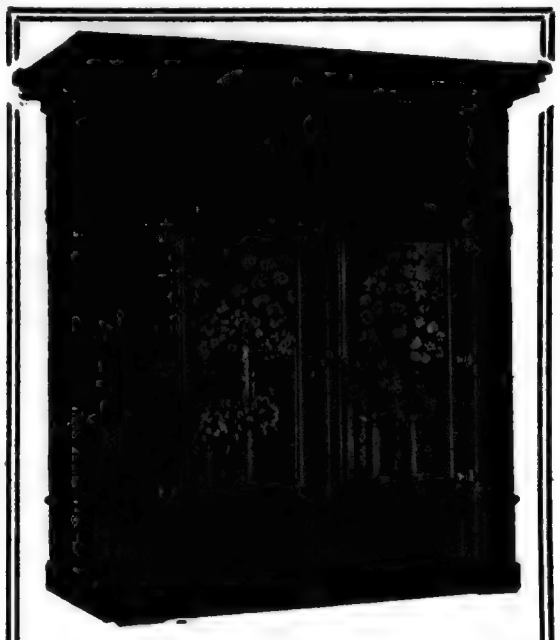
BAG FILLERS RELEASED.

The end of the war has released to the seed trade many bag filling machines that had been requisitioned by the Subsistence Division of the U. S. Army Quartermaster's Department. These machines were used for putting up rations, especially soluble coffee. The Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., supplied nearly its entire output to the army and has had few for the trade. Now, however, the company announces it is ready again to fill orders.

NEWPORT, R. I.



Horticultural Society.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, November 12, William McKay, gardener for Henry A. C. Taylor, exhibited the pink carnation which has been named Laddie, to which the society awarded a first-class certificate of merit. It was announced that a paper would be read before the society November 26 on "Plants Capable of Withstanding Lower Temperatures."

After the business meeting Secretary Fred P. Webber read a paper on "Horticulture as a Profession," written by James McDonald. This was followed by a general discussion on "Attacks by Insects on Trees and Shrubs," in which Bruce Butterton, Richard Gardner and William Gray participated, enlarging upon every phase of the destruction wrought by the insect pests and the methods of destroying them, telling from their own experiences of the destruction of valuable trees, shrubs and plants by various pests. PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Watsonville, Cal.—H. A. Hyde, who is florist, bulb grower and nurseryman, says business is good in California this year in spite of the shortage of labor and the attendant high prices of everything.

Moneta, Cal.—At the Dean Iris Gardens money and tireless effort have been expended in the culture of standard and novel varieties of iris and the management reports that this flower is growing in favor, as shown by steadily increasing sales, and believes the time is not far distant when the iris will come into its own.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

The Market.

Business is good, especially in funeral work. Chrysanthemums are almost gone, as it is impossible to keep the late varieties longer than November 15. Other stock is in fairly good supply.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Samuel Slack, rosarian at Balboa park, will be found in the obituary column of this issue.

L. King Lanier, of Chula Vista, who left the retail flower business to become a grower, is a busy man, as his 18-acre place shows. It is a pleasure to see him coming to town three or four times a week with his automobile loaded with choice flowers and greens. He does not have any trouble disposing of his stock to the retail stores. Besides growing flowers for the market, Mr. Lanier has ten acres planted to tomatoes, which were contracted for by the government. He grows a great quantity of Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus and next season expects to put on the market about 130,000 seeds.

The influenza situation is greatly improved here and the quarantine of Camp Kearny has been lifted.

San Diego celebrated the big victory November 11. It was the biggest demonstration in the history of the city and the most spontaneous. A. D.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There has been a little let-up in funeral work this week, owing to a lessening death rate, but there still is considerably above the average along this line. Flowers for decoration and presentation are much in demand and the volume of business is keeping up well. Most kinds of stock are shortening up, good field-grown carnations especially, and the price has risen considerably. Roses are fairly plentiful, but are not of extra good quality or color. Mums still are coming along freely, but the big supply is past and they doubtless will shorten up from now on. Dahlias are practically over, though a few are still coming. A nice line of blue cornflowers and delphiniums is being used in store decoration and there are a number of small flowers on hand. A few Paper Whites are in, but not enough to cut much figure.

Various Notes.

Harry Bailey, of Montebello, does not, as a rule, say much about his business, but speaking this week he said never in the history of his business has he had such good results as this year. Another instance of treating customers right. When Mr. Bailey has not the stock his customers need he tells them so and they know what to expect. But of late he has; hence the big business. He also reports a fine new crop of plumosus and Sprengeri seed for the coming season.

The Arthur Letts Botanical Garden, at Hollywood, is always an interesting place to visit and everything is in fine shape there now. Much of the new planting carried out last year is beginning to take shape and the large stock moved has, in most cases, stood the removal well. Carissa edulis is in bloom and the odor of the pretty white flowers is most pleasing. A plant of Dipladenia splendens in full bloom outside in November shows the mildness of the season, and there are many other beautiful things in flower. In the greenhouses the cattleyas are sheathing up well, and there are nice batches of begonias of the Lorraine types coming on for winter blooming. A. Hunt, the capable superintendent, is to be congratulated on the appearance of the whole place, the more especially as labor has been scarce and difficult to obtain.

A. Ryan, horticultural inspector for Alhambra, has been appointed to succeed the late William Wood as county horticultural commissioner.

A message from Phoenix, Ariz., reports Mrs. C. E. Morton as seriously ill. Mr. Morton also has been ill, suffering from blood poisoning from rose thorns.

A wonderful new tomato is being shown by Payne's Seed Store, the greatest cropper probably ever seen, and a fine looking fruit. Mr. Payne is offering a prize for the best name for the newcomer.

C. Gutting, proprietor of the Superior Nursery and Superior Dahlia Gardens, and Miss Gutting, his daughter, both have been down with influenza.

Fred Sperry, Jr., son of Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., has contracted scarlet fever. He has been at a military school here, but is now with his mother, who is nursing him; so no doubt he soon will be all right again.

Speaking of his season's business, Fred H. Allen, of Allen's Water Gardens, says it has been much the best since he has been in business, October being a banner month for the sale of cut flowers of water lilies, of which he has a large stock. Goldfish also are handled in large quantities and the stock is in fine condition. Mr. Allen is making his annual clean-up of the ponds now, and is preparing large shipments of plants.

D. Stathatos, of the Broadway Florist, is improved somewhat in health, but still looks far from his usual form.

Albert Goldenson reports big funeral orders daily. One day this week there were two palls among the orders.

PALMS PALMS

The Redondo Floral Co. reports big business and on the strength of this A. F. Borden has purchased a new 7-passenger Buick of the latest model.

The Aggeler & Musser Seed Co. has opened a fine new store at 620 South Spring street. The old store on North Main street has been abandoned and the wholesale business is being taken care of at the new place on the market. This firm has received a large shipment of Dutch bulbs, apparently before anyone else in town.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Places of amusement, churches and schools are still closed on account of the influenza epidemic, but the situation has improved to such an extent that restrictions probably will be removed within a few days. The florists are looking forward to the time when they can discard the gauze masks which they have been wearing for the last month. As the death rate is little above normal now, the florists are no longer rushed with funeral work. While it means less business for the trade, there is a general feeling of relief that the disease is about to be eradicated. Both wholesalers and retailers are optimistic over the outlook for an improvement in the demand for flowers for home decoration and festive purposes following war negotiations, which assure peace at an early date. It is conceded the tendency toward curtailment in unnecessary expenditures may persist to a certain extent until the army is disbanded and the men returned to regular employment, but the florists here are confident that many people will start in immediately to show more liberality in their patronage of florists' establishments and other places of business which conditions placed under the ban to a considerable extent. All indications point to a heavy Thanksgiving and Christmas business, and preparations are being made accordingly. Plenty of stock is in sight for all requirements. In potted plants for the November holiday, poinsettias and cyclamens promise exceedingly well. The market no doubt will be well supplied with fine roses.

While the dropping off of funeral work has eased up the demand for flowers for the time being, the market is not oversupplied as a whole or with any particular variety of stock. Roses and carnations are more plentiful, but the increase does not make up for the decrease in the supply of chrysanthemums. A limited amount of small and medium-sized mums will be available for some time, providing the weather remains fair, but the season is practically over for the large, fancy stock. There is a nice cut of cyclamens and plenty of orchids for the demand, but gardenias are on the short side of the market. In miscellaneous stock cosmos, marigolds and gaillardias clean up easily. A few Chinese lilies are arriving. Greens are more plentiful than last week, especially brake ferns and huckleberry, which is due to the fact that labor has recovered from the epidemic. Violets seem to be more plentiful than was anticipated earlier in the year. The shipping demand leaves no surplus here, however.

OVER THE TOP

Some time ago we announced we were "still on top." Now we are over the top with a fine lot of stock. Our shipping business is increasing and we have passed the peak of last year's sales. But we are still anxious for new customers for

Various Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is bringing in a fine cut of Russell, Ophelia and American Beauty roses; in fact, it is the best stock they have ever grown, which is saying a great deal, considering the well founded reputation of this concern as expert rose growers. In addition to roses the McLellan Co. is shipping a good many violets and greens. George Scatena, who has had charge of the packing at the establishment on Bush street for eight years, is no longer in the employ of the company.

C. Kooyman, of the C. Kooyman Co., Inc., has the sympathy of the trade on account of the death of a brother in Canada a few days ago from influenza, at the age of 28 years. Mr. Kooyman reports business holding up well, with favorable indications for holiday trade.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., Inc., is still shipping a good many mums and pompons, but principal attention is now diverted to violets.

K. Kimura, of the United Flower & Supply Co., Inc., considers the violet outlook excellent. His firm has contracted with growers for quantities of violets, and intends to ship them on an extensive scale this year. Mr. Kimura expects to have a fine lot of potted poinsettias and cyclamens for Thanksgiving.

Fred Bertrand has returned to the florists' business after doing guard duty at one of the large Bay shipbuilding plants for several months. He has taken a position with Podesta & Baldocchi, across the street from B. M. Joseph, where he was manager for several years. Mr. Podesta says the demand for flowers has taken on new life since the war ended. He looks for a period of great prosperity for San Francisco in the coming months.

Henry Avansino, of Avansino Bros., says the return to normal in funeral work is welcome, after the rush of the last few weeks, during which his firm could not cope with the demands made upon it.

A. Cuneo, buyer for B. M. Joseph, is back on duty after an enforced absence on account of illness. He has no complaints to make about business, although he admits his force is not so busy as some time ago.

Friends of Peter Ferrari are pleased to learn that he is recovering from influenza and expects to leave the hospital by the end of the week.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is bringing in some fine heather.

Miss Bertha Cohn, with F. C. Jaeger & Son, on Powell street, is on the sick list, but is expected back at the store shortly. Mr. Jaeger says October was a banner month for his firm, and that November, with the rush of funeral work early in the month and Thanksgiving toward the end, probably will be as good.

When visited this week, P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., was "too busy to talk."

During the influenza epidemic, Albert O. Stein's Cadillac delivery car was at the disposal of the Red Cross in handling emergency cases. Before being purchased by Mr. Stein, this auto did service as an ambulance at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition grounds.

Walter Hoff, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has been confined to his home for several days with rheumatism. At the store business is reported fairly active and the nursery has booked heavy orders for Thanksgiving stock.

William T. Kirkman, Jr., nurseryman of Fresno, Cal., was a recent San Francisco visitor. M. M.

The Market.

There is an abundance of mums at present, both local and California. They are of excellent quality, also, and bring a good price. Roses, carnations, gardenias and orchids are also plentiful and the demand is equal to production. There are good cyclamen and Primula obconica also to be had.

Various Notes.

The florists were all made happy November 12, for on that date the city health department raised the influenza ban which closed all retail stores before 10 a. m. and after 3 p. m. and all day Saturday and Sunday. These restrictions worked a hardship, coming as they did at a time when all the florists were besieged with orders for funeral work. Now that the florists are working on the ordinary schedule, they say that they are going to make up for lost time, as the demand is practically the same as before the ban went into effect.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy left some time ago for California, where she will spend the winter with friends.

STEELE'S PANSY GARDENS, Portland, Oregon.

Seattle witnessed November 11 the greatest celebration in its history. Thousands of shipyard workers laid down their tools at 9 a. m. and marched in force through the main streets, gathering the throngs into the line of march until it seemed as if every man, woman and child in the city was on the streets. The demonstration continued throughout the day and up to midnight, when everybody started for home at the same time. Altogether it was the biggest day in the history of Seattle and will long be remembered. W. S. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Portland has been a little more lucky than other cities in the matter of deaths due to influenza, but the business of the stores for the month of October and first half of November was similar to that of December. They all have been rushed and the hours, cut short by opening at 9 a. m. and closing at 3:30 p. m., made it difficult to get the work out.

Various Notes.

The Holden Floral Co. is running its houses to full capacity and the stock is of excellent quality. A fine lot of pot plants, such as begonias, cyclamens, primroses, cinerarias, poinsettias and ferns, is seen. There also are good carnations, including some promising seedlings.

The stores are having no trouble getting all the chrysanthemums they need, but indications are that there will be a shortage for Thanksgiving. Californian pompons seen here are rather poor in quality.

Martin & Forbes have a large display of beautiful roses, Hadley and Ophelia being specially good.

Clarke Bros., as usual, made a showing of some fine chrysanthemums, orchids and bouvardias this autumn.

Lubliner the Florist is still too busy to talk. Mr. Straus, the buyer, uses good judgment in the selection of stock and the store has an up-to-date appearance.

Joseph Kiodda is having a new house built by Walter Thompson. H. K.

Charles W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., is here and has announced that his company has acquired acreage in the Columbia river bottoms about fifty miles from here and that he will make it the scene of his principal bulb-growing activities in the future.

COLUMBUS, O.

Trade is not so brisk as last week, but funeral work is still heavy. Stock is more plentiful now, as carnations are arriving in good form and in more plentiful supply. Roses are not overabundant, as some of the growers are reducing the temperatures of the rose houses. Most of the growers have made arrangements to close down half their ranges as soon as the mums are gone, which will be in a short time, as they are cut out in some places to the extent that it looks as if there might be a shortage of mums for Thanksgiving. Mums never were cleaned up here as they have been this season. There has been no glut of them at any time.

Potted plants are moving well. There are good cyclamens and Cincinnati begonias to be had and they move well.

Sweet peas are coming along well, but none of the Spencer varieties have made their appearance as yet. Lilies are scarce and so are callas. Violets are on the market, but the demand for them is not active. J. M.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

It now will be in order for the nursery trade to proceed with its plan of market development.

From California The Review has received the following, headed "Publicity Information": "William P. Stark, of Neosho, Mo., is in Eureka, Cal., the guest of Charles W. Ward, president of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, for the purpose of becoming acquainted with 'Holland in America.'" In the same mail came a letter to the business office of The Review signed "Cottage Gardens Nurseries, W. P. Stark, Manager."

THE SEASON IN KENTUCKY.

"The fall nursery season has been beyond our expectation," says Walter Hillenmeyer, of H. F. Hillenmeyer & Sons, Lexington, Ky. "While we had expected an increased demand for fruit stock of every kind, the ornamental trade has been exceptionally fine up to this time. Whether or not the shortage of labor has made one believe the demand is above normal we are not prepared to say for other firms, but certainly here we could not handle more business. Much of our usual fall work and storage will have to be attended to during mild winter weather.

"There is a pronounced shortage of small peach, grape, cherry and evergreen trees, we judge, as the demand for these has been principally from others in the trade."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y.—"Trade Catalogue of Choice Gladioli and Other Summer-flowering Bulbs and Plants," twenty pages, illustrated. Besides the Childs specialty, gladioli, which occupy the first eleven pages, the book offers large quantities of lilies, cannas, dahlias, irises and peonies, with smaller assortments of many other items of stock.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business continues heavy, the reports each week from the retailers being "All we can do." Chrysanthemums came along so fast during the warm weather that they are almost gone. Those cut now are the end of the crop and are small. Pompons are still plentiful. Calendulas, sweet peas and stevia are on the market. Roses and carnations are in good supply and are of good quality. However, there are not enough to go around.

Various Notes.

The fine Indian summer weather has been broken by rains.

Thanksgiving will be the first holiday since the war, and it is to be seen how business will be.

C. L. Niednagel has his roses in fine shape and he expects a fine crop for Christmas, but not many before then. A batch of poinsettias is just beginning to show color.

At Niednagel & Sons' the carnations are doing well. A large crop of good flowers soon will be on. The mums are about gone, but they are cutting many pompons. A crop of beans is ready to pick, after which this part of the range will be closed.

Emil Niednagel is expected home soon from the officers' training school at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann continues to have all the business she can attend to.

Karl Zeidler has cut nearly all his mums.

The William Blackman Floral Co. reports that business is excellent. The company is having a nice cut of flowers, including roses and carnations. Walter Lent, of the designing force, was away on a fishing trip last week. George Blackman is still weak from the effects of the influenza. E. L. F.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather so far this fall has been exceptionally good for the florists' business and there is absolutely no complaint to make on the volume of trade up to this time. The influenza epidemic is over and, while it seemed that this caused the tremendously increased demand for stock, sales have not yet shown any shrinkage. If present conditions are any criterion, this winter and the following spring season should be as prosperous as any the trade has ever experienced.

The supply of roses is normal, but the demand so far exceeds the crop that there is a continual shortage; the quality is good and prices are excellent. Carnations are coming in more heavily from day to day and of course the quality is gradually improving. The supply, however, is still far short of the demand and, while indications point to a good crop for Thanksgiving, it seems impossible for the time to come when orders on this stock can be filled in a satisfactory manner. Chrysanthemums are arriving in quantities, but, due to the shortage of other stock, they are being cleaned up as fast as they reach the market. Some extra fine specimens are seen and, taken as a whole, the crop has brought splendid returns. There is also a large supply of pompons and mum bunches, which are moving well. Plants are having a good sale and the greenhouse stock is kept down to a minimum.

Various Notes.

When the first rumor of the cessation of hostilities was circulated November 7, W. C. Zimmermann, Grand avenue, was in receipt of an order for a decoration for a victory dinner for Herman Fehr; this order was received only two hours after the notice of the armistice had reached Milwaukee.

The local committee working on the Milwaukee County War Fund Campaign is enthusiastic and expects the florists to go over the top magnificently in this drive, which terminates November 20.

Milwaukee, like every other city in the country, had two peace celebrations and November 11 was a holiday which was participated in by the florists generally. It was one of the few holidays that did not bring the trade extra work, which usually keeps them from enjoying the occasion. Orders for decorations should begin to materialize shortly, as the public seems inclined toward celebrations. H. J. S.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The supply of flowers is decreasing, while the demand is increasing. Chrysanthemums, while still the leader in the market, are not overabundant. Other flowers have not increased greatly in quantity. With influenza beginning to rage again and other sickness prevalent, flowers are in constant demand. The death rate again is becoming alarming. Thus a large quantity of flowers is utilized for funeral work.

Chrysanthemums are in attractive display now and include spray varieties, pompons, baby, single and anemone sorts, besides the large types. All kinds and colors are popular.

Roses are of good quality and equal in supply to the demand, but with none left over. Russell and Ophelia are most in evidence, but numerous varieties are offered. Carnations remain scarce at $3 and $4 per hundred. Easter lilies are limited in supply. Rubrums also are scarce, while callas are becoming more plentiful. Sweet peas have just begun to put in their appearance. Other small flowers offered are violets, calendulas and snapdragons. Potted plants are meeting with a ready sale. They include ferns, Jerusalem cherries, Chatelaine begonias, Primula obconica and a few cyclamens.

Greens other than fern leaves have been short, but the latter have been adequate.

Various Notes.

Indianapolis, which has enjoyed the title of being one of the first in war, has also shown itself to be among the first in peace. Numerous peace celebrations and festivities have been in progress since the signing of the armistice. The florists of the city have taken an active part in the rejoicing. Bertermann Bros. Co. participated in the parade and showered flowers from its machine upon the marchers. Other members of the trade had in their windows attractive displays befitting the occasion. C. C. Thomas, of the Circle Flower Store, had one of the most effective, it being a gorgeous array of chrysanthemums entwined with red, white and blue ribbons, with the flags of the Allied nations in the background and in the foreground the dove of peace.

Edwin Mourner, of Shelbyville, has reopened his place.

C. C. Thomas recently returned from a trip to Lafayette. O. E. Steinkamp spent the week-end in Richmond.

The Grande boys have just returned from a successful hunting trip in Brownsburg, Ind.

The Reinken place has been converted into mushroom sheds and is run by Mrs. Gray.

Company B of the Indiana State Militia recently gave a benefit ball at the Canoe Club. Several of the tradesmen showed their generosity and patriotism by liberal donations of flowers, plants, etc., which were auctioned or sold and brought a nice sum for the company's fund.

Baur & Steinkamp have started sticking carnation cuttings.

Anyone wishing to see a beautiful display of unusually fine stock should step around to John Rieman's. E. E. T.

The two insertions sold everything I had.—H. M. Morris, Rantoul, Ill.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Boxwood is coming in and being sent out rapidly, tardy deliveries being avoided on account of the freight congestion. Market conditions continue exceptionally good, with a greater demand than even last week. The supply again is inadequate for the enormous demand which has dominated the market since mid-autumn and promises to continue indefinitely. There is no doubt now that the supply of chrysanthemums will be sadly in arrears for Thanksgiving, as many of the greenhouses are already entirely cut out. Roses also are on the short side. Prices on all stock remain firm. The bulb season is opening up in a highly satisfactory manner, but, as with cut flowers, as yet there are not nearly enough bulbs to go around.

Various Notes.

C. C. Phillips has returned from a trip through eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania in the interest of the McCallum Co. and reports that prevailing business conditions are practically the same as in the Pittsburgh district. He tells me that John Keil, of East Liverpool, O., has been cutting some of the finest chrysanthemums seen in his travels this season, his white Turners and marigolds being exceptionally beautiful. Manager Schneidmiller has been unusually busy in the store on funeral work both day and night.

H. L. Thompson, the popular florist of Rochester and New Brighton, Pa., is about again after a severe attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Thompson, who has been looking after the business during her husband's illness, says that during the last two months they have broken all previous records in sales.

H. C. Neubrand was in town a few days ago representing C. R. Burr & Co., nurserymen, of Manchester, Conn.

Henry Monke has been added to the staff of the Liberty Florists, Frankstown and Penn avenues, for outside decorating and designing.

In the horticultural world, as elsewhere, everything depends on the point of view, and just now J. Wilkinson Elliott has about the same idea of the bulb business as General Sherman had of war. Saturday he was in his town office for the second time in the last month, having been kept close to the Springdale packing house with inexperienced help. In addition to his three sons, the war has called ten of his experienced nurserymen, and through the influenza epidemic he was without a stenographer, three of them having been seized with the disease. However, the closing of the public schools proved to Mr. Elliott a blessing, though at first disguised, for thereby he was able to procure two teachers and a lot of high school boys and girls to help fill approximately 6,000 orders. While several hundreds of cases of French and Holland bulbs have been received here, 165 cases are still missing, presumably lying in mid-ocean or held up in British ports. The Beckert Seed Co., of Federal street, north side, is having a similar experience with its foreign goods; while, on the other hand, the Scobie & Parker Co. has received its entire lot of foreign consignments.

Leo and John Shorall, the Oakland Florists, of Forbes street, are fortunate in having the only business of the kind in this busy section of the city. John Shorall, who went to France after spending the month of May at Camp Lee, together with twenty comrades, returned in September to Camp Meade, where he is now. E. E. S.

The Market.

The influenza ban, prohibiting public meetings, has just been lifted, November 15, after having been in effect for five weeks, and business in all lines is showing a decided improvement, although there is not such a heavy demand for funeral work. Flowers for the sick and for impromptu social affairs have created an excellent demand, and business in the shipping line has been good.

Roses are not so plentiful as they have been. There are practically no Russells to be had, and Columbia also is short of requirements. Sunburst, Ophelia and Shawyer are in larger supply, but carnations are noticeably on the short side, while chrysanthemums and pompons in quantities are coming into the market daily. Many varieties of mums which are supposed to be in their prime for the Thanksgiving trade are almost past their season now.

It is expected, therefore, that there will be few mums in this section for Thanksgiving, and such as are offered will be in the larger sizes and higher priced blooms. A retailer remarked, "Thanksgiving will be almost unthinkable without chrysanthemums." The outlook for the trade for this holiday is especially encouraging. With peace coming just at this time, a greater demand is expected than usual. Violets and sweet peas are coming slowly and there is no noticeable increase in the supply of lilies, but mums are being used in their place for funeral sprays. There is a plentiful supply of cattleyas at good prices. The supply of green goods is more satisfactory than for some weeks.

Various Notes.

Miss Margaret Vesey, head of the Hostess House at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., has just issued a report of the work accomplished during the last several months at this institution. Miss Vesey is ably assisted in this work by a number of young women, among whom is Miss Catherine Vesey, who has recently joined the house staff. She formerly was nursing at the same camp during the influenza epidemic.

The New Haven Floral Co. has had an excellent local demand, in addition to its out-of-town business, during the first half of the month of November. The local call was mostly for funeral arrangements. The crop of Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia and Mrs. George Shawyer is in excellent shape and the chrysanthemum crop has been exceptionally large this season.

A Victory window, with the dove of peace the center of the arrangement, was staged by A. J. Lanternier & Sons last week. A handsome display of chrysanthemums in attractive basket arrangements was shown in the window.

The store force of the Flick Floral Co. was on duty all day November 10 filling funeral orders. Some exceptionally good chrysanthemum plants and basket arrangements of pompons were displayed here.

The Freese Floral Co. had a particularly attractive window last week, with seasonable flowers, in which a large flag of immortelles occupied a prominent position.

P. J. McCarthy, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade last week. R. F.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

Should Be Reduced.

When the United States Fuel Administration took hold of the coal situation some fifteen months ago and established the prices that the mine operator could charge for the coal and the jobber and retailer could take as their profits, it undoubtedly kept the price within more reasonable limits than would have been the case had the law of supply and demand been allowed to operate without hindrance. Last winter the price of coal was fixed, but there was such a shortage that few industries other than those engaged in essential war work could get the fuel they needed.

Then began the campaign of conservation. Dr. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator, set out to educate people to use coal economically. Many enterprises, among them the florists', were put on short rations of fuel and were told that in order to prevent a fuel famine this winter worse than that of a year ago, these limitations of consumption were necessary. The result has been that the ending of the war has found the country with an adequate supply of fuel, if not an oversupply.

This situation has brought about a demand for the reduction of the prices fixed by the Fuel Administration. At the time these prices were made it was claimed by The Review and many other trade publications that they were out of proportion to the increased cost of production on which they were supposed to be based. The following editorial from a Boston newspaper shows how the general press is beginning to look at it:

"No Famine, but Famine Prices."

"It has come to be taken as a matter of course that when commodities grow scarce prices shall go up, even when the articles in question have been bought far below the ruling quotations. The war has been made an excuse for cries of scarcity, and cries of scarcity have been made an excuse for war prices.

"Dr. Garfield, a while ago, told the people of the United States repeatedly that they were face to face with a coal famine. His assistants notified those in certain localities that so short was to be the supply of coal that the lighting of fires for warming houses might have to be postponed until December 1. The price of coal was advanced to emphasize the gravity of the situation. It is now only the first part of November; those who could pay the price for coal have, as a rule, got supplies in their bins; the home fires have been burning, off and on, for several weeks; there is more coal in sight than the nation can use next winter, but there has been no lowering of the price.

Neither in the East or West, nor the North or South has any other make of boiler ever equaled the performance of the Kroeschell—installed for 3,974,605 square feet of glass in 1916-1917. Every customer immensely satisfied. The high efficiency and low cost of operation make the Kroeschell the best of all boilers for Florists' use.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have satisfactorily and permanently solved the effective burning of screenings. They will burn the worst grades of coal, even the dirtiest culm or sawdust and wood refuse.

Greenhouse owners like the KROESCHELL because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver, it pays its own way. The KROESCHELL will increase your heating plant efficiency 20 to 40%.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

"The argument will, of course, be raised, that the high price of coal at the present time, and the threatened further increase, are due to the constantly increasing cost of production. In answer to this, it may be said now, as it has been said in the past, and with no lack of ground for the assertion, that the advance in price to the consumer is out of all proportion to the advance in the cost of production.

Coal Men Well Fortified.

"'The Fuel Administration approaches the winter season well organized, with stocks of coal on hand far in excess of the stocks of other years,' says Dr. Garfield, in his latest statement. 'We are ready for an unusually severe winter.' He might have added, but he did not, that the coal operators, coal jobbers, and coal wholesalers also are ready for an unusually severe winter. With coal commanding prices advanced out of all proportion to the increased cost of production, the winter, surely, cannot be too severe for them.

"Notwithstanding the tremendous supply of coal, visible and invisible, Dr. Garfield still calls for the coöperation of the consumer, leaving the inference that that extravagant party, now that he finds coal to be plentiful once more, will be as extravagant in its use at the war price as he might be if it were put back to the normal price. Perhaps it is because Dr. Garfield wishes to conserve the greatest supply of coal the Republic has ever had that he still gives the coal operators and distributors an excuse for keeping the price at the highest possible notch.

"It is pleasant to know that so important a commodity as coal is now plentiful; but it is not pleasant to the consumer to be compelled to pay a famine price indefinitely for a plentiful article.

"The schedule of prices for coal fixed by the government on the famine basis should be speedily smashed; there never was adequate excuse for the rates allowed; there is less excuse for them now than ever."

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Markets.

Trade kept up well last week and, while the principal call was for funeral work and bouquets for hospital patients, birthdays and wedding anniversaries came in for their share.

Chrysanthemums at present hold the lead, as they come in such a variety of sizes, shapes and colors as to render them adaptable to any and all kinds of work, and we shall miss them when they are gone, which will be all too soon. Roses are in short supply, as are lilies, and carnations are none too plentiful. This makes it look as though there would be a big shortage as soon as the chrysanthemums are gone.

There were a few good potted plants on the market and some poor stock also, which did not move well.

Club Meeting.

The Tri-City Florists' Club met in regular session at the residence of C. O. E. Boehm, superintendent of parks, Davenport, Ia., and the meeting was one of the best attended in years. The members made a tour of the greenhouses and found the display far ahead of that of former years, not so much in the quality of the bloom, which has always been good, but in the arrangement of the plants, which showed a marked improvement over former years. The blooms will be given to the Red Cross society November 19 and 20, to be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross fund.

President Pauli presided and the topic of the evening, "Efficiency and Conservation in Greenhouse Work," was introduced by William Knees, Sr. A discussion followed, in which the members participated.

A question asked by Mr. Boehm as to the comparative value of fresh and rotted manure was answered in a satisfactory way by Ludwig Stapp, Rock Island, who seemed well versed on the subject.

John Staack, Moline, will open the discussion at the January meeting, his subject being "Overhead Expenses and Readjustments."

H. M. Bills will entertain the club at the January meeting at Davenport.

Supper was served, after which a vote of thanks was extended Mr. and Mrs. Boehm for their hospitality. W. G.

Highland Park, Illinois,
July 21, 1918.

Mr. F. A. Zenke,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Zenke:

Nothing pleases me more than to acknowledge that you were right when you praised up "New Plant Life" to me, and there couldn't be a better proof of it than my asking you to forward five more gallons just as soon as you can.

The results obtained were most satisfactory to me; stunted, small bedding stock after about ten days began to show new life and kept on improving. With the existing lack of help instead of giving thousands of 1-2 inch Geraniums a final shift, three light doses of ''New Life'' were applied and I am more than pleased with the outcome.

Sincerely yours,
Fritz Bahr.

The Market.

During the last week the demand has not kept up with the supply. The reason for this is that carnations, violets and roses again are arriving in good supply and of course the mums have the call until Thanksgiving. By all indications it would appear that after the day of the chrysanthemum, the stock arriving will all be taken up at good prices. The surplus now is slight compared with the same time last year. Good pompons and mums have the preference, but there is little poor stock on the market. The light-colored flowers are taken up for use in floral work, so really all there is left is odd colors. The roses arriving are good, though Sunburst during the last two weeks has come in with light heads and weak stems. American Beauties drag. They have given way almost entirely to fancy chrysanthemums. Some of the growers are bringing in good carnations, but as yet much of this stock is short-stemmed and small-flowered. Lately the supply of Easter lilies has been such that one has been able to get some without leaving an order a week ahead.

Various Notes.

S. A. Anderson was chosen by a large majority for county treasurer. Mr. Anderson's campaign was conducted on the principle of "A business man for a business position." The people will not be disappointed in this respect, for Mr. Anderson surely is a business man and the trade is glad to have him in office.

L. H. Neubeck has had a larger chrysanthemum trade this fall than in any past season. Mr. Neubeck had most of the early varieties and they came in just at the time when they were most needed. Karl Butz, his grower, reports that he has a fine lot of cyclamens, which will take the cake after Thanksgiving.

The Market.

All kinds of stock are coming in and most of it is in fair condition. Ophelia roses are of excellent quality, as are Sunburst. American Beauties are good but scarce. Carnations are coming in and they bring good prices. Calendulas are in great demand and are of fair quality. Bouvardia and valley seem to be in the lead for corsage work, with orchids and violets in combination. Orchids are short of the demand. Chrysanthemums are unusually fine and are coming in quantities. Few blooming plants are seen on the market.

Various Notes.

Mrs. F. M. Brownewell, wife of Mr. Brownewell, designer for the Jacob Schulz Co., is ill at her home on Western parkway.

The Jacob Schulz Co. is busy these days with landscape work.

Adam Heitz had good luck last week in shooting a number of rabbits. We are pleased to report that Mrs. Heitz is improving in health.

Since the glad news of peace was received, all the florists have had many orders for decorations and corsage work.

Funeral work has held up considerably during the last week.

Shipping work and telegraphic orders are keeping the florists busy. L. K.

MILLEPEDES IN GREENHOUSES.

Methods of Combating the Pest.

Opinions differ as to the destructiveness of the millepedes, or thousand-legged worms. In a bulletin issued by the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, it is maintained that the insects are not in the habit of feeding upon healthy plant tissue and seldom attack the stems of plants, but subsist chiefly on manure, decaying vegetable matter or the humus in the soil, and are especially fond of the green alga that grows on moist flower pots. The truth of that contention, says the bulletin, is attested both by experiments and by the structure of the insects' feeding apparatus. The millepedes' mandibles, or jaws, are not strong enough to bite off hard parts of plant tissue, but the food must be soft enough to be scraped up.

However, it is admitted in the bulletin that the millepedes occasionally molest sprouting seeds and may be starved into attacking the tender roots of some plants, damaging them to a limited extent. And there is no doubt that the insects are disagreeable, unwelcome tenants when numerous. So the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station undertook a series of tests of various methods of controlling the pest, with results that are here summarized.

Certain vegetables, such as potatoes and carrots, are of the right texture to suit the creatures' requirements and are among their favorite foods. Hence, in badly infested houses, if slices of potatoes or carrots are placed on the beds in the evening, the under surfaces will be found covered with millepedes the following morning. A better way is to place the bait in a small depression instead of on the surface and cover the hole with a flower pot or some such convenient object. Such traps will often be found partly filled with millepedes, which will remain in these sheltered places throughout the day instead of retreating to their galleries, as is their usual custom. Millepedes collected in this manner can be destroyed with boiling water, kerosene or nicotine, or can simply be removed with a trowel and crushed. W. E. Britton, state entomologist of Connecticut, recommends that a hole be cut in a potato and the tuber buried in the soil. J. E. Sanders describes a method employed in the greenhouses in Wisconsin; thin slices of carrots are placed under boards, and the millepedes collected under them are crushed.

Experiments with poisoned baits, however, were not successful at the experiment station, although they have been recommended as being efficient in some localities. Bits of potato were dusted with powdered arsenate of lead, Paris green or white arsenic, but the millepedes fed on them only sparingly, and none could be found that had been injured by the poison. Such a method might prove more effective where the humus is not so abundant in the soil.

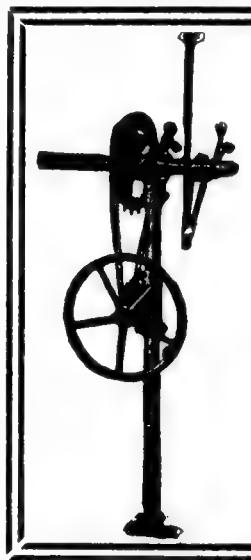
Experiments with tobacco products show that they are probably the best material for the control of the greenhouse millepede.

Tobacco Dust.

Tobacco dust sprinkled on the beds at the rate of 300 pounds to the acre, or about one ounce to each nine square feet, proved fairly effective. On the day following such a treatment about eighty-five per cent of the millepedes on the beds were dead, although some apparently normal individuals were moving around through the dust. Of the millepedes below the surface, only about five per cent were dead. Specimens were as numerous on the treated bench as on the check plot. Two days later no millepedes could be found on the surface, and the number in the soil was about half of the number found in the check plots. No more dust was applied and in a week conditions on the treated plot were again normal. On another plot a second dosage was given three days after the first, with the result that at the end of the week only about five per cent of the former number remained.

In a third experiment the tobacco dust was worked into the soil instead of being merely sprinkled on the surface. The following morning one millepede was found walking over the surface and four dead ones were dug up from below the surface. All the others had apparently escaped to the check plots adjoining, for on these check plots the millepedes were more numerous than they had been previously. A few days later millepedes were again found on the treated plot and by the end of a week the infestation was normal.

H. A. Gossard, state entomologist of Ohio, writes of a large swarm of millepedes that were injuring cucumbers: "An abundance of tobacco dust was used as a mulch about the plants and within a day or two the millepedes could be collected from the concrete floors by the hundred thousands."



In addition to its insecticidal value, tobacco dust is said to have some value as a fertilizer.

Nicotine Solutions.

Forty per cent nicotine sulphate is one of the best remedies to be used against the millepedes. It can be applied with good results at strengths varying from one part to 750 parts of water to one part to 1,000 parts of water. Notes on experiments with this substance, diluted at the rate of one part of nicotine sulphate to 1,000 parts of water and applied with a watering can until the soil of the beds was thoroughly drenched, show that about ninety per cent of the millepedes were killed by the treatment. Nearly every millepede within three inches of the surface was killed, but below that depth they were apparently unharmed.

Practically the same results were secured from forty per cent nicotine solutions as were secured from the nicotine sulphate.

In the application of nicotine solutions care should be taken that all of the soil is well drenched with the material. A light spraying will only be effective to a depth of about three-quarters of an inch below the surface, but if enough of the solution is put on the beds a few applications should rid the house of this pest.

HERE is a good example of our Pipe Frame double "Y" supported greenhouse. It is 35 feet 6 inches wide and has but two rows of supports through the center. It is amply strong to stand the severest storms and snows of winter.

It is one of the most economical houses to build and also one of the most economical to heat.

The erection of this house is very simple and, with our complete plans and instructions, it can be put up with ordinary mechanics such as are found around any town.

Let us give you an estimate on the cost of this type of house.

Highland Park, Illinois,

Mr. F. A. Zenke,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Zenke:

Nothing pleases me more than to acknowledge that you were right when you praised up "New Plant Life" to me, and there couldn't be a better proof of it than my asking you to forward five more gallons just as soon as you can.

The results obtained were most satisfactory to me; stunted, small bedding stock after about ten days began to show new life and kept on improving. With the existing lack of help instead of giving thousands of 1-2 inch Geraniums a final shift, three light doses of ''New Life'' were applied and I am more than pleased with the outcome.

Sincerely yours,
Fritz Bahr.

A Reconstruction Period—

Reconstruction is the watchword of today.

The florists' business must undergo changes to conform with the new order of things.

Old and unprofitable varieties must make way for the new and profitable ones.

The increased cost of production demands it.

FLOWERS AS SIDE LINE QUICKLY DOMINATE

Putting in flowers as a side line to some other retail business is dangerous —to the original business. The man who has a genius for retailing quickly finds a flower store beats most other businesses. Here is an example of this truth; many other similar cases can be cited.

THERE is an Arabian fable about a camel and its master at night in the desert. The Arab had lain down in his tent; the camel, being cold, asked permission to put his head inside; the permission was granted, but instead of his head, the camel gradually got all of himself inside and the Arab found himself outside. Many business men have discovered after taking on what is commonly called a "side line" that the addition has proved to be like the camel—the "side line" has all but pushed out the original occupant of the store.

Can't Oust Flowers.

There are many instances of this in American business life. The senior member of the original firm of Sears, Roebuck & Co. laid the foundation for that immense business when he took on watches as a side line to eke out his wages as a station agent in a small Minnesota town, long before the government took over the railroads and raised their employees from their former lowly position to their present affluent one. And consider what side lines have done to the old-fashioned drug store—there isn't much drug store left.

THANK YOU!

One of the most pleasant of the many interesting features of publishing The Review has to do with the invaluable assistance rendered by its readers. For many years the steady growth of the paper, particularly in circulation, has come principally through well-pleased readers recommending it to others to whom it should prove equally helpful. This assistance will be especially valuable now that the trade is about to enter another period of rapid expansion and will be thoroughly appreciated.

There are few instances, if any, in which a side line taken into a flower store has been able to push the flower part of the business out of the back door, and accessories or side lines play a prominent part in the business of retailing flowers, but there are records of many cases where flowers have been put in as a side line and have appropriated the predominant position of the original merchandise.

What the addition of selling flowers to a business will accomplish can be determined by the experiences of Charles Bartcher, undertaker, stationer, confectioner and florist, Denison, Ia. Probably because undertaking was the original business of Mr. Bartcher, he puts that part of his activities first on his stationery, but by adding flowers as a side line to undertaking ten years ago he has acquired in a city of only 2,500 people the large and excellently equipped store, the interior of which is shown in the accompanying illustration.

What Flowers Did for Bartcher.

Here is how Mr. Bartcher describes his success with flowers:

"The formal opening of our new store took place November 8 and 9 and we had more than 1,000 visitors, each one of whom was presented with a souvenir of violets. We moved into these quarters last spring. The business was started as a side line ten years ago, but has grown to such an extent that we employ two persons besides Mrs. Bartcher and myself, and at times when funeral work is heavy have extra help. Our business now is not confined to the retail end, but we do a large wholesale trade.''

With the exception of the show case of candy and the table of stationery, it will be noticed that besides the flowers and plants all the other kinds of merchandise displayed are those that will be found in a majority of flower stores. There are jardinieres, vases and baskets, all flower store accessories, while all the available spaces in the store are used to display flowers.

Incidentally it seems that Mr. Bartcher is a versatile man. Before entering this business he was a foreman in a cabinet shop and when he planned the new store he built all the fixtures himself.

Small Beginnings the Rule.

Small beginnings have been the rule rather than the exception in the flower selling business. The successes are usually the result of a steady growth from a modest start, brought about by good management and the constantly increasing demand for flowers. Some have started as did Henry Penn, in Boston, selling flowers on the streets, progressing through the stages of a street stand and a hallway booth into high-priced stores on prominent business corners. Others, like Charles H. Grakelow, Philadelphia, started in the front room of a residence. The careers of many men in the florists' business are as romantic as those of the so-called captains of industry, who have risen from laborers to directors in the world's largest business affairs.

That something that is called ''business instinct,'' with which most of the successful retailers were born and which a few have acquired, is as necessary in managing a flower store as a department store. Statistics show that not more than one in five who start in business succeed in keeping away from failure; undoubtedly this percentage holds good in the flower business.

Many Make Quick Success.

But it is doubtful if any business has seen more rapid successes than that of selling flowers at retail. The small start with flowers, whether they be a side line or the leading feature of the business, quickly accomplishes one of three things—it rapidly makes the proprietor prosperous; makes him satisfied to continue for his board and keep, or he goes or is put out of business. Apparently there is required greater business acumen in retailing such perishable stock than in doling out the staples. Quick thinking, astute buying and being on the job all the time are what count in the flower business.

Which leads to the belief that a man who is successful in business should hesitate about taking on flowers as a side line, unless he wants to devote his entire time to managing that phase of his activities. Also they are liable to push his original business right out the back door and leave him with nothing except one of the most alluring businesses in the world on his hands.

THE RESTRICTIONS ARE OFF

BUILDING BAN LIFTED.

Official Announcement.

The State Councils of Defense have been notified of the removal of the remaining restrictions on nonwar construction throughout the United States, and building operations of any character suspended by the war may now be resumed without further permits. Chairman Baruch, of the War Industries Board, has announced:

''Immediately following the signing of the armistice November 11, the nonwar construction section took steps to loosen the restraints on the [building] industry, and in a formal order issued that day removed a great many of the barriers. Since then, and with a view to assisting the industry back to a complete peace basis as quickly as possible, a careful canvass has been made of the conditions in each state with respect to building materials, transportation, and the supply of fuel and labor.

''In this investigation the nonwar construction section sought the views of the industry itself and of the State Councils of Defense. The replies received, coming from practically all the states, showed a unanimous opinion in favor of such action.''

Plans and Prospects.

With the removal of the ban on building operations, many in the trade will take heart of grace and proceed with the development of postponed plans for the construction of new greenhouses or the remodeling and improvement of old ranges. The construction program which will be a feature of the dawning post-bellum era will be the means of enabling many in the trade to ''carry on'' as they could not do under wartime restrictions, to which all submitted willingly as necessary to win the war. Now that the great desideratum is an accomplished fact and normal conditions are being restored as fast as practicable, the trade may look forward to a realization of the enlargement which has been confidently predicted for the future. With fuel restrictions practically a thing of the past and labor troubles soon to be removed by the return of troops in the process of demobilization, and the release of labor due to cancellation of war contracts, the removal of the ban on building operations predicates the resumption of activities which will put the trade in a position to prepare for the expansion which the unprecedented war-time demand for flowers assures. The handicaps of the stressful time are being lifted one by one and it would seem that the return to a normal basis of operations will be marked by even more than prewar prosperity for the trade, if present indications are to be taken as a gauge of future conditions.

Readjustment.

The time required for the processes of readjustment will afford opportunity for the florist to observe the signs of the times and to coördinate means and materials as they become available to the uses of the new order, which in many respects will differ from the old, and the lessons learned during the stress of war-time upheavals will stand him in good stead in the exigencies of the reconstruction period.

COAL STORAGE LIMIT OFF.

All storage restrictions on bituminous coal were removed November 23 by the United States Fuel Administration in conformity to the action of the War Industries Board in canceling its preferential industries list. Anthracite coal is not affected, however, by the ruling of the Fuel Administration.

Every industry and every householder in the country now may store as much bituminous coal as desired or obtainable, as the action of the War Industries Board removes the necessity for the Fuel Administration to distinguish longer between different classes of industrial plants.

The restrictions just raised provided for the accumulation by the consumers in the preference classes, as defined by the War Industries Board, of reserve stocks of bituminous coal, in accordance with their location in relation to various mine fields and their classification on the preference schedule.

All industries located farthest from distribution points, particularly those in New England and in the northwest, are found not only to be well stocked, in accordance with Fuel Administration specifications, but in many cases have surpluses above those amounts.

HOLIDAY BAR REMOVED.

The movement inaugurated several weeks ago by the National Council of Defense to discourage the people of the country from buying other than necessities, or ''common-sense Christmas presents,'' and urging that what buying would be done should be scattered through the intervening months so as to eliminate the demand of the stores for extra clerks to handle the crowds, has been halted. Now the National Council of Defense takes the other view and urges that the holiday buying be normal.

The end of the war, of course, has released many thousands from doing essential war work. A great number of these, under the ''work or fight order,'' had come from the department and other retail stores. Now they are no longer needed by the government and will return to their former positions.

Few flower stores suffered the loss of clerks through the work or fight order, but many of the young men have gone from these establishments into the army. However, there is a good chance that many of them, who got no farther than the training camps, will be back on the job to help out in the Christmas rush.

The removal of the ban on Christmas shopping will be hailed with satisfaction by the trade, as when buying is brisk the flower stores get their share. It looks as though there is going to be a big Christmas season this year.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

BUDDLEIA ASIATICA.

The graceful, pure white, sweetly scented Buddleia asiatica is now coming into favor in greenhouses where no artificial heat has been afforded as yet. It is one of our most valuable forcing plants and, whether used as a decorative plant or for cutting, it fills a place such as few plants fill at this season. It propagates so easily, makes such a large plant in a single season, blooms so abundantly and is so graceful and fragrant that almost every florist should grow it. The name "white winter lilac" has been given it, but this is something of a misnomer, as it in no respect resembles a lilac. By keeping the plants cold they may be retarded so as to flower as late as the spring exhibitions. No other decorative plant, not even excepting the acacia, is more effective in groups than Buddleia asiatica.

SPIRÆAS.

Supplies of spiræas probably will be late in arriving. When they do come to hand, soak them well and expose them to one or two good freezings before potting them up. It will not pay to start forcing any of the new stock for some time, but cold storage stock will be serviceable if started now. I have advocated the growing of more spiræas at home. Plants from which the flowers have been taken can be cut in two or three pieces and planted out in good soil. The second year they will have made fine clumps, far ahead of the imported stock. I find a rather low piece of ground is best adapted for their culture and that vastly better clumps can be produced at home than are imported. This is true not only of the varieties in common culture, like japonica, Gladstone, Queen Alexandra and astilboides, but of all the newer pink and lavender varieties. These outdoor clumps are being dug now and laid in a coldframe, where they will be well frozen before being potted. Every country florist should plant out his left-over spiræas and not throw them away. We have always been far too wasteful with these and other plants.

WINTER-FLOWERING BEGONIAS.

Now that there are moderate fires and the sand in the cutting bench has become genially warm, it is time to insert a good-sized batch of any of the winter-flowering begonias, such as Glory of Cincinnati, Melior, Mrs. Peterson and Gloire de Lorraine, as well as the larger and more brilliant English hybrids of the Mrs. Heal and Optima types. Select firm, well developed leaves and let the leaf stalk be of good length. Insert the cuttings so that they will just touch one another. The sand should be new and of good porosity. If it is too fine, add charcoal, coal ashes or even coal, to make it more porous. Careful watering and a steady bottom heat are essential to successful propagation of begonias from leaf cuttings.

STOCK IN THE COLDFRAMES.

It is unwise to cover plants, either outdoors or in frames, too early. More plants are killed annually by too early covering than by anything else. The ground should be frozen stiff before such winter protection is afforded. In the case of coldframes where such plants as daisies, pansies, forget-me-nots, violas, young perennials and a variety of other hardy or half hardy plants are stored, there is no covering so good as perfectly dry leaves laid loosely over the plants, with sashes placed over the leaves to prevent the latter from becoming damp. Given this covering and some matchboard shutters to prevent the snow from breaking the glass, and any of the plants named will winter perfectly. Some ventilation should be afforded during mild weather to prevent sweating. Pine needles make a good winter covering, while hay and straw also can be used, but leaves have proved the finest mulch of all, and are usually available in quantity.

POINSETTIAS.

We have had a remarkably open fall to date, with comparatively few cold nights, and plants in unheated greenhouses were in excellent condition November 18. Some houses which were to have been closed will be operated now, thanks to the ending of the war and the improvement in the fuel outlook. Poinsettias now are developing their bracts and now is the time they demand some warmth and judicious feeding. They do well in a minimum of 55 degrees, although, if watered carefully, they will open out all right if kept 5 degrees cooler. Too much care can hardly be taken now in watering them. To have salable plants, green foliage is necessary. Too much or too little water at this season soon will cause yellow leaves to appear. Use weak liquid manure once in four or five days while the bracts are developing. A little soot with cow manure makes an ideal liquid dressing. Be sure to avoid heavy applications, which will speedily cause loss of foliage.

SHRUBS FOR FORCING.

With the probable ending of importations of plants adapted for forcing, we shall be dependent on our own resources for such forcing stock as lilacs, deutzias, prunus, cratægus, etc. Here again there has been a deplorable waste of material. Unsold or sparsely flowered plants have been at once consigned to the dump, when, if planted in the field or garden, they would make the finest kind of forcing stock, in some cases the following spring and in others a year later. Left-over lilacs, if well headed back, make grand forcing stock in two seasons, better than any we have been able to buy. The same holds good of laburnums and a number of other standard deciduous forcing shrubs. Dig up and carefully pot or tub any available plants now and place them in a cool cellar or shed before the weather becomes too inclement. Any of these shrubs which have not been planted out more than a couple of years make splendid stock for forcing. We have grown roses in this way; there is no reason whatever why we cannot propagate and grow our own shrubs for forcing.

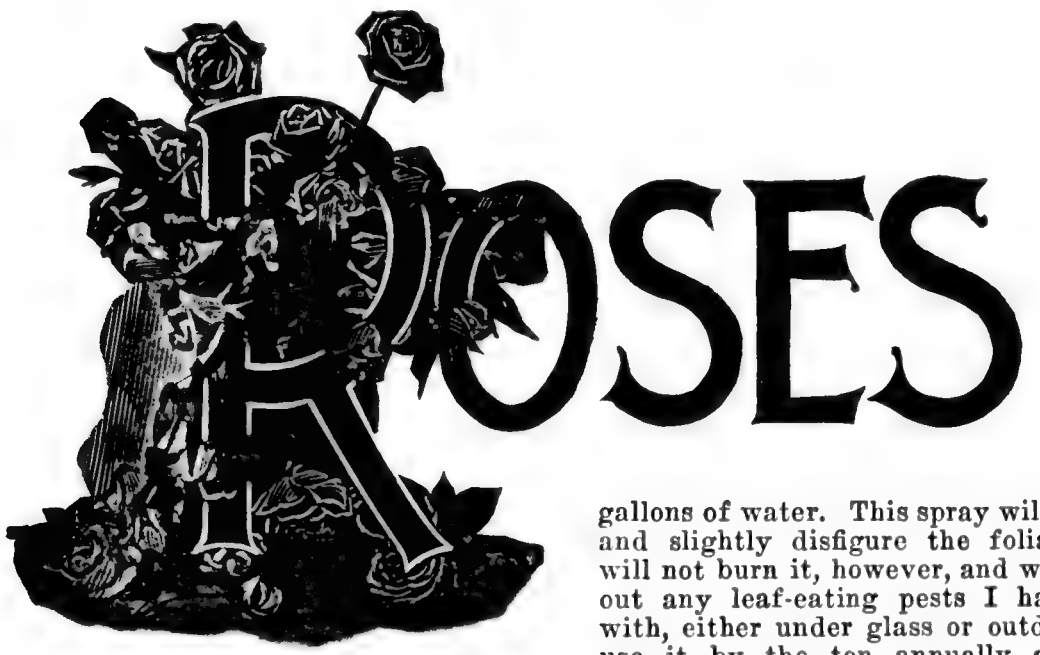
HELPERS COMING BACK

WAR ORDERS CANCELED.

Savings Effected.

With a view to conforming industrial conditions as rapidly as practicable to a peace basis, the government has ordered the cancellation within the next thirty days of war contracts estimated to aggregate a total of $6,000,000,000. The projected annulment is said to cover one-fourth of the war program laid out for the year. By virtue of readjustments taking place as a result of the efforts of the different departments to eliminate expenditures rendered unnecessary by the cessation of hostilities, savings have been effected which are said to amount to something like $2,000,000,000, the size of the figure indicating that every line of industry will be affected in some degree. The cancellation edict applies to orders placed and not to goods in process of manufacture, but, even so, it means a curtailment of certain industries which have given employment to vast numbers. An order promulgated November 11 forbids all overtime and Sunday work. This order alone is expected to effect a saving of $700,000. From whatever viewpoint the matter is regarded, these orders cannot fail to have far-reaching effects. It is evident that the country is face to face with the dislocations incident to the reconstruction period.

"Ring in the New."



Cancellation of war orders means that for a time many of the wage earners, who have enjoyed a period of unprecedented prosperity due to the high scale of wages paid in the war industries, will be under the necessity of seeking employment in other lines of industry. It will take time to bring about a redistribution of labor, but meantime every employer, every industry, including the florists', is calling distractedly for help. That the labor employed on government contracts will be absorbed back into its accustomed vocations in the shortest time possible no one conversant with the situation can reasonably question. The business man will improve the opportunity to provide for the activities of the busy days ahead, when the United States will be called upon to supply food and various other necessities and commodities to the peoples of Europe, as well as to take care of domestic requirements. The immense tasks assigned the United States in the counsels of the nations afford ample assurance that there will be work for all and that money will be moving in a steady stream into the coffers of our industrial enterprises and so into the pockets of the people. The reconstruction period is not a time to be dreaded, even if it does bring about dislocations and inconveniences, for it is the inevitable preface to the better times to come.

Good Times Coming.

The exceptional activity in the flower trade during October brought large returns to the florists and prepared them to meet the exigencies of the reconstruction period, whatever form they may take. The growers, the wholesalers and the retailers alike will welcome back to their accustomed tasks the help so sorely missed during the time of its removal to serve our country's need in military service or industrial employment.

The large class of workers which for the first time has become a flower-buying clientele constitutes a new source of custom which can be counted upon in addition to the regular patronage of the trade, in the after-time when things settle down again to the solid basis of prosperity assured by the markets opened to our wares of all classes throughout the world.

WHAT SHOULD RETURNS BE?

We have a range of four greenhouses, each 25x100 feet, recently built and all modern with steam heat. Roses are grown exclusively, the varieties being Francis Scott Key and Mrs. Charles Russell. We do not think that we are getting the proper returns from these rose houses and are asking you or some of your readers to give us a fair estimate of what the gross income should be, if the stock is grown by an up-to-date grower. We have no complaint to make about the demand, or the prices, using those quoted in Chicago as a basis, but our trouble is in the production of blooms. T. H. T.—Colo.

Here is a letter that is of interest to many rose growers and The Review is passing it along to them. Will those who think they are getting average returns kindly reply to the questions asked?—Ed.

LEAF-EATING PESTS.

We are sending you a few leaves from a rose plant that has been eaten by a small, dark brown bug about the size of a bean weevil. We have had no previous experience with this insect. We have been unable to check its ravages with nicotine and would like to know what will exterminate it.

A. F. C.—Mo.

An adhesive poison spray is necessary to clean out leaf-eating pests of this character. Spray with arsenate of lead in the proportion of one pound of paste to twelve and one-half gallons of water, or one pound of dry lead to twenty-five gallons of water. This spray will whiten and slightly disfigure the foliage. It will not burn it, however, and will clean out any leaf-eating pests I have met with, either under glass or outdoors. I use it by the ton annually and can guarantee it. C. W.

PROTECTING HARDY ROSES.

A year ago the ground froze up so early that it caught numerous growers with their roses and other plants unprotected. It is hoped that the coming winter may be less severe than its predecessor, but of this there can be no certainty and now while the ground is soft is the ideal time for hilling up the roses. There is no better method of protecting roses than with mother earth itself. Particularly is this true of hybrid perpetuals like Frau Karl Druschki, Magna Charta, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Mrs. John Laing, Paul Neyron, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford and others of this type. If the plants have been pruned back hard as suggested each spring in the cultural columns of The Review, it will not be difficult to cover a few eyes of the last season's growth. If this is done, no matter how severe the winter, it is tolerably certain there will be some live wood to prune back to in the spring.

Hybrid teas can be earthed up in the same manner and, if the land where they grow is well drained, they should winter well. Tie up the shoots into a fairly tight cane before hilling up. Let the ground freeze hard and then place some strawy manure, straw or meadow hay over the loam. I do not recommend these latter mulches as safe in themselves. Too often they are applied while the ground is soft and field mice tunnel below them and raise havoc with the plants. If hybrid teas are growing in positions exposed or where water may collect in winter, the best plan is to dig them up and bury them in a coldframe or outdoors where no water can stand and where a mulch of straw or hay can be placed over them when extremely severe weather sets in.

In the case of rambler roses in cold latitudes where winter killing often occurs, I would advise laying down the canes and throwing a little loam over them to hold them in position, giving them a mulch of straw, hay or leaves. Usually the snow mulch suffices to keep the canes in good condition. This is much easier than wrapping the canes in straw and much safer.

Do not be afraid to plant hardy roses, even at this late date. I have done this work just before applying the winter protection for a number of years and have lost few plants of either hybrid teas or hybrid perpetuals.

ROSES FOR SPRING SALES.

What is the best method of handling roses that are now in 2½-inch pots? I want to sell them next spring.

K. P. & T. F.—Pa.

It would be useless to shift these plants at present. You do not state whether they are hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas or polyanthas (baby ramblers). You might keep them over the winter in a cold house just clear of freezing, or plunge them in a coldframe and fill the space above them with dry leaves to exclude frost, placing tight sashes over the frames to keep off rain or snow. About the end of February if you wish you can give the plants a shift into 3½ or 4-inch pots. If you want larger sized plants, place them at that time in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. If you intend to sell them in the present pots, the best plan would be to store them in coldframes or in a frostproof cellar or pit. C. W.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Department of Registration.

The following varieties have been presented for registration and unless objections are filed with the secretary of the society within three weeks of this publication the registrations will become permanent:

THE BOYS WHO DID THE JOB

COMING HOME.

Demobilization to Free Florists.

As rapidly as possible the men who are at the army training camps in this country and in the service abroad will be returned to their homes, discharged from further military service. There were nearly 5,000,000 men under arms when the signing of the armistice November 11 brought the fighting to an end. Among these millions there were several thousand florists and employees of florists. Not all will be released from the army, as a considerable number of men will remain to do police duty in the German territory the Allies will occupy until the peace treaty is agreed on. As these men come home The Review will be glad to publish the news. All that is necessary is to send the particulars to the editor.

Harry Goodhew Dies in Camp.

Harry J. Goodhew, of the Goodhew Floral Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., died at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, Mich., October 13, of pneumonia, which followed an attack of influenza. He was in the service just ten weeks, being a member of the Headquarters Company, 41st Field Artillery. Mr. Goodhew was in the florists' business practically all his life, being associated with his father, J. W. Goodhew. Three years ago he and his sister, Miss Mabel E. Goodhew, opened a retail store in the business section of Ann Arbor, which she has managed since he left for camp. He was well known in the trade and his many friends will be shocked to hear of his untimely death.

Trains to be Artillery Officer.

R. A. Helm, who for four years previous to his enlistment in the U. S. Coast Artillery was manager of the office of the Kemble & Goodman establishment in Mason City, Ia., joined the officers' training school at Fortress Monroe, Va., and expected to receive a commission as lieutenant. The accompanying illustration shows Mr. Helm at home just previous to his enlistment.

R. A. Helm.

Charles Gow.

With Canadians in France.

Charles Gow, for a number of years associated with H. E. Wilson, Rochester, N. Y., is in France, a member of a company of Canadian Mounted Rifles, with the British Expeditionary Forces. Private Gow left Rochester and went to Canada to enlist before the United States entered the war. After a short period of training in Canada, he was sent overseas and has been in many battles, among them being that at Vimy Ridge. A letter, dated at the front, received by The Review correspondent in Rochester, said that he was in the best of health and having a wonderful experience. Private Gow enclosed the photograph of himself, in the uniform of the Canadians, which is reproduced in the accompanying portrait.

Johnsons Join Joyfully.

Charles W. Johnsoh, Morgan Park, Ill., widely known as secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and for his good work at Mount Greenwood cemetery, Chicago, has a son only 16 years of age on the way to France as volunteer with a Red Cross unit which left Chicago November 14. Albert George Johnson will drive a Red Cross motor in France until the boys come home.

First Lieutenant Charles Thomas Johnson has just completed the course at the Fort Sill school of fire and has reported at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky. Lieutenant Johnson was the first drafted man to leave Morgan Park, having waived his exemptions. He started as a private at Camp Grant, rose to corporal, then to sergeant and was sent to the third officers' training camp in June, 1918, coming out with a commission as second lieutenant. He was made first lieutenant in September and seems likely to be retained in the service because of the special adaptability he has demonstrated for the artillery work. He was with his father in the Mount Greenwood cemetery greenhouses before the war.

Peterson Has Pneumonia.

J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, has been called to Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex., by the illness of his son, J. C. Peterson, who has pneumonia.

Walter Felke with Artillery.

The accompanying illustration is of Walter Felke, son of the well-known Wilmette greenhouse man, Frank Felke. The photograph was taken after one year's service in Europe. Mr. Felke, who is 21 years old, looks none the worse for his hard experiences. In June, 1917, he enlisted in the 6th U. S. Field Artillery, going over shortly afterward. Before leaving for the front he was his father's assistant at the greenhouses. He writes that he has been in the thick of the fighting and enjoyed watching the American artillery keep the Huns on the run toward Berlin.

Leo Headke.

Leo Headke died in the service of his country October 15, at Camp Mills, N. Y. Mr. Headke was employed by Labo the Florist, Joliet, Ill., at the time of his enlistment.

Walter Felke.

DAISY HILL FARM.

Fourteen miles from Cleveland on South Woodland road is situated the Daisy Hill Farm, a 2,500-acre tract owned by the Van Swerigens, wealthy real estate men, which is of no particular interest, however, to florists. But, nestled among the hills at a point where, from the rugged nature of the surrounding country, one might expect to sight a herd of deer, is located a range of Lord & Burnham and Foley greenhouses which has made the place justly famous. They are presided over by Paul Backofen, a name synonymous with the best of everything in flowers. Roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, followed by sweet peas, are the specialties. The stock is marketed in Cleveland and is eagerly sought by a multitude of discriminating buyers, because of its rarely good quality. Here may be found the happy union of a range of modern construction, abundance of fertile soils, skillful growing and up-to-date methods, the blending of which inevitably spells success. Though off the beaten path of travel, it is worth a half day's journey to visit this most interesting establishment. Mac.

CARL HAGENBURGER.

The name of Carl Hagenburger is inseparably connected with articles of sterling merit and there are few men more devoted to their chosen calling. He truly loves his work and, as proof thereof, we need only point to his splendid solanums, which are now being marketed in immense quantities. So great is the demand that other specialties have had to be discontinued. The use of printers' ink has played an important part in popularizing these fine creations, and serves to illustrate what can be done in this direction.

Although a busy man, Mr. Hagenburger finds time to attend important trade gatherings, and is always sufficiently interested to take active part in the proceedings. He is a vice-president of the American Carnation Society and it was chiefly through his efforts that the annual meeting of that national body was secured for Cleveland in January, 1919. As the war-time president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, his work during that trying period was characterized by energy and devotion to duty. A little journey to Mentor is incomplete unless it includes a call upon this plant wizard, at whose place the latchstring is always out. Mac.

C. MERKEL & SONS.

Mentor is known in history as the home of the martyred President Garfield; the location of C. Merkel & Sons there places it upon the trade map. And it is destined to increase in importance, too, because of the noteworthy spirit of enterprise rampant in that ever increasing concern.

Few trade visitors come to the Sixth City that do not go to the Merkel range, for the simple reason that there is always something worth-while there to see. The crops are not only superbly grown, but the methods are worthy of emulation. The commonplace is discarded for the new and meritorious, resulting in greater satisfaction and profit, a procedure too little practiced by commercial florists.

At present the tendency is in favor of cut flowers as against the vast quantities of plants of previous years. The stock is sold direct to the retailer. The major part of it is shipped, but deliveries are now being made in Cleveland by truck. Steadily the output is becoming a greater factor in the supply of the local market.

The elder Merkel is ably assisted by his three stalwart sons, whose intelligent and constant application and ability to work well in double harness have made their goodly measure of progress possible. Coöperation is the keynote of the place, which augurs well for a great future. Mac.

NIGHT WIRE RATES REDUCED.

Reduction in telegraph rates on night messages, which would cut the minimum toll from $1 to 50 cents between Atlantic and Pacific coast states, has been ordered by Postmaster General Burleson, effective January 1 next. Such messages are subject to delivery by post-office carriers.

The minimum cost on night message telegrams will be 20 cents for ten words and 1 cent for each additional word for the shortest distances, and 50 cents, with 2 cents for each additional word for the longest distance. Where the day rate is $1 the new night rate will be half that sum.

The rates on ordinary telegrams, though sent at night and on night letters, are not affected by the order.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Peoria, Ill.—The final meeting of the creditors of D. U. Augspurger & Sons Co. will be held at room 1005, Central National Bank building, Peoria, December 10, at 10 a. m. L. W. Allison, trustee of the assets of the company, which went into bankruptcy more than a year ago, filed his final report October 18, and Edward U. Henry, referee, has notified the creditors to be present at the final meeting to pass on the report, allow attorneys' and other fees, and decide on a final dividend to the creditors. The report of the trustee shows he has $1,456.32 for distribution.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

IRONITE.

We would like to know if any of the growers back east have heard of Ironite, which is said to make everything grow better and faster. We doubt if you have, because, if so, we feel sure that we would have heard about it before November 18, when Professor A. Miller, of the National Tree and Remedy Co., of Denver, Colo., made us a visit and explained to us all about Ironite, which he said, if used in the soil at the rate of two pounds to 100 square feet every ninety days, will make it possible to leave the soil in the benches for any length of time, and not that only, but it will make plant growths stronger and less subject to disease. It also eliminates splits in carnations.

Now, we do not doubt Professor Miller's word, but we could not but lament that a labor-saving product like this was not offered at the time when we had to contend with a labor shortage such as never before. And we wondered that those growers who, according to Professor Miller, have used Ironite for a number of years, did not lend a helping hand to their fellows by letting them know about this labor-saving stuff. We, at least, never saw anything of the kind mentioned in The Review, even though Professor Miller told us that growers like Bassett & Washburn, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and others are using it extensively in their ranges.

If anybody acquainted with Ironite will enlighten us through the columns of The Review, we shall appreciate it.

Glenrose Greenhouses.

The Review has heard of Ironite a number of times, but it has not been able to obtain the street address of the concern putting it out, although an inquiry has been published asking readers to supply the information. The U. S. Department of Agriculture, which issues fertilizer licenses as a war measure, advises that no license has been issued to Miller or the National Co., that Ironite is unknown to the bureau in charge and that its representatives are anxious to meet Mr. Miller. Address Wallace Mein, assistant to the secretary, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CHARGING FOR BOXES.

Will The Review or some retail florist give us a little help? What do they do in the matter of charging for the boxes in which they deliver flowers and designs? When we receive cut flowers from the wholesaler the boxes always are charged for, usually at from 60 cents to 85 cents each, but does any retailer make a charge when he in turn makes shipments? One day last week we shipped to one customer at one time thirteen boxes and we made no charge for the boxes. They contained sprays and designs. We shall appreciate any ideas expressed on this subject.

J. U. M.—Miss.

It is trade custom for wholesalers to charge the cost of P. & D. on shipments of cut flowers and, since the cost of doing business began to rise under the influence of the war, plantsmen have adopted the custom, which always has been in vogue in Europe. The buyer may be perfectly certain that if there is no charge for P. & D. the seller's price is high enough to absorb the item—the buyer pays just the same. So far as records go, retailers never have charged for the boxes used on sales to the public; the retail price is high enough to cover the cost. The reference to sending thirteen boxes to one customer leads to the thought that this may have been a sale to an undertaker or other agent. Unless the cost of packing is covered by the selling price there is only one reason why P. & D. should not be passed along to the agent. The one reason is that the agent might transfer his patronage to some other florist. It might be in order to get the florists of your locality together for a little discussion of trade customs and perhaps they all will make a small charge to agents for P. & D., or they might reduce the undertaker's commission, which would amount to the same thing. Of course the florist uses the same boxes that he receives from the wholesaler and a legitimate charge would not exceed the actual cost of the boxes as represented by the wholesaler's bill.

DOUBLE CYCLAMEN.

I am enclosing with this inquiry two photographs of a cyclamen seedling in a 6-inch pot. It shows the flowers to be quite double and as a matter of fact each bloom has from ten to sixteen well formed petals. I do not remember ever to have seen or heard of cyclamens growing double in this way. Do you think it possible that this plant would mature seed? Would the variety be of any commercial value if it could be propagated? Is there any method of propagating cyclamens by dividing the tubers in the event of seed not being formed? The plant photographed was grown from seed taken from an ordinary plant with single flowers. The color is light pink with dark crimson eye. N. R.—Sask.

During the years in which we have made something of a specialty of cyclamens we have had a good number of plants which produced more or less double flowers. We have found that the semi-double flowers will produce seed, but they do not come true. The double flowers, however, seldom produce seed, or only a few seeds. The varieties appear to have little commercial value on that account. Cyclamens may be grown the second year from bulbs, but they cannot be divided. Neither is it desirable to grow plants from 2-year-old bulbs. No cultural method has been found so satisfactory as sowing fresh seed in the month of August to produce large, well-flowered plants for the second succeeding season. J. A. P.

ASPLENIUM NIDUS-AVIS.

We have a lot of Asplenium Nidus-avis that was shipped to us a month ago. The leaves, particularly the outer ones, have taken on a brown appearance, beginning at the base of the plant and continuing to the top. In many of them this discoloration occurs on only one side of the midrib of the leaf. Is this caused by shipping, by too much or too little water, or by something in the soil? The plants have been given the same treatment that we have been giving our ferns; that is, warm, humid atmosphere and partial shade. Any information will be appreciated.

B. N.—Ala.

From the description this appears to be a disease which we consider incurable. It is possible it may result from overwatering the plants. Some years ago we were troubled with the same disease on a lot of imported plants. We gave these plants every possible care, but without good results, so finally we had to throw them on the dump. Since that time we have been growing our own plants from spores and for several years have not seen any signs of black leaves on our ferns, although we grow this variety in considerable quantity.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

I. ROSNOSKY.

DID you ever notice that the men who become well known in the trade invariably fetch as well as carry? I. Rosnosky numbers among his friends florists from coast to coast. They are his friends because he knows his friends' business as well as his own. "Ros" not only takes an order, but he leaves many a hint, suggestion or bit of information that is valuable to the florist who has time for a talk. "Life experience" is a phrase frequently seen in the ads of those who offer their services. Rosnosky might well use it if occasion arose, for he spent twelve years with the Brecht corporation in Boston and ten years with Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, before taking Horace Greeley's advice and going west. He became a factor in the affairs of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, November 25.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

MUSHROOMS.

A Profitable Crop.

The prices of mushrooms have held up extremely well during the present year and the crop has proved profitable to the growers. At this time, when everyone with greenhouses is planning to grow some food crops, mushrooms are well worthy of consideration, provided the necessary manure is available. They can be grown successfully under greenhouse benches, in cellars, caves and sheds. I have in mind at this time a mushroom bed made in the cellar of a residence. It is placed not far from a hot water heater, which is not by any means the ideal location for such a bed, but it produced 600 pounds of mushrooms last winter. No expert cared for this bed, but it was made with well prepared manure, well tamped and covered with cloths, which were sprayed over twice daily to offset the arid atmosphere of the cellar. None of the mushrooms sold below 75 cents per pound and the bulk of them brought $1 to $1.50 per pound.

Splendid crops of mushrooms can be grown below carnation benches and, when the crop has spent itself, the manure makes an ideal mulch for the carnations just at the time they need it. Any bench surface in a violet house is equally adaptable for mushroom culture, for, while the ideal temperature for them in winter is 55 degrees, they will produce, although more slowly, in a lower temperature and will give a heavy crop as the days lengthen.

Mushroom Beds in Storage Houses.

It will not harm a mushroom bed if it becomes frozen solid. Some growers have the idea that frost will ruin a bed of mushrooms, but having had beds frozen almost solid for weeks at a time and having always had heavy crops when the temperature advanced, I consider that the damage-from-frost theory has been effectively exploded. I also have spawned beds in cold storage houses in late October. In these the winter minimum has often fallen to 30 degrees or lower, for days at a time. These beds have never failed to produce heavily, commencing about May 15 and continuing until September, a period during which mushrooms realize the highest prices of the year. In such storage houses it is necessary to close the windows tightly and in summer protect them with wooden shutters, also keeping the doors shut tightly and ventilating only during cool nights. If these details are attended to, splendid crops, free from insects, can be had through the hottest weather. In such storage houses beds may also be made up in mid-August to produce a crop from the end of September onward.

Preparing the Beds.

Ordinarily mushroom beds are made up in the fall, November being a good month for this work. A supply of fresh horse manure from grain-fed horses is absolutely necessary. Some growers prefer to throw out the more strawy material, retaining merely the droppings, but just as good results may be had when the straw is included. A good way is to dump the manure under cover of an open shed and give it two or three turnings, until the rank heat subsides. Any portions which are dry are dampened with the hose while the pile is being turned. An addition of one-fourth or one-fifth as much pasture loam as manure, well mixed, will prevent violent heating and will at the same time make the beds hold their heat better when made up.

Manure is in the proper condition as regards moisture when it can be squeezed together into a ball with the hand without exuding moisture. In making up the beds, do not dump all the manure in at once, but put it on in layers, tramping or pounding the layers separately. The harder a bed is firmed, the better it will retain heat and the longer it will produce profitably. An average depth of nine inches is about right for level beds. Where they are made up on the floor of a cellar, I prefer rounded beds with a depth of fifteen to eighteen inches in the center. These need not be more than thirty inches wide, with a narrow path between them. The rounded beds give a greater spawning and mushroom-producing surface than level ones.

BLEACHING WITLOOF CHICORY.

Please tell me how to bleach Witloof chicory and how to store the roots up to the time of bleaching.

A. J. H.—Ill.

Dig the roots up now. Cut off the tops, but not too close to the roots. Store them in sand or loam on a cellar floor until wanted for forcing. The roots can be successfully forced in a warm, dark cellar or in a mushroom house. They can be cut back to five or six inches in length before they are planted in loam, spent hops or old tanbark. Below greenhouse benches is a suitable forcing place also. Plant the roots, water them and cover with a foot or more of spent hops, sawdust, or any other light mulch. Some box arrangement is necessary to hold in the loam and covering. Complete darkness is essential for the proper blanching of the tops. The shoots, like cos lettuce, will push up through the light mulch, which can be removed carefully from one end and the tops cut off. I prefer a light covering to a heavier one, such as is occasionally recommended. A fairly warm house is best, not below 55 degrees at night.

Oxford, O.—The Oxford Retreat greenhouses exhibited some chrysanthemums recently in the window of the Oxford National bank, which for size and exquisite coloring are said to have surpassed anything in this line heretofore grown at this range.

Saginaw, Mich.—J. B. Goetz Sons have grown 10,000 flowers of their new anemone chrysanthemum, named Sunshine, by the disbudding process, producing one flower to the stem. They have another house in which the plants were not disbudded, the flowers being produced in clusters, but they do not think these are so good as the disbudded ones. Shipments have been made to several markets, including Cleveland, Cincinnati and Chicago, and the demand has been so strong that they wish they had a much larger quantity. Sunshine is golden yellow, with a large, high, anemone-like center and several rows of ray petals. The stems are stiff and the foliage small. The keeping quality is one of the good points claimed for it. J. Fred Goetz, who looks after the greenhouse end of the business, is preparing to disseminate the variety in the spring.

MUM STOCK PLANTS.

Look over the mum stock and see that all desirable sorts, if intended to be kept for another year, are correctly labeled. Do not put them below a bench or in any out-of-the-way place. The ideal location for them is a bench in a violet house or other cold house, where they will make an abundance of fine, succulent cuttings, so that you can start at once to increase your stock of specially good varieties. In addition to the standard single-stem chrysanthemums, there has been a larger call than ever this season for pompons, singles and undisbudded sprays of the larger-flowered varieties of mums. This has been a most favorable season for mums outdoors, with an almost complete absence of frost until the middle of November. Not only pompons and singles but a number of Japanese varieties have bloomed abundantly. As the pompons are not always reliably hardy, it would be well to lift clumps of them before the ground freezes up and store them in coldframes or in a cool greenhouse for the winter.

CARRYING OVER MUMS.

We have two houses of chrysanthemums which we planned to stop heating as soon as the mums are cut. Is this stock hardy enough to withstand the cold? Could it be started again and would it yield good crops? If so, kindly advise treatment. Some of the mums are in raised benches and others in ground beds. H. & P.—Mich.

We understand that when the houses of mums are cut, you wish to leave the plants in the benches until spring without any heat and then start them up again. With the protection that will be afforded by the glass, there is no reason why the plants should not carry over, but they will have to be protected still further. Usually it is not the freezing that kills mums or other plants, but it is the alternate freezing and thawing that does so much damage. If you have enough leaves to mulch the mums, covering the benches to a depth of several inches after the ground is frozen, thus protecting the plants from the hot sun and preventing a thawing of the soil around the roots, there is no reason why the stock should not come through all right. Stock that has been protected in this manner has produced satisfactory crops the following season. I would not advise that the plants be lifted and moved at this time, if it is not necessary to use the space they occupy, since they are well established in the soil and will come through the winter much better on this account. EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

The story of last week's business is the same as for the week previous. There were many deaths, resulting in a heavy demand for funeral work, beyond what the trade was prepared to meet. The weather was cloudy every day and roses and carnations failed to bloom in sufficient numbers. Mums are practically gone and other flowers which could be used were scarce. Greens are not too plentiful, either, and good ferns are hard to get. The "flu" situation is not improving and it may be that the ban will be put on public gatherings again.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel reports a big demand for roses, carnations and greens. The cut at his range, although large, is below requirements.

Emil Niednagel is expected home by Thanksgiving from the Officers' Training Camp at Camp Taylor.

The William Blackman Floral Co. has a fine line of plants for Thanksgiving, including pans of poinsettias, cherries, cyclamens, potted mums, ferns, etc. The cut of roses and carnations has been good, considering the weather, and business has been heavy.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann continues to have more business than she can attend to. Theo. Elspermann will be among the first to return from France.

Karl Zeidler will not go to Mississippi this year. The hunting party he has been accustomed to go with has decided not to make the trip.

The Lockyear Floral Co. reports that all its stock was taken by the big demand last week and stock was shipped in from Chicago.

Royston & Fenton report a good demand for Liberty coleus, their sport of Brilliancy. Liberty is more brilliant than Brilliancy and must be seen to be appreciated.

Theodore Kuebler has a nice line of plants and cut flowers at his market stand. His carnations this year are fine, the best he has had.

Otto Kuebler, at Kresge's store, has a good stock on display for Thanksgiving.

T. S. Finch, of the Chicago Carton Co., was a visitor here last week.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week saw little change in market conditions. While there was a small increase in arrivals, the demand was such as to absorb the additions and a daily clean-up has been the rule. The late varieties of chrysanthemums are coming in well, the quantity being rather in excess of what is usually expected at this date, due, no doubt, to the mild weather experienced now for many days. The quality is, on the whole, good, and the range of colors is nearly even with the demand. Yellow, perhaps, predominates, but moves better than it did the previous week. The supply of single and pompon mums appears to be diminishing, although there are plenty of them for the demand and the prices continue about the same. White varieties have a good lead.

Roses are in good supply and move well, especially the long-stem grades, but there is a little change noted in prices. Ophelias are exceptionally plentiful, a condition which tends to beat down prices. Carnations are in good demand, but, as they are in more plentiful supply, the fancy prices of recent weeks are out of the question. It must be especially good stock to bring $4 per hundred, which ordinarily is top price for this season. Much short-stemmed stock is arriving, evidence of late benching, which was a condition rather general this season, owing to the scarcity of labor. Red varieties are called for to an unexpected extent, so they clean up without much trouble.

Orchids are in fair supply and move well, cattleyas especially, as the labiata variety has passed its season and only Trianæ is coming in. Cattleya Percivaliana is in evidence, but the demand for it is nothing to speak of. There are plenty of oncidiums and other spray orchids. Lilies have fallen off a little in price, due to the supply being somewhat in excess of the demand. Lily of the valley holds fairly well, but the quality of most arrivals is poor, the best being far below the average. Some fine gardenias are coming in now and move readily. The best bring $4 per dozen and a few selected as much as $5, but the bulk of the arrivals is composed of small flowers, which sell for as little as $2 per dozen. Violets are plentiful and the quality is a little better. A lot of stevia is coming in, but much of it is green and hard to move. Smilax and asparagus move well, the latter especially. There is little locally grown asparagus available now, practically all the supply coming from the south and much of it in poor condition.

There was much speculation as to the prospects of a supply for Thanksgiving, but, judging from the market November 23, there was no cause for uneasiness, as it seemed sure there would be plenty of everything at normal prices.

A Spring Flower Show?

Shall we have a spring flower show? This is a question that just now is concerning many who have taken an active interest in previous shows. The committee is to meet before the close of the month to make a decision in the matter. Many of the larger exhibitors in the trade section are outspoken in their views on the situation, and believe it would be a mistake to abandon the project. They argue that a show would give an opportunity to make a start for the business they feel sure will be forthcoming next spring. Greenhouse builders, garden furniture manufacturers and makers of the hundred and one things which may be included among garden accessories are volunteering their support if the committee decides favorably.

There are two conditions that are likely to influence the committee. One is the availability of a suitable building. The government still has possession of the Grand Central Palace and it is not known whether Madison Square Garden, practically the only other building large enough, could be leased. The other condition is the doubt existing as to whether sufficient exhibitors could be obtained to fill out the competitive section. Most of the greenhouses on private estates, whence come, usually, many of the finer exhibits, are closed, owing to the fuel restrictions. If the fuel situation improves quickly, this condition may be met to a large extent. We may rest assured, however, that if it is at all possible, we will have a show.

Various Notes.

President Charles H. Totty and Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., visited Philadelphia last week in the interest of the publicity campaign.

Fire November 8 in the vicinity of the greenhouses of Fritz Dressel, Gregory avenue, Weehawken, N. J., proved rather disastrous. One house was completely destroyed, and another half demolished. The former contained a lot of young stock of the new fern, President Wilson, so the loss is a serious one for the genial proprietor. The other was stocked largely with dracænas. The houses were 25x100 feet. It is understood there was no insurance.

The fine specimen chrysanthemum plants which took first prize at the recent show at the American Museum, where they were exhibited by Captain De Lamar, of Glen Cove, L. I., were donated by the exhibitor to the flower committee of the National League for Woman's Service. The plants were taken to Base Hospital No. 1, where one was placed in the officers' house and the other in the boys' mess hall. Needless to say, they were greatly appreciated. Robert Marshall, superintendent of the De Lamar estate, assisted the league orderlies in the transfer of the plants.

Robert Bard, of Syracuse, N. Y., was a visitor November 21.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held at the clubrooms in the Grand Opera House building, Monday evening, December 9. An unusually large attendance of members is expected at this meeting. Several fine exhibits of new late chrysanthemums will be the chief feature of the exhibition tables, and two or three plant novelties will be shown for the first time. Election of officers for the ensuing year will be the principal business of the evening. Philip F. Kessler, one of the three nominees for the presidency, says business reasons prevent his acceptance of the nomination, so there remains the prospect of a contest between Charles Schenck, the present incumbent of the office, and John Canning. A spirited but friendly contest for the office of vice-president is expected, and for the offices of trustees.

The victory peace festival at the Hippodrome November 24 in aid of the American Fund for French Wounded was a huge success. All the boxes and reserved seats were sold days ahead. Flowers played a prominent part in the proceedings. A peace tableau was a feature, the characters taken by prominent society ladies; a group of flower bearers, composed also of society ladies, was prominent in the piece. Numbers of society buds served as flower girls and disposed of flowers among the audience. The front page of the handsome program carried an advertisement donated by Frederic R. Newbold in compliment to the florists of New York, with the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," as the head line. The receipts from the sale of flowers are to be applied toward the maintenance of the ambulances presented to the fund by the New York Florists' Club and the Horticultural Society of New York. Many florists supplied flowers for the occasion, notably W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and the Duckham-Peirson Co., Madison, N. J.

Sunday, November 24, was "Fathers' day," the date being set by the Stars and Stripes, the organ of the American Expeditionary Forces, and the emblem to be a rose of any color. As there was no extra demand November 23 for roses, it looks as though poor dad will have to wait until next year, when the boys have returned, before his festival will be of much account. By that time the bill which Representative J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania, introduced in Congress as far back as 1913, designating the first Sunday in June as a day to be hereafter observed as Fathers' day, may be called up for action, but, without doubt, the war has determined the date.

The first wedding of any note, at least from a florist's point of view, since the entry of this country into the war was the Fleitman-Chambers ceremony, which took place November 23 in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street. The church was decorated profusely with palms and chrysanthemums. Florists will welcome a return to lavish floral decoration on wedding occasions.

Prospects were good for a large sale of flowers for Thanksgiving day celebrations. Never before were so many public functions, dinner parties and entertainments scheduled for this day, and if flowers are used for a small part of them only our supply will be used up quickly. J. H. P.

Central City, Neb.—J. W. Lawson grows vegetables and flowers for the market at his well stocked range. This establishment has grown in a comparatively short time to one of the largest and most thriving of its kind in the state.

Freeport, Ill.—The Freeport Floral Co. reports that November 11, which witnessed a monster celebration in honor of the signing of the armistice, brought also the lifting of the ban on public gatherings, which has been in force in Freeport for four weeks.

Winnetka, Ill.—Henry Ilg, who always has done a nice business in this prosperous suburb of Chicago, reports that the business this autumn has exceeded everything in his experience and that he looks forward to the largest spring planting season on record.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is good, but the market is running short of stock of all kinds. The Thanksgiving demand has been heavy, but receipts are not sufficient to satisfy it. Prices have advanced somewhat. The demand from out of town is heavy. Roses are in good supply, but at that are not any too plentiful. All carnations that come into the market are selling readily. Easter lilies are again more plentiful than they have been for a fortnight. Callas may be had. The chrysanthemum cut is nearing an end and by the time Thanksgiving is over, except for a few straggling receipts and a few late varieties, the end of the season for this flower will be at hand. The limited sweet pea offerings clean up readily. Stevia is now in the market. Among other offerings are lily of the valley, orchids and double and single violets. Greens are plentiful.

Christmas for the Boys.

The florists of Cincinnati and vicinity have completed their fund for the members of the trade in the service overseas and at the training camps in this country. A money order for $11 was sent to each of the following:

Various Notes.

The W. C. Schaefer Floral Co. is sending some excellent easter lilies to C. E. Critchell and they are proving a welcome addition to the short supply in the market.

George Klotter has begun to cut his excellent double stevia. It is cleaning up quickly from day to day at L. H. Kyrk's. C. H. H.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business is better than usual for the season, though not so brisk as during the epidemic of influenza. We consider this the more wonderful in view of the fact that so many Canadian dollars were handed out in Canada's Fifth Victory Loan. The 1918 Victory Loan went over the top to the tune of $676,000,000.

Club Meetings.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club held its monthly meeting November 25, with a large attendance. The feature of the evening was an interesting paper on the subject of "Costs," by H. G. Dillemuth, which is to be made the subject of discussion at the next meeting of the club.

A questionnaire will be sent out to all retail florists of the Dominion as to the advisability of forming a retail organization and putting some pep into our business. The scheme was sanctioned by the Retail Florists' Club at its last meeting. A general meeting of retail florists will be called at the C. H. A. convention to be held in August, 1919.

The regular meeting of the Toronto Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held in St. George's hall November 19 and the following officers were elected: President, H. G. Dillemuth; first vice-president, G. H. Mills; second vice-president, F. D. Clark; secretary, Alex. Simpson; treasurer, George A. Hall; executive committee, T. Manton, Frank Fletcher, John Woods, George L. Douglas, L. P. Whittick, George Thompson and E. F. Collins; representative to the Canadian National Exhibition, T. Manton; representative to the Canadian Horticultural Association, Messrs. Simpson, Whittick, Douglas and Collins.

Various Notes.

We are proud to be able to report that our Queen City subscribed $144,946,000 to the Fifth Victory loan, although its quota was set at $80,000,000. It would have been a grand showing indeed had only that amount been realized.

Twenty-five army motor ambulances were driven here from Ottawa November 21 and among the drivers was Norman Scrims, of Ottawa. J. J. H.

Alton, Ia.—Chris Jacobs has removed to Orange City, Ia., and intends to take down his greenhouse here. He is growing peonies, phloxes, delpiniums and other perennials at his new home and may build a greenhouse there next spring.

Hornell, N. Y.—W. A. Wettlin, of the Wettlin Floral Co., finds the combination of market gardening and florists' business highly profitable at this time. Summer crops are easily handled at the store and find ready sale with the best customers. Mr. Wettlin is proud of a small orchard of cherry trees, planted four years ago, which yielded a crop of fruit this season that sold for $400. Asters and gladioli on the farm did well and proved valuable stock. In fact, the gladiolus has become indispensable to the retailer owing to its choice colors, quality of flowers and length of blooming season. Probably more will be forced this winter than ever before.

OBITUARY

William Grover.

William Grover, designer for Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., where he had been employed for the last five years, died at his home on Kane street November 16, at the age of 41 years. Mr. Grover was possessed of exceptional artistic taste and skill as a designer. His remains will be shipped to Philadelphia, his former home, for interment. He is survived by his wife.

Mabel G. Atkin.

Miss Mabel G. Atkin, of Pocatello, Ida., started her retail store there this spring and was making a wonderful business success, and was much admired for her ability and progressiveness, when she became a victim of Spanish influenza November 12. She had been with the floral department of a stationery store of that city for a number of years and was well liked by the people of Pocatello, as well as the florists of the locality. Her remains were shipped to Michigan for interment.

Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., submits for registration the new geranium here described:

Geranium General Pershing—Single; color, vivid salmon, shading to light salmon-pink towards the petal edges; foliage bronzy green, medium size; compact in growth and extremely free and continuous in flowering, hence an improvement on existing varieties in this color for bedding or decorative purposes.

Any person objecting to this registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

CYCLAMENS MOVE RAPIDLY.

Cyclamens now appear to be valuable property and any grower who has a surplus of them will have no difficulty in converting his stock into cash. Those who have been advertising cyclamens in the Classified section of The Review report that their supply was quickly disposed of through these little ads that are carefully scanned by the florists who want to buy. Here is what these little ads did:

Kindly take out the cyclamen ad, as I am all sold out.—Samuel Whitton, Utica, N. Y., November 21, 1918.

Please cancel our ad for cyclamens, as we are all sold out.—J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia., November 19, 1918.

Please discontinue our ad, for I am sold out of everything.—John Gugino, Fredonia, N. Y., November 20, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain that he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Sharpsville, Pa.—William Clark, an employee at Grant Boyle's flower shop, met with an accident while hunting in East Lackawanna township November 1. His gun exploded, hitting his hand and necessitating the removal of a bone.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market this week is fast getting down to a normal condition. The big rush on mums is over, but there are still some fine flowers to be had. With Thanksgiving a week off, many of the growers have been trying to hold their late varieties back for the holiday, but owing to the warm weather it looks as if mums will be gone by that time. Roses are coming in good supply and they grade up well. Some of the best roses seen on this market for some time were noted this fall, and that in the mum season, when they were not expected. But the growers were under the impression that they would have to shut down half of their glass January 1, so they kept their roses growing, and the consequence was that at no time was the market without plenty of first-class roses. Carnations also are coming in fine form; in fact, all the poorer grades of stock are fast disappearing and nothing but good, salable stock is offered. The demand holds fairly well. Most of the commission houses clean up daily. Prices are all that can be desired. In most cases there is little grumbling about prices when anything reasonable is asked.

Various Notes.

Stevenson Bros., out at Towson, are having an unusually fine cut of roses at this time and, while they are still short-handed, yet they are delivering the goods. Thomas Stevenson told me recently that he had to get up at 4 a. m. to get his stock packed and at the market on time. There is nothing but work in the florists' business these days.

Another range that is putting A-1 roses on the market is that of Lehr Bros. Both of these firms have their houses planted to capacity and now that it looks as though they will be allowed to use all the fuel they require, with every indication of an improvement in the labor question, these firms should have a prosperous year.

Charles Akehurst & Son, White Marsh, are on hand this fall, in spite of the way they were handicapped during the summer, with just as fine carnations as ever.

One of the first cases I have heard of released labor getting back into the trade was that of Robert Glandon, formerly with the S. S. Pennock Co., who went to one of the shipyards last winter. He now is with the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. Let us hope that in a short time many more of the boys may be back on their old jobs.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Yes, I am really peeved," observed William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., "because the board of directors of the F. T. D. failed to adopt the suggestion I made, for which I received the award of a $50 Liberty bond. Why was this? The fact that the award was made convinced me that my idea was recognized as practical. Imagine how chagrined I felt when I learned that the learned board had ignored it! Yes, I am still convinced that the idea of obtaining the aid of the traveling salesman who visits the smaller towns is the most logical way to bring about the desired and necessary increase in membership." Referring to the careless methods practiced by some florists in handling F. T. D. business, Mr. Gloeckner mentioned having received six orders by wire this morning which he expected to fill to mutual satisfaction.

• • • •

Fred A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., regretted the fact that, owing to the scarcity of and big demand for flowers, the annual chrysanthemum show at his place was not so elaborate as usual. A fine display is being made in the store windows, the popular pompon Soleil d'Or being much in evidence. A fine stock of plants for the holiday trade is seen at the houses. The nursery is expanding, the main front on the western highway being attractive and constituting a splendid advertisement.

• • • •

Sambrook Bros., of Troy, N. Y., were of the many false prophets who foresaw a glut in the market when Queen chrysanthemum put in an appearance, but who were agreeably surprised at the sales. Apart from funeral work, prices average slightly better here than in former seasons. There are grand blooms of white and yellow Chadwick, Rager, Bonnaffon, William Turner and Queen, the latter variety having been discarded by many florists but still remaining at the head here. White and pink Ivory are still the best varieties for the side bench.

• • • •

Charles L. Doerrer, Westfield, N. J., has all the business they can attend to. Mr. Doerrer says he is working harder than for many years and is looking forward to the time when his gallant soldier boy shall return victorious from the front.

• • • •

Harry Bensel, of Ballston Spa, N. Y., commenting on the improbability of any nursery stock being imported for some time, sees a fine opportunity for the florist with a little land to work up a stock for home trade. He has taken the initiative himself with a block of French lilacs, a valuable plant for Easter. The Victory number of The Review reminded Mr. Bensel of the importance of keeping in touch with up-to-date events, both national and floricultural, and an application for membership in the F. T. D. is evidence of his belief in its efficiency as a business bringer.

• • • •

"I am bound for St. Petersburg, Fla.," was the parting salute of Henry Schrade, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., following a profitable summer season and the promise of an equally good winter. Business will be ably managed by his son William, while Junior Henry is in the service. The latter's description of French floriculture makes entertaining reading. Mrs. Schrade and two younger members of the family accompany their father.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE Fuel Administration will be terminated automatically upon proclamation of peace.

MANY retailers catering to the better class of trade already are able to note an increase in the call for flowers for special affairs, especially for corsage bouquets, as the result of the relief felt at the surrender of Germany.

THE forthcoming issue of the Garden Magazine will be of special interest to florists because the cover and the leading article will have to do with the S. A. F. publicity campaign and most of the advertisements have been written around the trade's slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

IT is an extremely bad habit, when oversold on a batch of plants, to hold orders until the next lot is ready. And the worst part of it is that it usually is done with the orders that were accompanied by remittances. To cash a man's check and not ship his order for anywhere from two to twelve weeks is not in accordance with the golden rule.

IF the florists in the cities want to keep the ones in the small towns filling telegraph delivery orders in time of need they must pay the bills promptly. The small-town florist gets a telegraph order only now and then, usually from some big-city florist who has hunted up the name in a directory or obtained it from a wholesaler. If the country florist does not get his money without trouble, the next telegraph order is ignored and the service gets a black eye.

DON'T be alarmed because you have stored high-priced coal; the price will not fall, nor will you spend sleepless nights in midwinter.

THE Editor's desk seldom has carried a handsomer decoration than the vase of Sunshine, a new Japanese anemone-flowered chrysanthemum, sent by J. B. Goetz Sons, Saginaw, Mich. The flowers were grown by the disbudding process, which produced large blooms on long, stiff stems.

NEARLY all the greenhouse building material concerns have been working for a year or more on government orders of one kind or another. In nearly all cases shipments on these orders have been stopped and some of the contracts are in process of cancellation on terms not unfavorable to the manufacturers. They will be ready to put their whole energies on greenhouse building by spring.

WELL WORTH PUSHING.

In many flower stores the telegraph delivery feature of the business heretofore has been regarded as a mere incident, but suddenly the trade has come to realize that the telegraph delivery department (it includes the orders transferred by telephone and mail) has come to be of real importance and that it repays the same attention, care and effort that is put on other essential features of the flower business.

How important the transfer of orders between retailers has become is illustrated by the statement of F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, who was a visitor at the office of The Review a few days ago. In October, said Mr. Brown, the Gasser store was open twenty-seven days and in those twenty-seven days the transfer orders, in and out, aggregated over $2,900, or more than $100 for each business day in the month.

There is many a store in many a city the size of Cleveland which not so long ago would have considered $100 per day as an excellent total for all the business done. It is a good day's business for many a store right now. The Gasser store did it on transfer orders alone.

Another feature of Mr. Brown's statement was of interest. Some of the florists of large cities have indicated a dislike for orders that are too small to be handled conveniently at a profit. The record of Mr. Brown's October transfer orders shows that those sent out by him averaged a value of $8.95, while the incoming orders averaged $8.90. Among them were some small orders, orders too small to afford an attractive profit at a busy time, but Mr. Brown considers only the average value of the orders. What flower store is there which could not make a handsome profit on orders which averaged a value of $8.90?

THE EXPRESS RATE RAISE.

The increased express rates predicted in recent issues of The Review were provided for in a general order issued November 21 by Director General McAdoo, and are effective January 1, 1919.

The essential features of the order provide that in the territory north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi river, the increase in express first-class merchandise rates range from 16 cents to 17 cents per hundred pounds, regardless of the distance hauled in that territory. This applies to cut flowers.

The increase in the balance of the United States will range from 10 cents to 12 cents per hundred pounds on merchandise. The increase on second-class merchandise, which includes plants properly packed, will be about three-quarters of the increase on first-class merchandise shipped by express.

FROM FAR AND NEAR.

Anyone who has an article used or sold by florists misses the opportunity to make money if he fails to let the trade all know about that particular source of supply. Many buyers send long distances for articles they would buy near home if they saw them advertised in The Review. Like this:

We have been getting orders for tree cones advertised in The Review, from Brooklyn, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and other places, quite a distance from us.—The Colorado Seed Co., Denver, Colo., November 18, 1918.

I have sold out all my surplus stock. The Review does the selling.—R. Schilmar, Warren, Pa., November 15, 1918.

I am pleased to advise that sales are far beyond my expectations and I know that many are due to my ad in The Review.—T. H. Fuller, Battle Creek, Mich., November 16, 1918.

We have had a pretty good sale on the Norway spruce as a result of the ad we have been running in The Review.—Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., November 22, 1918.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

HELP THE TRADE ALONG.

It is the general opinion that the passing of the chrysanthemum season will bring another pronounced shortage of cut flowers in all the wholesale markets. Roses and carnations then will have to carry the load of a demand almost certain to exceed the supply. The result, of course, will be an advance in prices.

The price of cut flowers never has been governed by the cost of production, but by the law of supply and demand. If cost governed, higher prices would have prevailed for a long, long time.

The public is willing to pay what things cost; people do not wish to be overcharged, but they expect to pay the cost of production plus a living profit.

Let the grower live; he has merely existed for quite a space prior to this autumn.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

This issue of The Review goes to press during the rush of Thanksgiving buying. Shipping business is so heavy that it will break all records; it will be a Thanksgiving that will not be forgotten. The city business is keeping pace and it is the opinion of the leaders in the trade, and also of the smaller merchants, that there will not be enough stock to meet all needs, even at the highest prices ever asked at this holiday. Several of the wholesalers already have declined many transient orders, due to having enough advance orders from regular customers to absorb all their Thanksgiving supply. Stock of all kinds, however, is coming into the market in heavy supply, with the exception of mums, of which there will not be enough to go around. So strong is the demand that many orders will have to be cut down and it is feared late buyers will fare poorly.

The city retailers report an extra heavy demand for corsage bouquets and it is evident that a great deal of this work is being done; the reports coming from supply houses state that the material for this kind of trade is moving rapidly. All kinds of decorative work are coming back to life again, such as table decorations, elaborate wedding decorations, etc., and all agree that the trade is going through the biggest November business we ever experienced.

There is a big shortage of chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving, because many of the growers cut their usual Thanksgiving varieties ten days early. Bonnaffon and Chadwick are badly missed. A considerable supply of stock arrives, but this in no way equals the call. Both fancy and common stock cleans up and brings good prices. The pompon situation, however, is more encouraging, as there are enough yellow pompons to go around. The white and pink varieties, however, are far short of the demand and bring good prices.

The market has experienced a wonderful demand for long-stemmed and extra fancy roses. There is a good supply and the quality is excellent; none better have been seen on the market and, while Christmas prices are asked, the demand exceeds the supply. The lower grades continue on the short side, worse this week than in the past. Stiff prices are holding up.

There is an increased supply of carnations, but not what we expect at this time of year, and the supply does not take care of the orders. Everything sells and prices are high. Orchids, for the first time in many months, are coming in large enough quantities to take care of present needs, but the price continues firm. Rubrum lilies meet with an unusually good call, due mostly to the shortage of Easter lilies, which continue to be in big demand. Callas arrive in small quantity and move slowly. Valley is again short and the price has advanced once more. Plenty of calendulas arrive and meet with a good call. The steady demand for pansies continues. Single and double violets arrive in good quantity and, for the first time since their appearance on the market, are in good demand because of their general use for corsage work. Sweet peas are quite plentiful, but the quality is not what the retailers want and they, therefore, move slowly. Mignonette is quite abundant and meets with a heavy call. There is little or no call for Paper Whites. Stevia has come, but much of it is too soft to ship safely.

The greens situation remains unchanged, the demand equaling the supply of everything in this line.

Various Notes.

There is a general impression in the trade that the cost of merchandise is due to come down, now that the war is over, but the wholesalers are not able to find anyone from whom they purchase who looks at it the same way. Within the last few days several of them have suffered another big boost in the cost of their shipping boxes. They are paying so much for them that they do not wonder that some of the out-of-town buyers question the P. & D. charge even when it represents only the bare cost of the boxes. And this week old newspapers for wrapping purposes have been advanced to $30 per ton. In the good old days the price was $9 per ton. The price of old newspapers is governed by supply and demand and the order of the War Industries Board prohibiting all overruns having produced a shortage.

C. Clemensen, 7801 Exchange avenue, who is known as one of the busiest and hardest working florists on the south side, will have to hustle just a little stronger now, for a brand-new baby boy arrived at his home last week.

Joseph Weis, Jr., who has done a good business for a number of years at 3445 Southport avenue, is reported by his landlord as retiring from the trade.

Bernard J. Schmierer, proprietor of the North Shore Floral Co., has recently by act of court changed his name to Bernard J. Sherman.

An attractive book of 150 pages is entitled "The Forest Preserves of Cook County" and has a handsome portrait of Peter Reinberg as the frontispiece. As president of the board of county commissioners Mr. Reinberg also is president of the Forest Preserve commissioners of Cook county and it has been largely due to his efforts that the Forest Preserve district has been developed so rapidly. In two years' time over 13,000 acres have been acquired at the low cost of about $5,000,000. The tracts form a perfect chain of woodland a few miles outside the city and some day will constitute a world's marvel as a public park system. The commissioners serve without pay and it has been Mr. Reinberg's pleasure to devote a large share of his time to the development of the system. Those who are interested in the book descriptive of the work thus far accomplished can obtain it without cost on application at the offices in the County building.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet December 5 at the Randolph hotel, Randolph and Wells streets, at 8 p. m. A big meeting is looked for, as the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place and many papers of interest held over from the last meeting will be read.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., will send to A. T. Pyfer & Co. several of their late-flowering chrysanthemums, which will be displayed at the Chicago Florists' Club meeting December 5.

The loop florists, including many of the trade's leaders, have shown unusual taste this week in their window decorations and an inspection of the various shops shows that the windows attract the attention of many passers-by.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, comments on the rose situation up to Thanksgiving. He states that his house never has realized such prices as those of this autumn and that price does not deter the buyers who want extra fancy stock, particularly choice Russell and Milady, which have brought as high as 60 cents apiece.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner have taken additional space on the fourth floor of the Atlas block in order to carry enough holiday supplies to handle their orders. Miss O. A. Tonner says that the extra space is only taken temporarily, but it is hoped that business will continue so that it can be kept permanently.

F. J. Rioux, in charge of the refrigerator department of the A. L. Randall Co., reports that since the armistice has been signed inquiries for new refrigerators have been coming in heavily; there is no doubt in his mind that a big business will be done in this line from now on.

have brought them many inquiries and orders from all parts of this country and, in fact, from foreign countries, the latest being an order for wire designs from a florist and horticultural sundriesman in Glasgow, Scotland.

J. T. Caulfield is trying to sell the fixtures and lease of the Woodlawn Floral Shop, 811 East Sixty-third street. He says he has had any number of lookers, but the most likely prospect is a man in another line of business who likes the location. The florists seem to be deterred by the rent, $80 per month, on a lease which has two and a half years to run. The store is the one started by the Sullivan brothers. It passed into the hands of Emmet Caulfield, who was not a florist, a few months ago. He was doing well, but was killed in an automobile accident October 27. It is his father, a real estate operator, who has the place for sale. It is not open for business.

Visitors.

Among last week's visitors was Louis Bauscher, of the Freeport Floral Co., Freeport, Ill. He was here to attend the annual meeting of the North American Union, a fraternal insurance organization of more than 30,000 members. He is one of three supreme trustees and one detail of his job is to keep an eye on something like $500,000 of members' funds. As for the flower business at Freeport, he says it has been real good. He puts accent on the penultimate.

F. C. W. Brown, general manager of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, was here for two days last week, seeking the means of meeting a constantly increasing demand. He says business never was better at Cleveland and that his chief difficulty is in procuring stock and skilled assistance to take care of the trade.

George H. Bancroft, of Joseph Bancroft & Son, Cedar Falls, Ia., paid his annual visit to the market November 21. While he was buying a general line of supplies, his interest principally centered on baskets, which are more popular than ever before at Cedar Falls. Mr. Bancroft uses large numbers of baskets for funeral flowers and finds these arrangements among the most successful he sends out.

David Geddis, manager of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., St. Louis, spent the latter part of last week in this market.

J. S. Wilson, Jr., of the Alpha Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia., made preparations for Thanksgiving shipments while here last week.

O. J. Eischen, of the Duluth Floral Co., Duluth, Minn., made a hurried trip to the market the early part of the week and it is evident by the size of orders placed for Thanksgiving stock that his concern expects to break all records this year.

W. C. Johnson, Memphis, Tenn., was in town November 25, purchasing supplies and investigating the subject of greenhouse building. Johnson's Greenhouses now cover about 50,000 square feet. They are all in cut flowers for the local trade, but they do not meet the demand, at least one-fourth of the stock sold heretofore having come from the Chicago market. Mr. Johnson plans to add 20,000 feet to his glass, a part of it in the early spring and the rest as rapidly as he thinks prices warrant.

George A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill., was in the market the early part of this week.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The market in this locality is greatly depleted and the usual big sale for Thanksgiving must suffer for lack of stock. This shortage is attributed to several causes. First of all, there were not so many mums, roses or carnations planted by those who remained in business. Next, a number of concerns closed for the winter. Third, a week of dark weather has retarded stock. Fourth, the great demand for the last week, from sickness and death, has kept the market bare.

For the last week business in general has been good. However, counter trade has suffered on account of the public remaining at home to avoid wearing the "flu" masks. This has hurt all lines of business.

Large mums are making from $2 to $6 per dozen. Pompon and single varieties bring 50 cents per bunch. Carnations are scarce and make from $4 to $6 per hundred. Roses meet with ready sale and bring from $3 to $25 per hundred. Callas make $1.50 per dozen. Rubrums fetch 75 cents to $1 per dozen, while Easter lilies are practically out of the market. Sweet peas are coming in slowly. There are a few violets, snapdragons, calendulas, pansies, stevia, bouvardia and mignonette in the market. Green goods are scarce.

The pot plant market affords ferns, Jerusalem cherries, cyclamens, mums and Chatelaine begonias.

Various Notes.

H. Roth, of Lafayette, is shipping good roses to this market, especially Columbia, and is also sending good bouvardia.

The H. W. Rieman Sons Co. is closed on account of the "flu" in the family. The entire staff is ill.

E. E. Temperley, wife and daughter, are spending a few days in Terre Haute, visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Eppert, of Davis Gardens, Mrs. Temperley's parents.

Bertermann Bros. Co. and A. Wiegand's Sons Co. are displaying Thanksgiving windows worthy of mention, and John Rieman's window for this week outdoes his windows of the past.

E. O. Steinkamp has been visiting in Richmond. E. E. T.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The wholesale market during the last week was not in so good a condition as usual at this time of the year. Sunless days caused a shortage of all seasonable flowers.

In anticipation of Thanksgiving, prices advanced. That there will be a great demand is shown by the many advance orders that have been placed with the wholesalers.

Last week we noticed a greatly decreased supply in all varieties of mums, but no doubt many growers were holding them back for this week, which will about see the end of the mum season.

Roses are fine, but not plentiful enough to supply the demand. Carnations are slow in coming into crop this season. Sweet peas and violets are scarce. Easter lilies are more plentiful and the shortage of other stock caused a large demand for them. Stevia sells well. Everything in greens moves steadily.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting November 21 at the Missouri Botanical Garden. About thirty members attended. The report of the publicity committee, through Chairman Bourdet, brought out a lively discussion. Julius Schaeffer and Chas. L. Connon made application for membership. Luther Armstrong exhibited a vase of his new chrysanthemum, Margie Armstrong. It was decided that the next meeting be a Victory meeting and that When the meeting adjourned the members were invited to view the big mum show now in progress in the garden.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its postponed meeting and mum exhibition November 20, at the Eleven Mile House. The attendance was good and the exhibition of cut mums was quite large and attractively staged. The next meeting will take place December 4.

The Retail Florists' Association held a called meeting November 25. President J. J. Windler says efforts will be made to revive interest and that monthly meetings will be held hereafter.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Florist Club will be held December 3 at the Y. W. C. A. rooms.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The market is tightening. There is less stock, there are more orders and higher prices. The wholesalers do not want to lay stress on the fact that prices are higher. They do not want to discourage business. But the fact remains that prices must advance or there will be no stock.

Chrysanthemums will hold out until Thanksgiving; that part is settled. There will be fewer of them, no doubt, but there will be some of the fine, late sorts that make a strong ending to the season, including Bonnaffon, the Chadwicks, Maud Dean, Seidewitz, Jeanne Nonin and a few others. The quantity has been smaller the last season, prices have been higher and many more could have been sold. Good judges say that the market undoubtedly would have taken the quantity of chrysanthemums grown last year at this year's better prices.

Carnations are looking up as a real factor in the market. They are improving and they are going higher. Roses are on the back track. There are not so many of them and they, too, are advancing. Violets are of importance as Thanksgiving approaches. Some houses handle only extremely fine single ones; others depend chiefly on the doubles. The former use violets locally or for nearby points; the latter use violets in long-distance shipping.

A few Paper Whites and some stevia have appeared. Greens are ended.

The Florists' Club.

There are some things that may not be mentioned. There are some things that may not be written; at least, so the minor papers believe. But I firmly believe that good comes of talking and writing plainly of the things that are of interest to us all. I believe this just as firmly as I do that where there is mystery in business there is apt to be crookedness. I have often been criticised for discussing the Florists' Club matters, on the ground that private matters should not be made public. This seems to me most unjust. The Florists' Club aims at the betterment of our profession and is open to every one of us whose legs are not black. We ought, one and all, to do everything in our power to make the club as good as it can be made here on earth. If we do not talk about it, it might as well be in heaven for all the good it will do here. This by way of preamble.

There is a queer condition existing in the Florists' Club today. The club has a president who will not preside. Such a thing has never occurred before in the history of the organization. It probably never will occur again. It is considered a great honor to be elected president of the Florists' Club. Every florist would enjoy this distinction; few of us attain it. The first president of the club was the foremost man in the profession and the most popular. Then came the next and the next in order as representatives of the profession. After a while there was no longer unanimity of opinion as to who should be president. Some thought one, some another. There were rival candidates. Presently the great business houses took a hand in the selection. This caused friendly rivalry. The October election was somewhat in the nature of a canvass. The friend of one great house, a man of note, was chosen president; the friend of another great house, a younger man, but one of scarcely less note, was chosen vice-president; when, to the horror of everyone, the president declined to serve. This placed his friends in a position of unusual embarrassment. They could not decently impeach him. What could they do? The vice-president came to the rescue and presided at the November meeting. He probably will continue to do so until such time as the president can be prevailed upon to change his mind and accept the honor for which his long and useful career so eminently qualifies him.

The Plant Market.

The conditions prevailing in the plant market are so encouraging as to be worthy of special mention. The dullness that prevailed during the cut flower activity of last month has passed. In its place a healthy demand has sprung up that promises to make a shortage in many varieties long before the holidays. Buyers realize that there is not a great deal of really good blooming and colored stock to be had and they are ordering freely, much earlier than usual. Red peppers, one of the pretty novelties, are already bespoken, while small poinsettias suitable for baskets bid fair to run out soon. Highly colored crotons are in active demand, owing to the fact that many growers dropped them because they need heat. Ericas have sold well. Cyclamens are likely to be more in evidence than ever before in this market.

Various Notes.

Cornelius Van der Breggan is improving steadily, though not yet out of bed.

Recent visitors include Joseph Coombs, representing John Coombs, Hartford, Conn.; Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; John Young, New York city; E. L. Dudley, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Charles H. Uttley and Mrs. Uttley, Harrisburg, Pa.

Michaelsen Bros. have reopened.

The genial Robert Shoch has returned from a successful southern trip.

Edward Dornheim has returned to Berger Bros. He says it is the only commission house; Colonel Baker dissents.

Clarence U. Liggit has been south.

The establishment of William J. Young, Jr., was entered recently through a ventilator by a sneak thief, who escaped with a heavy overcoat and some chrysanthemums.

Samuel W. Sproul has reopened two doors from his former location.

The Collingdale Greenhouses have been dismantled. The ground has been sold and dwellings are being erected thereon. This is the old La Roche & Stahl place, which was leased and successfully operated by Alfred M. Campbell.

The M. Rice Co. has more orders on its books today than in any previous year at this time.

Charles F. Edgar is said to be out west.

Fred Berger says that the season's farming has greatly improved his health.

Max H. Rothe displayed some fine Turner chrysanthemums that captured the blue ribbon at the Pennsylvania show last week.

Alfred M. Campbell has put a new blue car into service.

The visit of the S. A. F. magnates was in the interest of the publicity fund. Mr. Young reports success in the middle west and in California.

An embargo on No. 1 buckwheat coal went into effect again November 16, greatly to the disappointment of the florists and the coal men.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The near approach of Thanksgiving finds the market well cleaned up of practically all flowers. November 23 and 25 stalls presented an appearance not dissimilar to the period when the influenza wave was at its height. There seems to be a marked scarcity of almost everything. Roses were hurt by recent warm weather and nearly all growers are in light crop. As a consequence, prices have stiffened materially on all varieties, with a specially strong call for reds, deep pinks and Ophelia. Carnations are sold out soon after arrival and Thanksgiving prices are ruling higher than for years. Violets are scarce. The heat wave raised havoc with the plants, and it looks now as though they would be in short supply for some weeks at least. Chrysanthemums never cleaned up so well and they bring satisfactory prices. The pompons are in great demand.

Lilies are scarce and such callas as arrive are soon bought up. There are few sweet peas and the snapdragons that reach the market sell well, if of good colors. Marguerites move at $1 to $2 per hundred, and pansies, owing to the violet scarcity, sell well. Stevia has arrived from several growers and commands double last year's price. Prices on cattleyas have advanced to as high as $75 per hundred. Cypripediums sell moderately well at $16 per hundred. Pot plant trade is looking up. Ericas, camellias, chrysanthemums, begonias, cyclamens, ferns, crotons, araucarias, oranges and berried solanums sell the best.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club November 19 drew an excellent attendance. Exhibits were numerous and it proved to be one of the most interesting gatherings of the year. Resolutions of sympathy were read and approved on the deaths of John Lally and Alexander Lister. The death of John E. Blocksidge, killed in action in France, was reported, and Messrs. J. L. Smith, W. N. Craig and P. M. Miller were appointed as a committee on resolutions. A letter of sympathy was ordered sent to the family of Carl Borowski, a former club member, who died at Camp Devens.

Nominations of officers for 1919 were made as follows: President, A. K. Rogers; vice-president, C. P. Sweetser; secretary, W. N. Craig; treasurer, S. J. Goddard; executive committee, James Wheeler, H. H. Bartsch, W. H. Judd, George W. Hamer, James Donald, James Methven, Walter H. Golby and Robert E. Montgomery. The annual election will be held December 17.

It required two long tables to hold the numerous exhibits. Janiten & Wollrath Co. showed splendid begonias, Melior and Cincinnati, cyclamens and oranges. The cyclamens were exceptionally fine and Mr. Wollrath stated that they had made sales of these at as much as $15 per pair. He considered Melior a much better commercial begonia than Cincinnati, with which Mr. Bartsch, of the W. W. Edgar Co., agreed. He said the only objection to Melior was that its flowers were somewhat cup-shaped. Mr. Bartsch, among other plants, showed splendid pans of Euphorbia jacquiniæflora; freesia with spikes well advanced; azaleas, poinsettias, cyclamens and begonias. W. H. Golby, gardener to E. A. Clark, had a splendid vase of William Turner mums. He received a cultural report of merit for Rouen and Sutton's Prizetaker leeks. He also showed beans which had produced at the rate of 1,200 seeds for each one sown.

James Methven received a report of cultural merit for superb Carter's Maltese parsnips. He also had fine Sutton's Gem celery and Intermediate carrots. S. J. Goddard received a report of merit for a light pink seedling carnation, 119-12, one of Dorner's, of splendid substance; also honorable mention for a fine scarlet of Dorner's, and a pure white seedling of his own, heavily fringed and similar to Matchless. The seedling never shows any color in dark weather, he stated. Mr. Goddard also showed fine Baldwin apples and field corn.

John L. Smith received a report of merit for a splendid hybrid Cattleya Moira. F. Predeaux showed his new, large-flowered strain of Primula obconica. W. D. Nickerson showed seedling anemone chrysanthemums.

W. N. Craig showed a collection of vegetables, including tomatoes, brussels sprouts, onions, etc. A. K. Rogers had a fine collection of apples, also excellent red cabbage, leeks, turnips and brussels sprouts. T. J. Grey Co. showed Canada Cap corn. Thomas W. Little showed a pair of Tender and True cucumbers, some forty-two inches in length, also salsify and fine Paris Golden celery, awarded a cultural report of merit. Charles Cooper received honorable mention for handsome Baldwin apples. James Donald showed sweet corn, field corn and potatoes. The various exhibits brought out considerable discussion and later in the evening James Donald gave a short practical talk on vegetables.

One new member was admitted. It was voted to serve refreshments, which have been dropped for some time, at the December meeting, when Christmas plants will be discussed.

Various Notes.

Professor A. G. Hecht, of the floricultural department, Amherst, is now a lieutenant in the personnel office at Camp Sherman, O.

The W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, has a splendid lot of Petrick azaleas already in bloom. All are finely budded. They have made shipments of these to Canada and other distant points. They have 12,000 Freesia Purity in bud for the holidays, grown in pots and pans, and large batches of primulas, begonias, cyclamens, poinsettias and Euphorbia jacquiniæflora.

B. A. Snyder & Co., in honor of their opening November 21, entertained about 150 of their friends in the trade at supper at the Elks' hall that evening. An excellent supper was served. J. J. Cassidy officiated as toastmaster, and congratulatory addresses were made by P. Welch, W. J. Stewart, E. A. Peirce and others. There was an excellent orchestra and solos which kept the company in good humor. Those assembled presented B. A. Snyder & Co. with a handsome clock as a token of esteem, and the evening proved a most enjoyable one.

Thomas Roland, among other Thanksgiving plants, has excellent Erica melanthera, oranges, camellias, cyclamens, begonias, ferns and crotons at Revere. He has at present a light cut of roses, but he will have a large Christmas crop.

George C. Harbison, for many years manager for William H. Elliott, at Brighton, has resigned. His place has been taken by Michael Costello, an old employee at Brighton. Eber Holmes, for some time in charge of Mr. Elliott's Madbury, N. H., establishment, has left to assume charge of Mark Aitken's greenhouses at Springfield, Mass.

Pompon mums never sold so well as they have this season in Boston. Anderson Bros., of Woburn, are large growers of these and have large quantities of Klondyke, Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Wilcox for Thanksgiving.

The local conference held in Horticultural hall, November 22, for the New England members of the National Association of Gardeners proved to be a most interesting one. The principal speakers were Leonard Barron, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Robert Cameron, Prof. D. Hemenway, of the National War Garden commission, and M. C. Ebel. W. N. Craig officiated as chairman. Resolutions were passed, asking for a three years' postponement of the threatened embargo on nursery importations, and the association's aid was pledged to the victory garden movement for 1919.

J. T. Butterworth is cutting Cattleya labiata and Cypripedium insigne in quantity.

Recent visitors included S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J., and Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y. W. N. C.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

As far as can be seen in retail circles, business prospects are encouraging. The strain of war that has affected everybody during the last four years has been relieved and a more cheerful disposition is apparent. That the coming Christmas is going to be the biggest on record is the belief entertained by all the florists and Rochester is planning to decorate extensively, especially in the business sections, to imbue the people with the Christmas spirit.

THE JOHN HENRY CO.

LANSING, MICH.

As is usually the case, stock is scarce before the holidays, but large quantities of stock are promised for the Thanksgiving trade. No particular shortage has been noticed until last week, when roses dropped off considerably. Good stock arrives and sells readily. Columbia is much sought for, especially in the medium and fancy stock.

Other varieties arriving in fair supply include Ophelia, Prima Donna, September Morn, Sunburst and Scott Key. The market is stocked with a deluge of chrysanthemums, which sell to good advantage. The quality is good, with strong, well foliaged stems. Mums should be in splendid condition for Thanksgiving Turner and yellow Turner, Bonnaffon, Maud Dean, Chrysolora, Chieftain, Touset, Eaton and Yellow Eaton, Golden Glow and Queen are included in the supply. Fair quantities of pompons in many different shades are in good demand. Single yellow and white varieties are popular. Calendulas are still in fair supply and are of excellent quality. Pansies are seen, but do not move rapidly. The same is true of both single and double violets. Their quality is excellent, but there is no great demand at present. Carnations of good quality are arriving in increased quantities, for which the demand is good. Most of the carnation stock arrives in medium-length stems. The long-stemmed stock has not as yet made its appearance. There is a fair demand for Easter lilies, but there is not sufficient stock to go around. Orchids had a fair demand during the week. Some good bouvardia is seen, but only in small quantities. Stevia is in good supply and, being the only fine flower at this time, is much sought for. Callas are small and receive little call. New galax in both brown and green is welcome. Leucothoe leaves are selling well. Natural oak is used largely with chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

The Lady Florists' Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Edwin P. Wilson November 19 for its monthly meeting. Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served.

George Pringle, of Salter Bros., East Main street, leaves within a few days for Florida, to be away until spring. George Cramer is assisting this firm and will continue to do so until Mr. Pringle's return.

Visitors to the trade this week include Julius Berg, representing a ribbon house of New York, and the representative of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

The store of J. B. Keller Sons has been redecorated during the last few days and finished in white enamel. It is attractive now with massive vases of chrysanthemums. Tall square pedestals finished in gold bronze are used in the window with excellent effect.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was not held as scheduled November 18, owing to the Peace celebrations. Important business was to have been presented, but this will come before the December meeting, when it is hoped all the members will make a special effort to attend.

A handsome window display was seen at the store of Collatos Bros., Clinton avenue, south, this week. Huge vases of Bonnaffon mums were displayed, surrounded by a number of baskets of straw-flowers. Louis Collatos reports business as good indeed. He is looking forward to a record Christmas trade.

Salter Bros. have on display a number of the Reiber bird houses in their window, nicely crated and packed with evergreens. They make ideal Christmas gifts and are selling well.

breaking Thanksgiving. Indications were that the supply of mums also will be big.

Carnations had a drop during the week, but not enough to weaken them in the least. For Thanksgiving they were expected to be $6 to $8 per hundred. Roses experienced a better demand during the week at fair prices. The demand for Beauties has been slow.

F. P. A.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Conditions in the flower market during the last week have eased up only slightly, in spite of the fact that the influenza epidemic has subsided. We have had practically no sunshine for the last two weeks, and roses and carnations are both in short supply. Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia are most notable for quality, while Shawyer, Columbia, Richmond and the Killarneys are close seconds.

Lilies may be said to be off the market, likewise valley. Some handsome chrysanthemums are being shown, although the pink and white sorts are scarce at present. Bonnaffon, Chadwick and Golden Wedding are the best of the yellows. Ivory, Turner and other excellent varieties are being offered, but many of the late mums will be saved for Thanksgiving. Sweet peas, violets and miniature roses have been in excellent demand for corsage work, but are inadequate to requirements. Snapdragons are being used in large quantities and orchids are plentiful. The demand has extended to wedding work and pre-nuptial parties within the last week and the reopening of the local hospitals, which had been closed on account of the influenza, caused a spurt of trade in that direction. The ground has been covered with frost many times of late and our first light snowfall came November 21.

letter of protest from the Florists' Club in regard to the stock from the city greenhouses being sold at the local department stores below market prices. No action has been taken by the club as yet, on this matter, but steps will be taken to prevent this stock being put on the market at cut prices.

H. R. Smalley, Allen County Agricultural Agent, has received official information that his brother, Sergeant John W. Smalley, received the distinguished service cross for great heroism on the French front, September 12, when he attacked a German machine gun nest. It was in the performance of this courageous act that he lost his life.

Edgar Wenninghoff has a fine line of blooming plants, including primroses, begonias, chrysanthemums and cyclamens, which he has been offering during the scarcity of cut blooms. He has had an unusually good demand for these, in addition to a steady demand for funeral pieces.

Some attractive "Victory" corsages were sent out by the Flick Floral Co. last week, and this concern also put in three wedding decorations. Flowers for pre-nuptial parties have been in brisk demand here. Some fine Ophelia and Russell roses are being cut at the greenhouses and an excellent crop of mums, many of which will be in their prime for Thanksgiving. R. F. B.
